Governor's Mom Lands in Jail in Integration Try

By DON MCKEE

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — An attack on segregation in this tourist city landed Mrs. Malcolm Peabody, 72-year-old mother of the Massachusetts governor, in jail for refusing to leave a motel dining room.

Tall, white-haired and calm, Mrs. Peabody spent the night in the county jail on charges of trespassing and violating a state law on undesirable guests. She was arrested after more than 100 Negroes were jailed in a mass demonstration aimed at a hotel.

Mrs. Peabody said she would leave jail today. Her bond was set at $300.

She was arrested Tuesday while sitting with five St. Augustine Negro women and Mrs. Donald Campbell of Cambridge, Mass., wife of an Episcopal bishop and J. Lawrence Burkholder, a Harvard theology professor.

In Boston, Gov. Endicott Peabody told a news conference his mother was arrested while "attempting to obtain equal rights for all American citizens."

He said he had spoken by

Gen. MacArthur's Condition Is 'Deteriorating'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's condition has in general "deteriorated in the past 24 hours," Walter Reed Army Hospital announced today. But it said the general passed a "peaceful night."

A medical bulletin at 10:15 a.m. added that there has been a "slight drop in the blood pressure and a moderate rise in the pulse rate" of the general and that his kidney function — a complicating factor in his present condition — has "diminished progressively over the past 24 hours."

The bulletin said pressure in the tube inserted in the general's esophagus and stomach "will be released this morning."

This tube is used to control intermittent bleeding from the esophagus.

The bulletin did not say specifically that the bleeding has been stopped entirely, but the fact that pressure applied through the tube, by means of inflated balloons, to the walls of the esophagus and of the stomach would appear to indicate the bleeding has stopped at least temporarily.

As late as Tuesday night the doctors were paying tribute to the "strength and fiber" of the 84-year-old patient and reporting he was holding his own.

They said his heart beat and other vital signs were steady, though his condition was still critical.

March Goes Out Like a Lamb; Mercury Climbs

March made a glorious exit Tuesday when the mercury raced up to the 69-degree level. That was in marked contrast to the ninth of the month when the thermometer skittered down to -1.

The previous all-time highs and lows for March were in 1963 and 1946 when the U.S. Weather Bureau at Peterson Field recorded a summer-like 80 and a freezing -16.

The normal mean maximum for March is 50; the figure recorded was 43. The normal mean minimum is 23, with 19 recorded. This gave the area a mean temperature of 31 while the normal is 36.

Total precipitation for the month amounted to 1.08 inches, with .61 as the normal. This gave an excess for the month of .47 inches, making a total for the year 1.30 inches with an excess here of .07 inches.

The greatest amount of precipitation in any 24 hours was on the seventh when .59 inches was recorded. Total snowfall for March tallied 20.5 inches.

There were 10 clear days, seven partly cloudy days, and 14 cloudy days.

The weathermen counted seven days when the area had .01

Teen Gangs Warned by Isle of Man

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) —This resort island in the Irish Sea challenged Britain's teen-age "wild ones" today to come over, cause trouble and get a thrashing.

"We still have the birch here for people up to 21," warned William Quayle, chairman of the island's juvenile court.

"It is the greatest deterrent against hooligans. If they try to invade and terrorize our island this summer their activities will be nipped in the bud."

Gangs of teen-agers terrorized the English east coast resorts of Clacton and Margate over Easter weekend.

The Isle of Man, midway between England and Ireland, is part of the United Kingdom but has its own laws. Birching has been abolished in the rest of Britain.

Construction In Region Off To Good Start

Construction in Colorado Springs is off to a rousing start this year and well on its way to establishing a new record.

Perry C. Tyree, city superintendent of inspections, said building permits for the first three months of 1964 have totaled $5,792,503 as compared to $4,581,947 for the same period in 1963.

The city's all time building high was $24,455,795 established in 1962. Last year, construction totaled $23,751,816.

If the present pace continues, and considering that three of the usually slowest months of the year have passed, a new all-time record should be established this year.

Included in this year's March permits were 99 dwellings, $1,164,335; 10 private garages, $8,925; 4 duplexes, $58,000; one service station, $28,000; one office building, $64,000; seven stores, $719,000; one restaurant, $150,000; one warehouse, $15,028 and 636 permits for additions, alterations, etc., $80,005.

Value of all city building permits issued since Jan. 1, 1952, has been $195,003,965 and new construction $170,868,039. During that period, 8,173 new home permits valued at $110,148,805 have been issued. City building permits in the last 27 months have totaled $54,010,114, slightly better than $2 million a month.

'Very Small' Earthquake Rattles New Hampshire

LACONIA, N.H. (UPI) — A slight earthquake shook central New Hampshire today, the third temblor in New England in five months.

The tremor at 6:21 a.m. EST shook houses and roused sleeping occupants. Many persons ran out of their homes.

Some said it sounded like a thundering train or truck. One woman said she felt the earth shaking beneath her feet.

The Rev. Francis J. Donohoe of the Weston College seismograph station described the earthquake as "a very small one."

Father Donohoe said it "was too small to make an accurate determination of its position" but that it appeared to be centered in the Lake Winnipesaukee area.

"They have these shakes every so often," Father Donohoe said. He said it was not related to the destructive earthquake in Alaska last Friday.

Dartmouth College geologists said the area was earthquake prone.

No injuries were reported.

Brazilian Revolt Spreads Against Leftist President

By FRANK BRUTTO

Declaring Brazil will never become another Cuba, army, navy and state political leaders deserted Goulart. The rebels said their army columns marching on Rio de Janeiro were being joined by soldiers sent out by Goulart to repel them.

Firing was reported in Rio itself. Some soldiers in famed Copacabana fortress, in the fashionable beach and apartment section of Rio, proclaimed their solidarity with the rebels.

Shortly afterward, firing between the fort and soldiers on a nearby hill broke out, a radio station source reported. He said one officer and nine soldiers were wounded when the rebels took over the fort.

In a series of broadcasts, the rebels claimed seven of Brazil's 27 states had rallied to their banner in a drive to "lift the Red yoke" from Brazil.

His foes charge Goulart is leading the country of 71 million inhabitants to communism by nationalization of private industry, expropriation of land and his demand to legalize the Communist party. Goulart says he is only working to improve the lot of 20 million illiterate peasants.

As Goulart sought to rally forces loyal to him, Gen. Humberto Castello Branco, chief of the army general staff, and two other high commanders de-

10,000 Belgian Doctors Strike Against Socialism

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Most of Belgium's 10,000 physicians struck today against government revisions of the state-controlled, tax-supported health insurance system.

The doctors charged the reform program, aimed to help make the system financially self-supporting, is a step toward fully nationalized medicine.

Negotiations between the medical men and the government, led by Premier Theo Lefevre, were broken off last midnight.

Dr. Maurice Thone, president of the National Federation of Medical Chambers, told newsmen the doctors "promise to fight until the end to assure the triumph of human rights."

Full Stomachs Come First, Revolution Comes Second, Nikita Informs Chinese

By JOSEPH Y. SMITH

BUDAPEST (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in an obvious counter-attack on the Chinese Communists, said today that world revolution cannot succeed without full stomachs.

"There are some who call themselves Communists and Marxist-Leninists and who claim they are working for a better world," he told a meeting of Hungarian factory workers. "But they still don't think it's important to raise the standard of living. They only call for revolution, revolution.

"The revolutionary impulse is in itself not enough. We also need a good plate of goulash, good books and good housing. When you have these, then you know why you are fighting."

It was Khrushchev's first public reference to Peking's massive new attack on his policies issued Monday. In exchanging speeches with his Hungarian hosts since his arrival on a visit early Tuesday Khrushchev had avoided mention of the Chinese prediction that world communism would throw him on the "rubbish heap of history."

Khrushchev made the remarks in an off-the-cuff speech at a Budapest electrical factory. The prepared text, which dealt with the importance of electric power in building socialism, was read for him in Hungarian.

Then, in his usual free-swinging style, the Soviet premier said: "Now that you've heard what was written down, I'll tell you what I really think."

His audience laughed appreciatively.

"Don't think that I'm just saying things here for your benefit. I'm not the kind of person who says one thing here and goes home to say something else," Khrushchev told the workers.

He said communism, "the highest form of society," should be able to out-produce capitalism.

"The capitalists produce good products, but these products are not produced by the capitalists themselves, but by the workers," he said.

"If they can do it, why shouldn't our workers, our engineers be capable of the same quality and production?"

Sheet Metal Workers Local Goes on Strike

Members of the Sheet Metal Workers International Union, Local No. 9, went on strike this morning after they failed to reach an agreement with the Contractors Association of Colorado Springs before the contract expired at midnight Tuesday.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reported this morning that 17 sheet metal workers employed at the NORAD Hardsite at Cheyenne Mountain did not report for work today. The corps said that no picket lines have been established and that the corps has received no official information about the strike.

The union and the contractors met both Monday and Tuesday nights with the federal mediator, Pete Nichols of Denver, but failed to reach an agreement.

Curtis Guidry of Denver, business manager for Local No. 9, said this morning that 111 journeymen in the Colorado Springs area are involved in the strike. He said that a union representative, Joseph Keller, is handling the negotiations for the union. Keller was in Colorado Springs Tuesday and today but

Two Witnesses Say Suspect Robbed Store

Coy, 31, 1927 S. Franklin St., is on trial for aggravated robbery and conspiracy.

He is alleged to have held up Furr Food Store, 1645 S. Tejon St., Dec. 4 and conspired with William A. Thomas and Larry Smith West. Three thousand, one hundred and sixteen dollars and seventeen cents were taken.

Thomas, 23, Lamar, has already been found guilty but Otto Hilbert, his attorney, has won him a new trial which is scheduled for May 19. West, 24, of Cascade, will be tried May 19.

Jury selection started late Tuesday morning and was completed at 3:15 p.m.

JOHN BEUMER, JR.

John Beumer Jr. Named Springs Ampex Manager

John Beumer, Jr., has been named manager of Ampex Corporation's Colorado Springs operations, according to Robert Weismann, vice president and general manager of the video and instrumentation division.

Beumer has been with Ampex since 1956, holding various management positions in manufacturing, prior to which he was employed by Chrysler Corporation in San Leandro, Calif.

Beumer will spend part of his time in Colorado Springs during April and May and will move to Colorado permanently in June. Originally from Royal Oak, Mich., he and his wife and their two children presently live in Centerville, Calif.

Ampex recently arranged to purchase land and announced plans for a manufacturing plant in Colorado Springs. The firm bought 35 acres of land in Rustic Hills Industrial Park and is scheduled to begin construction this spring on a $1 million plant of more than 100,000 square feet. Occupancy of the new plant is scheduled for early 1965.

'Firewater' Is Found in Water Well

SALEM, Ill. (UPI)—The water from his well was making Marion Garrett quite unwell. He found out why Tuesday — the well is full of firewater.

Well, almost.

Geologists told Garrett that his 18-foot well has been polluted with refined gasoline from a leaky underground storage tank.

"If you stick your head in the well, it would knock you over," Garrett said. As an experiment he soaked a brick with water from the well and placed it on a stove. It burned with a "clear blue flame."

Meanwhile, he and his wife have started taking water from the city.

Savage Indians Seize Peruvian Landing Field

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Savage Massco Indians, on the warpath in Manu province on the Bolivian border, have seized the airstrip at Manu Town and are besieging a border ranch, it was reported today.

Six of the 50 defenders of the ranch were reported in serious condition from wounds inflicted by the Indians' poisoned arrows.

Authorities in Duzco and Puerto Maldonado were flying in police reinforcements but it was uncertain immediately whether they would be able to land in view of reported Indian control of the Manu airstrip.

Manu Town, the capital of the province, is 800 miles southeast of Lima. It has a population of about 1,500 persons.

Girl Shoots Her Father During Family Quarrel

A 16-year old girl shot her stepfather in the leg with a .38 caliber revolver Tuesday night after he apparently beat the girl and her mother in a drunken rage, police reported today.

The victim was taken to St. Francis Hospital where the wound was reported to be superficial.

The girl's mother told police her husband had been drinking Tuesday evening and had started to beat her. The girl told her father to "leave mother alone."

The man stopped hitting his wife and started to beat the girl. It was then the girl shot him and ran out of the house, leaving the gun behind, the mother told officers.

When told by his wife, "You shouldn't have been knocking us around," the man grabbed the gun from the top of a washer where his stepdaughter had left it and said, "This is just what I've been waiting for. I'll kill you all."

At this time the woman grabbed her two youngest children and fled from the house, leaving three other children in the house with her husband, she said. One of these three told officers the man called an ambulance and then disposed of the gun outside. Police later found the revolver in a flower bed.

Upon arrival at the hospital, the man was belligerent with attendants and police had to be called to the hospital. The man's wife signed a complaint against him for noise and riotous conduct, breach of the peace and drunkenness. The girl will be handled by juvenile authorities, police said.

No Messages Thru Carson To Alaska

There are no Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) stations active at Ft. Carson, according to Army Signal officials.

Many calls have been received asking for help in reaching relatives in Alaska by radio.

Anyone who has not heard from friends or relatives in the earthquake ravaged area is urged to try first to reach them through civilian channels. Red Cross is available to assist military families too.

Archie Williams, Carson Red Cross field director, said that 150 personal messages have been through Red Cross channels including telegrams flown to Seattle for transmittal.

No replies have been received to the Red Cross at Carson from these messages, Williams said, adding that some of the individuals have had messages apparently as a result.

The Army has advised that no Army personnel or dependents were injured from the earthquake and Army personnel have been urged to write to their families in other states advising them that they are not injured, Williams said.

Atomic Plants Predicted For Low-Cost Fresh Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — By 1975, large combined nuclear power-desalination plants could be pumping out low-cost water along the U.S. coasts, a government task force said today.

Oceanographer Roger Revelle told a news conference that waste heat from the plants could be used to make unpleasantly cold ocean water comfortable for swimming.

Revelle was chairman of the task group, established by the president's Office of Science and Technology to evaluate proposals from the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Laboratory that very large nuclear-electric power plants might be combined with water desalting plants to convert fresh water from sea water at relatively low cost.

Revelle said the technology now exists to produce fresh water from sea water in such huge plants at an estimated cost of 20 to 25 cents per 1,000 gallons. The cost of sea water conversion now is $1 to $1.50 per thousand gallons.

Huge Job of Reconstruction Begun in Ravaged Alaska

By WARD SIMS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—New, chilling stories of earthquake and tidal wave terror mingled with constantly changing casualty figures and promises of aid for the stricken areas of Alaska today.

The loss of life was still undetermined. Figures, gathered independently by various state agencies, changed constantly.

It may be weeks before an accurate count of the dead can be obtained.

State civil defense said its count showed 19 dead and 77 missing and presumed dead, plus 55 injured.

The Coast Guard had one death, at its Cape St. Elias station, which was not included in the civil defense figures. There were unofficial reports of single deaths elsewhere.

Additionally, there were unofficial reports of 31 persons missing who did not show on the civil defense list, including 23 at Chenega, 5 at Port Ashton and 3 at Port Nellie Juan.

In Anchorage, the state's largest city, a bright spring sun warmed crews removing wreckage from the Friday evening quake.

By this morning most debris had been cleared. Workmen

New Cosmic Power Found By Noted Astronomers

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two astronomers say they've discovered an incredibly powerful source of light and radio waves in space. It's an object moving so fast and at such a great distance that current concepts of the universe's size and age have been upset.

Dr. Maarten Schmidt of the Mount Wilson and Palomar observatories said the object, believed to be an exploding galaxy or cluster of galaxies, is the most distant yet seen by man.

"We have had to throw our yardsticks out the window," he said.

Dr. Schmidt discovered the new object with the aid of radio astronomer Thomas A. Matthews. They said it is moving faster than anything ever observed in the heavens — approximately half the speed of light.

Until announcement of the new discovery, astronomers measured the speed and distance of objects by a technique called the "red shift." They said that the faster an object goes, the more its light shifts into the red part of the spectrum.

All distant objects, they said, appear to be going away from our part of the universe. They all seem to go faster — and get redder — the farther they recede.

Astronomers using this method to measure speed and distance, figured the percentage of shift across the spectrum — toward red — equalled the percentage of the speed of light at which the object was traveling.

Thus, if the shift toward red was 1-10th of the way, they figured the object was going about 1-10th the speed of light.

The problem, however, is that they keep finding new objects farther and farther away. The new object, dubbed 3C-147, is believed to be 10 or 20 per cent farther away than the most distant previously known object, called 3C-295.

County Court System Revamped in Colorado

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love signed into law Monday a bill revamping the county court system under the 1962 state constitutional amendment on court reform.

The measure was the last of a series of bills to implement the amendment.

Monday's signing left the governor with 12 bills on his desk, including a 3-cent-per-pack state cigarette tax and the $138.32 million long appropriations bill.

Love said he would probably have all the bills signed by this evening. Thus far, Love has signed 90 measures from the 1964 legislative session and vetoed none.

New Cigarette Tax Bill Signed by Love

DENVER (AP) — A bill exacting a 3-cent tax on each pack of cigarettes was signed into law by Gov. John A. Love today.

It was one of four bills he acted on and brought to 95 the number signed.

The cigarette tax is expected to yield $6 million per year. Municipal officials have protested the tax, arguing this has been an important source of city revenue.

One of the measures signed appropriates $1.5 million for the operation of junior colleges next year. Another was the bill appropriating $138.2 million for state operations in the next fiscal year, including $11.6 for capital construction.

BUILT-IN 'ERROR'

NEW YORK (AP) — At first glance it looks like a mistake. The two 690-foot steel towers that hold up the Verraano Narrows Bridge connecting Brooklyn with Staten Island are 1⅝ inches farther apart at the top than at the bottom.

But according to Steel Facts, published by American Iron and Steel Institute, this is deliberate. It was done to compensate for the curvature of the earth. Each tower to be truly vertical must have its axis point to the center of the earth.

Granite is the oldest stone known to man.

Union Roofers In Two States Go on Strike

George Bruce, business agent for the 50 members of the union in Colorado Springs said this morning that the strike has stopped roofing work on a new hangar at Ft. Carson, on the new junior high school and roofing at the Hewlett-Packard installation, and other smaller jobs.

An estimated 500 union roofers in Colorado and Wyoming are affected by the strike, as well as Local 41 members in all of Yellowstone National Park, 11 counties in Western Nebraska and nine counties in Western South Dakota.

Archie Topping, business representative of Local 41, said the strike vote was unanimous after the roofers and the Associated Roofing Contractors of Colorado failed to reach a new contract to replace the two-year contract which ended last midnight.

Associated Roofing represents major contractors in the state. It is headed by George Canfield of Denver as president and Van Douglass of Pueblo secretary.

Major issue at stake is a request by the union for an increase of 45 cents an hour wage increase over a two-year period. Union roofers presently draw $4.10 an hour, including a deduction made for a welfare plan.

Contractors have offered a wage increase of 15 cents an hour this year and 10 cents an hour in 1965. The offer was rejected by the union.

There are no immediate plans to set up picket lines at job sites or industry shops, union officials said.

Topping said the union will continue signing contracts with independent roofers as negotiations continue with the contractors' association.

Both union and association officials are hopeful of holding another bargaining meeting before a membership meeting next Tuesday night.

could not be located for a statement.

The union filed an intent to strike with the Industrial Commission of Colorado and contractors were notified on March 2. Union members and contractors have been negotiating on a new contract for the past two months.

Roger Lohse, secretary of the contractor's association, said that at the Tuesday night meeting, the union was offered a 25-cent wage increase over two years, a vacation plan and a health and welfare plan. The offer was rejected by the union, according to Lohse.

Lohse said that the union had requested that money be withheld from the workers' pay to finance vacations and that the contractors agreed to go along with this in Tuesday night's offer. In addition, Lohse said, the contractors agreed to pay 10 cents toward a health and welfare plan.

The proposal was made to the union at 11 p.m. and was rejected shortly afterward, the association secretary said.

Lohse said the union brought back its own proposal at about 12:25 a.m., in which it requested an additional five cents in wages, a change in the foreman clause, and "another article" in the present agreement which hadn't previously been mentioned.

"Frankly," Lohse said, "we thought we had really bent over backward for them. We thought the vacation thing was quite an issue and was their major strike item, but found out last night that it wasn't."

Lohse laid part of the blame for the failure of the contractors and the union members to reach an early agreement to the recent merger of Local 107 of Colorado Springs with Local 9 of Denver.

He said negotiations had begun on Jan. 14, and that by the next meeting the merger had taken place. He said this was the first time in 60 years the sheet metal workers have been on strike in Colorado Springs.

Huge Reconstruction Job Is Launched in Alaska

were preparing to remove what items of value they could from condemned buildings and start the mammoth job of reconstruction.

In Washington, federal agencies charged with meeting the emergencies of natural disaster were under orders from President Johnson to hurry relief. Supplies were being rushed to the ravaged south central section of the state in a giant airlift by military and commercial planes.

The Air Force, Navy and Military Air Transport Service flew to both Anchorage and Kodiak. Four commercial airlines—Northwest, Alaska, Pacific Northern and Pan American—carried tons of food, hardware and clothing.

Edward A. McDermott, the President's director of emergency planning, was attempting to determine how much federal relief could be made available under existing programs and what new legislation would be required to restore the state stricken by the temblor and sea waves.

The Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency announced plans to open an emergency office in Anchorage to speed programs of the Community Facilities Administration, the Federal Housing Administration and the Urban Renewal Administration.

Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said he would offer legislation to permit the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries to lease or purchase fishing boats along the Pacific Coast for fishermen in the disaster area.

Alaska Gov. William A. Egan said it may be necessary to call a special session of the state legislature next fall to meet problems of reduced tax income and increased state spending resulting from the tragedy.

The legislature recessed last Friday night after the quake. It was scheduled to resume Friday but Egan said the re-opening might be delayed.

"In the latter part of September or October we might have a clear picture of the state and its tax picture," the governor said. "Then it might be necessary to call a special session, but not before then."

Check Up Made On NORAD's Electronic Eye

A new electronic eye that will become a major element in the North American Air Defense Command's space surveillance system has completed its first physical checkup.

The giant satellite-tracking facility, a transmitter-receiver building, is being built at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., by the radio division of Bendix Corp., under a $30 million Air Force contract.

As a result of the official Air Force checkup and final building inspection of the facility, announced over the weekend, the installation completion date and power turn on is expected about the first of July.

A nine-month evaluation and testing period will follow immediately and full system operational completion is expected between Nov. 1, 1964, and Jan. 1, 1965, the Air Force said.

The over-all program will be completed by April 1, 1965.

The facility is scheduled to join the global network of radar, radio and optical sensors of the Space Detection and Tracking System, which is under operational control of NORAD.

SPADATS has the mission of detecting, tracking and cataloguing all man-made objects in space. Contributors of its information include U.S. Navy and Air Force and Royal Canadian Air Force sensors, as well as civilian and government agencies.

Space surveillance data from the network is collected at the SPADATS operations center, a part of NORAD's combat operations center here.

By keeping track of what objects are now in space, the Canadian-U.S. aerospace defense command knows when any new satellites have been put into orbit.

More than 400 objects are now orbiting the earth, according to the space traffic catalogue in the SPADATS operations center.

The building at Eglin housing the radar system is 13 stories high and more than a city block long.

The radar system utilizes an electronic scanning technique called phased array—a method of scanning space with radar without any movement of the antenna. Its beams scan electronically.

Multiple receivers and transmitters make it possible to track many satellites, up to altitudes of several thousand miles, in one glance.

The facility "can detect, track, identify and catalogue orbiting satellites," according to the Air Force announcement.

The computer-controlled system can "remember" what it has seen through a number of automatically formed beam patterns that can be steered or aimed electronically.

The Air Force said it will provide a major improvement in satellite detection and tracking capability and, along with the space-tracking optical-sensor program, also will provide a system to meet future needs.

Security Couple Hear From Son In Anchorage

Letters from the relatives of residents of the Pikes Peak Region have begun trickling in from quake-shattered Alaska. And to those who receive them the news for the most part is good. For those who are still waiting, the suspense is almost unbearable.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester D. Hall of 81 Hayes Dr., Security, have received a letter from their son, Jon, 27, who lives in Anchorage. The waiting is over for this couple.

But for Mrs. Kenneth (Mattie) Olsen, supervisor of the title department of the El Paso County Clerk and Recorder's office, there is no news, as yet, of her brother and his wife who are in the restaurant business in Anchorage.

In his letter to his parents written Saturday, Jon Hall writes, and we quote:

"Just a note to let you know I'm alright.

"All that happened in those few minutes a little over 24 hours ago is still hard to believe. The magnitude of the quake is impossible to comprehend. The radio just announced that the quake expelled 10 million times the energy expelled in the Hiroshima atom bomb. No wonder I left my finger prints in that light pole I was holding up. Ha! I was eating supper in the restaurant when the quake started. It started slow and steadily built up. By the time I got outside to my light pole the restaurant was already sinking. A huge crack appeared about three feet from me and swallowed about three blocks of downtown Anchorage. Needless to say I decided to let my light pole look out for itself and I headed for parts unknown. My car is in that crack somewhere.

"It's hard to explain really. Seeing the ground and streets ripple like big waves of water. Up and down, side to side. Buildings swaying from side to side like little rubber toys, when down they came. Huge cracks appeared all over the Anchorage area and the ground heaves in jagged chunks like ice on a river. I really can't explain it. If I'd have had a car last night I would probably be in Colorado by now but I wasn't about to go down in that crack after it. Ha.

"The small number of deaths and casualties is unbelievable compared with the vast destruction evident everywhere you look."

A personal message followed and Jon Hall closed the letter which told his parents he had survived one of the nation's most devastating natural disasters.

Young Hall went to Alaska on vacation, found work and remained on what his mother called "an extended vacation." The Hall's have one other child, a married daughter who lives in Denver.

BALANCING BUS

SALERNO, Italy (UPI) — A bus carrying 23 German women tourists hung for more than half an hour on the edge of a 160-foot precipice near here Tuesday before a crane retrieved it.

The bus went out of control on a slippery road, crashed into a car and came to rest in uneasy balance on the edge of a drop-off. Five of the women and the drivers of the bus and car were injured.

telephone with Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida and had been assured Mrs. Peabody was safe and well. The governor said his brother, the Rev. George L. Peabody of New York, was flying to Florida.

The jailing of the governor's mother came shortly after policemen brought out dogs to chase Negro youths from the dining room of the plush old Ponce de Leon hotel in the downtown area. This brought to nearly 200 the number of arrests since a desegregation campaign started Easter weekend.

A planned demonstration Tuesday night was not staged, but Hosea Williams, integration leader from Savannah, Ga., said marches were set for today and tonight. He listed Negro demands for halting the demonstrations.

The demands, unanimously agreed to by about 350 persons at a church meeting Tuesday night, include the dropping of charges against students, desegregation of public accommodations and tax-supported facilities, equal employment and creation of a biracial committee.

"These demands must be met before we will stop demonstrating," said Williams, an official in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Mrs. Peabody had declined to expose herself to arrest before police dogs were used to round up Negro demonstrators at the hotel. Policemen brought in the dogs after the Negroes pushed their way into the hotel, sat at tables and refused to leave.

Released on $750 bond was another Massachusetts sympathizer, Mrs. John Burgess of Newton Center, Mass., wife of a Negro bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

Mrs. Burgess urged Negroes at the mass meeting to pray on the steps of Trinity Episcopal church where Mrs. Peabody and two companions were turned away from Easter communion service.

Mrs. Burgess said that when she got the opportunity to come to St. Augustine with three other churchwomen from the Boston area, she came prepared to go to jail.

Byron Cowert Retires From U.S. Army Tuesday

At a brief ceremony Tuesday, Byron Cowert retired from the U.S. Army after more than 20 years of service.

Brig. Gen. Stebbins Griffith, USAF deputy chief of staff for intelligence, NORAD, officiated in the mustering out ceremonies and wished the former lieutenant colonel the best in his new position as research and business director of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Cowert is in charge of the Chamber's industrial department in the temporary absence of William Carraway.

The Nation's Weather

Snow occurred in the middle Atlantic states with one to two inches of new snow during the early morning hours in the Washington D. C. area.

The temperature was unseasonably cold from the Great Lakes Region and Ohio Valley through the mid and north Atlantic states.

Minimum temperatures this morning were a little below zero in northern Michigan and northern New England.

Cleveland recorded 10 above and this was the lowest for so late in the spring and also the coldest for the month of April with the previous record of 11 set in 1923.

Lowest temperatures for so late in the spring were also set at Akron and Canton, Ohio, with 11 degrees and at Newport, Vt., with a two below zero.

April showers occurred over the Pacific coast region and inland through Idaho and Nevada. Sandberg, Calif., had 1.22 inches of rain in six hours.

Broadmoor Pastor Named to Merit System Council

The Rev. George W. Otto, pastor of the Broadmoor Community Church, has been appointed to the Merit System Council by Gov. John A. Love.

The Rev. Mr. Otto, of 1013 Arcturus Dr., is succeeding Donald Buck of LaJunta. The term will expire Nov. 28, 1966.

Other appointments announced Tuesday by Gov. Love included:

Simon F. Elliott, Pueblo, State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers, expiring April 1, 1968.

Mrs. Dora Piccoli, Durango, reappointed to Anti-Discrimination Commission, expiring March 13, 1968. This must be confirmed by the State Senate.

Canadian Gunmen Rob $400,000 From Postal Truck

MONTREAL (UPI) — Seven masked gunmen held up a post office truck here Tuesday night and escaped with 10 bags of registered mail believed to contain as much as $400,000 in cash.

A second mail truck was robbed two hours later in a nearby suburb, but the amount of the loot was not immediately determined. Authorities believe the same gang engineered both holdups.

The mail truck was without arms and without guards. Postal trucks have been used as transfer vehicles for as much as $42 million in one trip here in the theory armored vehicles tend to attract attention to their contents.

Less than two hours after the postal holdup, the second mail truck was robbed in Caughnawaga, an Indian village on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River across from the Montreal suburb of LaSalle.

22 Cops Charged With Accepting Rackets Bribes

Marion County grand jury Tuesday.

The investigation had been triggered when an adding machine tape with names written beside alleged payoff figures was found in the wallet of Isaac (Tuffy) Mitchell, convicted kingpin of the Indianapolis numbers racket.

Mitchell and his righthand man, Van Wert Mullin, are serving federal prison terms for gambling tax violations.

The accused were among 27 policemen who had testified before the grand jury. They were told to surrender at the Marion County Jail.

The policemen were charged with two counts of bribery, which on conviction carries a prison term of 2-14 years and a fine up to $10,000.

The Board of Safety, without comment, quickly approved the retirement applications of Capt. Lawrence Gigerich, Capt. Wilbert Gruner, Lt. Osa Woodall and Sgt. Robert Stiegelmeyer. They were the only ones of the 22 with the 20 years of service necessary to qualify for retirement benefits.

Police Chief Noel A. Jones said all 22 had been "excused from service" on the police force, with dates for hearings before a board of captains to be set later.

Award Judges To Check AFA Dining Hall

A team of four experts from the food service industry will "taste their way around" the Air Force Academy's Airman Dining Hall Thursday.

The four members of the Hennessy Award judging committee, represent Air Force and civilian food service organizations.

Each year the Hennessy Trophy, named in honor of John L. Hennessy, appointed food service advisor by President Roosevelt during World War II, is awarded to the best Air Force dining halls in two categories.

For the past two years, the Academy facility has been first runnerup in the single unit category.

The dining hall staff of 19 military and 17 civilian personnel prepares more than 300,000 meals annually.

Co-sponsors of the awrd are the National Cafeteria Manager's Association, the Food Services Executives Association, and the National Restaurant Associaton. Winners will be announced at restaurant association's convention May 24.

Armed Forces Day Program to Have One Open House

The annual Armed Forces Day open house program at Peterson Field is expected to attract four times the usual number of visitors this year, Lt. Col. Mac Vickrey, area armed forces project officer, today told military representatives attending the initial planning meeting for the May 16 event.

Fort Carson's participation will be severely limited because of the 5th Infantry Division's participation in the U.S. Strike Command's "Exercise Desert Strike," said Col. Vickrey.

"The Air Force Academy, while planning to participate in the downtown parade, will not hold an open house program," he added, explaining that Peterson Field will hold the only major observance in the Pikes Peak Region.

The open house, featuring an air show and a performance by the local Sky Divers Parachute Club, will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on May 16. The parade is scheduled to begin in Colorado Springs at 11 a.m. and will be followed by the annual Chamber of Commerce luncheon at 12 o'clock noon.

Brazilian Revolt Spreads Against Leftist President

clared they had swung to the rebel cause.

Justice Minister Abelardo Jurema announced that units of the still-loyal 3rd Army had been sent from Rio Grande do Sul to attack the rebellious 2nd Army's base in the industrial center of Sao Paulo, 220 miles southwest of Rio.

Goulart also ordered troops to move against Juiz de Fora, in Minas Gerais State 80 miles north of Rio where the revolt erupted Tuesday, and against Belo Horizonte, the capital of Minas Gerais. A rebel radio proclaimed Juiz de Fora the revolutionary capital.

Rebel broadcasts said the vanguard of the 2nd Army commanded by Gen. Amaury Kruel and a force of 30,000 led by Gen. Olimpio Mourao, commander of the 4th Military Region at Belo Horizonte, were converging on Rio de Janeiro to try to depose Goulart.

A proclamation announcing their switch to the rebel cause was signed by the chief of staff and Gens. Arthur da Costa y Silva and Decio Palmeiro Escobar.

It charged that Goulart had "placed himself in open illegality through successive attempts against the just practice of the democratic regime."

Downtown Rio was virtually deserted this morning as a general strike, called by the Communist-dominated general confederation of workers in support of Goulart, paralyzed transport.

Government trains operating out of Rio were stopped and interstate buses were halted.

The chief of the Commercial Aviators Union went on the government network to urge pilots, navigators and other commercial aviation employes to stay off the job today.

International wireless companies continued operating.

The Merchant Marine Union, dock workers and other maritime workers joined the strike in Rio. A spokesman for the union said all merchant ships had been placed at Goulart's disposal.

The newspaper Correio de Manha said War Minister Jair Dantas de Ribeiro, convalescing from a kidney operation, suffered a hemorrhage during the night and was in serious condition. Earlier he had issued a bedside communique saying he was resuming his post in support of Goulart.

Gov. Ademhar de Barros of Sao Paulo State, long-time foe of Goulart, broadcast claims that six states had joined in the revolt and were sending troops against Rio.

Thirty tanks circled the War Ministry in Rio and additional troops reinforced the city's garrison.

Goulart's government announced a three-day nationwide school holiday.

Quine Fines Man $10 On Driving Charges

Albert William Van Engen, 38, 1615 Marquita Dr., was fined $10 and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Tuesday for disregarding a stop sign and driving with an expired operator's license. State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey ticketed him March 13 on 8th Street.

Edward L. Clark, 24, Ft. Carson, received a $5 fine and costs for having an expired temporary permit. He was cited Saturday on Colorado Highway 115 by State Patrolman N. Beals.

Two Witnesses Say Suspect Robbed Store

He said the trio came in about 8:10 a.m. and all were wearing gray sweatshirts with hoods. Coy and Thomas both had guns, according to the witness, and Thomas shoved a gun in his side while he was ordered to open four registers. Thomas scooped the money out.

Then Coy, Brinson continued, pointed his gun at him and marched him across to the safe which he opened and Thomas again took the cash. During the incident, said the witness, the employees were all ordered to lie on the floor.

After the safe had been emptied, the witness and the employees were all herded at gunpoint into the cooler. They remained there for a few minutes and then opened the door and Brinson telephoned the sheriff's office.

During cross examination by counsel for the defense, Darrell Thomas, the witness testified that he had refused to talk to Thomas in four occasions prior to the trial. He gave no reason saying "I didn't think it made that much difference." "What are you trying to hide," the attorney demanded? "I have a lot of work to do," was the reply.

A former employee of the story, Beverly Estridge also testified and identified Coy. During examination by Thomas she admitted seeing Coy's picture on television and saying to her husband, "That must be the man who robbed the store."

The court recessed at 5 p.m. and reconvened this morning at eight. It is expected that the case will go to the jury late this afternoon.

Quick Oil Shale Development Is Urged by Love

DENVER (AP) — Earliest possible development of an oil shale industry was termed essential Monday by Gov. John A. Love in a letter to Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall.

Love said that early development is "essential to assuring a solid long-range supplement to our domestic petroleum supply."

The governor's letter was mailed to Udall Friday and made public late Monday after it was presumed that the interior secretary had received it.

The 12-page document was composed by a committee of about a dozen oil experts, many from the petroleum industry. It was written in reply to Udall's request for suggestions on formulation of a program for the development of federally owned oil shale deposits in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming.

The letter blamed U.S. Interior Department delay in processing oil shale patent applications as one of the principal impediments in the development of the fledgling industry.

Another large impediment, Love said, was the unavailibility of publicly owned deposits.

The governor suggested that the first step in developing oil shale would be to make a large part of the federally-owned lands available to industry for exploration, research and development.

To do this, a 1930 executive order would have to be revoked. The order withdraws oil shale deposits from disposal.

Suggested also is the immediate offering—for lease under competitive bidding—of representative high-grade tracts of oil shale lands.

Firms obtaining the leases would be required to spend at least $1 million a year for the second three years of the leasehold on research leading to a program for the commercial extraction of oil from the shale.

The required expenditure would attempt to prevent lessees from holding lands in idleness.

The governor suggested also that royalties on oil from shale be set initially at 5 per cent of the market value. The 5 per cent would continue for the first 20 years of the lease, after which the royalty would be the same as then established under leases granted at that time.

PRE-HISTORIC BEETLE

VERONA, Italy (AP) — A blind, ten-legged beetle which experts say is virtually a living fossile, has been found at the bottom of the 2,650-foot deep Splurga Del Preta Caverns north of here.

Scientists say they do not know its name or species and that it does not resemble any kind of beetle presently known. They said it probably was a left-over species which had been living in the lightless abyss since the end of the mesozoic period 70 million years ago.

Brazilian Leftist President Says He Won't Quit

By FRANK BRUTTO

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — President Joao Goulart warned opponents Monday night he will not modify his reform program and charged that foreign money is helping finance the campaign against him.

The leftist president spoke out in a nationwide television address which followed criticism of his decision, later reversed, not to punish mutinous sailors who joined in a Communist-inspired passive rebellion.

"There is no force capable of turning us aside from our program," Goulart said amid a deepening crisis of economic and political troubles, runaway inflation, labor unrest and increasing Communist influence.

The social and constitutional reforms Goulart vowed to push through Congress would facilitate land reform, give the vote to 20 million illiterate Brazilians, clear the way for legalization of the outlawed Communist party and broaden presidential powers.

Goulart, who has enlisted leftists, nationalists and Communists in his reform campaign, claimed propaganda against him is financed by illicit remittances by big foreign companies.

He said money for his foes also is coming from foreign drug manuafcturers and international petroleum companies, dishonest merchants, usurious landlords and big landowners.

Attacking a Roman Catholic campaign against communism and his government, Goulart declared: "I will not permit that the religion of my parents and my family to be used as a political instrument."

The church has called for a public march in Rio Thursday. Paulo March 19 brought more than 500,000 Catholics into the streets singing and praying in what a leader called defense of democratic institutions.

Goulart's conservative opponents accuse him of trying to set up a dictatorship and working out constitutional changes so that he can run in the presidential election in October 1965. Goulart charges his foes with plotting to overthrow him.

Goulart declared the people are behind him and said "nobody any more can delude himself with coups against the government."

Goulart's speech came on the same day the U.S. State Department in Washington said he has allowed Communists to make significant gains, that his government has moved closer to the Communist bloc in trade and diplomacy, and that the over-all situation in Brazil has steadily deteriorated.

'Faulty Compass' Is Blamed for Straying Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A faulty compass pointing north when it should have read northeast has been blamed for causing an RB66 reconnaissance plane to stray into East Germany where it was downed by the Russians.

The three-man crew of the U.S. Air Force jet bomber parachuted to safety March 10 after their plane was shot down by Soviet fighters.

It was learned Monday that an investigation is under way in Weisbaden, West Germany by an Air Force board of inquiry. It is too early to know whether there will be any disciplinary action against the crew, which has been released by the Russians.

However, the commander of the RB 66's reconnaissance wing has been transferred to a new job which was not considered a promotion.

The Defense Department confirmed that Col. Arthur Small was replaced March 25 as commander of the 10th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Alconbury, England.

Small was made assistant deputy chief of staff for operations at 17th Air Force Headquarters in Ramstein, Germany.

President Johnson said Saturday that stern instructions have been given in an effort to prevent a recurrence of U.S. planes straying over Communist territory.

Angus Growers Schedule Yearly Talks in Iowa

Cattlemen in the Pikes Peak Region who are interested in Angus cattle are invited to attend the 10th annual American Angus Conference at Iowa State University, Ames, May 31-June 1.

Theme of the conference will be "Trends in the Expanding Beef Industry."

Keynote speaker of this year's meeting will be Dr. A. D. Weber, vice president of Kansas State University, Manhattan, one of the world's best known livestock experts.

Featured subjects on the conference program will include a panel discussion on planned breeding programs. Dr. Doyle Chambers of Oklahoma State University will lead the discussions. Other talks will cover merchandising feeder calves, financing beef cow herds, the value of using better bulls, and boosting consumption of quality beef.

A highlight of the conference will be a display of sire progeny groups of bulls from a number of Iowa herds. Complete production records and type scores of the bulls and their sires and dams will be presented. Cattlemen attending will have an opportunity to participate in a detailed study of these animals by acting as discriminating bull buyers.

Concluding the conference will be a study of factors affecting the value of beef carcasses. A demonstration will be given showing the simplicity of obtaining carcass evaluation information about the progeny of Angus herd bulls.

The carcass work will be done in the university's meat laboratory and the audience will watch from their seats in the auditorium of the Union Building on the campus by means of closed circuit television.

Texan Shows Grand, Reserve Champion Hogs

LAMAR, Colo. (AP) — A hog breeder from Ralls, Tex., showed both the grand champion and the reserve grand champion of the All-America Market Hog Show here Friday.

Ernest Harris, the exhibitor, won both titles with his Hampshires. The two animals also were judged the supreme grand and reserve champions—best of both the senior and junior divisions.

The show is sponsored by the Prowers County Farm Bureau and extension service. Saturday's events include carcass judging and the litter mate hog sale.

Friday's results:

Senior show—

Poland China: 1. Schaef Brothers, Canadian, Tex. 2, McCurdy School, Santa Cruz, N.M. 3, Emmit Kreutziger, Hooker, Okla.

Hampshire, heavyweight: 1. Ernest Harris, Ralls, Tex. 2, Parks Tucker, Midlothian, Tex. 3, Harris.

Grand champion: Harris.

Junior show—

Grand champion: Skidgel.

Repeal of Inventory Tax Urged in State

DENVER (AP) — Irving S. Hook, Denver city councilman, urged Gov. John A. Love today to consider repeal of the state inventory tax.

Hook proposed a state-operated sweepstakes be substituted to make up for the lost revenue which he estimated at $15.6 million. A constitutional amendment approved by the voters would be necessary to make a sweepstakes legal.

Hook proposed that the governor place the proposal on his call for a special legislative session. Only bingo games and apri-mutuel wagering on horses and greyhounds are legal under state gambling laws.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

HOLLYWOOD. — Hugh O'Brien, in town until Lana Turner recuperates, tells me he bought 20 acres in Acapulco. He said: "In about six months you'll be able to fly direct from do Sam Spiegel's "The Chase." several little parcels of land around the world. It's fun visiting them."

Sometime in the near future Hugh will tackle Broadway again, this time playing Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln with Helen Hayes in "The Presidents and Their Ladies," with Burl Ives alternating as Adams, Franklin and Teddy Roosevelt. One thing that attracted Hugh was the limited 14-week run which won't keep him tied up too long. . . .

Vince (Dr Casey) Edwards is off to start his shows for next season. He wants six months off beginning in December to do Sam Spiegel's "The Chase," which Lillian Hellman is now writing. There are five big male stars among them Marlon Brando, Bill Holden, and Peter O'Toole.

H. ALLEN SMITH called Paul Henning to say he was a fan of his show and plans to write a magazine article defending the popularity of the Beverly Hillbillies. He thinks it's a great social commentary. During their conversation, Smith mentioned he was off to Palm Springs to hear his old friend, Gene Austin, sing at the Melody Ranch. Henning broke into radio in 1932 imitating Austin, so he sneaked off last Friday and went down to hear him, too . . .

For the girl who has everything: Cheryl Holdridge, the next Mrs. Lance Reventlow got a seven-year acting deal at Universal-International, plus a royal welcome from Lance's mother, Barbara Hutton. And speaking of them that has, Art Linkletter rushed off to a board of directors meeting in Nassau for his drilling company which has brought in 20 out of 23 oil wells in a big field in the Argentine.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK gave the late Peter Lorre his first English-speaking part in "The Man Who Knew Too Much" in 1935. "He had a great sense of humor," Hitchcock said. "We were always playing practical jokes on each other. He once sent me 100 canaries." Hitch thinks Bette Davis and Joan Crawford are making a mistake trying to repeat their "Baby Jane" success. "It's like blowing up a balloon," he said. "If you keep on blowing it's bound to explode in your face. When I finish a picture, I go off in the opposite direction and change styles. That's why there's variety in my work—'Rebecca,' 'Psycho,' 'North by Northwest,' 'The Trouble with Harry.'"

RICHARD HARRIS and Jim Hutton are arguing on the "Major Dundee" set in Mexico. They share a car. Hutton thought it was his turn, drove the car to the airport, and took off for Acapulco. Harris was supposed to have it that weekend. He's not a guy to take these inconveniences lying down. They've been there for six weeks and have another five to go. . . .

Cy Howard sold his story, "Community Property," to Jack Warner. Frank Sinatra will star and produce following "None but the Brave." . . .

Rex Harrison has agreed to star in "Yellow Rolls Royce" for M-G-M. Most of the picture will be made here, but his scenes will be filmed in England. I wish Metro would change that title. Whoever heard of a yellow Rolls?

Karl Malden may have to quit acting. After I wrote about his plans to do drama workshops in colleges, he received 22 more offers and they're still coming in. He accepted three dates: Kansas State Teachers, Eastern New Mexico University, and Midland in Fremont, Neb. Karl represents our State Department at the Argentina Film festival, yet none of his pictures is being shown. . .

Traffic Tickets Of Diplomats Stir U.S. Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP)—On top of crises from Cyprus to Southeast Asia, the State Department is battling a local blaze over foreign diplomats' traffic tickets.

The department's grand design is to cut down on scofflaw parking by Washington's diplomatic colony and thus assuage irate District of Columbia citizens.

It is driving ahead gingerly, though, for diplomatic tempers have flared and the department wants to snuff out the blaze before it spreads far in retaliation against American envoys abroad.

Some U.S. emissaries have been singed already. They are the 30 at the U.S. Embassy at Manila. A squad of city motorcycle policemen specially assigned to the job wrote about 100 traffic tickets for U.S. diplomats Tuesday.

Manila Mayor Antonio Villegas hinted that in "reciprocity" for the Washington traffic ticket policy he might even turn off the water for the U.S. Embassy swimming pool and tear down the facade of the embassy office building in Manila.

No tickets have been issued to Philippine diplomats here since the ruling went into effect March 16. Forty-six offenders from other embassies paid traffic tickets in this period — 159 ignored tickets.

There are about 2,000 cars with diplomatic license tags in Washington. No figure has been given out on the total of U.S. autos with diplomatic tags abroad, but some 14,000 U.S. government civilians and military attaches are assigned around the world. Many have cars. Some have swimming pools, too.

The ruckus began in Washington after the State Department found the number of diplomatic auto violations here had jumped to 8,000 in 1963, more than double the 1962 crop.

The offending diplomats had been given only warnings because of diplomatic immunity.

Early last month the department sent to the approximately 100 ambassadors here a note with this shocker: Regular tickets would be issued for parking violations and anyone not paying his fines would get no new diplomatic license plates—D.C. plates with "DPL" lettering and a low number.

The diplomats reacted quickly and unhappily. They vouched that most are law-abiding, complained to the department of lack of parking space and protested about the publicity.

Some predicted widescale retaliation against American envoys overseas if the department stayed tough.

After meeting with representatives of the Washington diplomatic colony last week, the department retreated a bit. It promised to work hard to increase diplomatic parking spaces and said no tickets would be enforced on violations if the diplomatic offender said he was on official business.

The department stresses that American diplomats abroad are under orders to obey local traffic rules and promptly pay any parking fines—out of their own pockets.

Official Clock Set Back a Bit of Time

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The nation's official clock was set back 1-10 of a second today.

The National Bureau of Standards took the action because the earth is slowing down. Drag of the tides, the moon and other braking factors were listed as reasons.

A spokesman said earthquakes and volcanic eruptions also account for deceleration and, "Don't forget the kick every satellite gives the earth when boosted off and when it breaks out of the atmosphere."

The last time U.S. time was changed officially was Nov. 1, 1963.

IN CASE OF FINANCIAL PUNCTURE GET A BANK RATE LOAN

If you're like most people, you've given up the idea of being the richest man in town. But chances are you're still interested in how you can get the things you need for yourself and your family. A suggestion to the wise is this: Borrow where you pay a low rate of interest. And that's at your bank, where rates are traditionally lower. Get a Bank Rate Loan to reduce the cost of borrowing. FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere. Adv.

Theta Alumnae Announce Benefit Dinner Party

For their April meeting, the Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae will hold a benefit dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 7 at the home of Mrs. Clyde Blake, 2525 Parkview Blvd. The proceeds from the dinner will be used as the club's contribution to the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kan.

The Institute is the largest residential clinic of its kind and does 80 per cent of its work on a charitable basis. The name Logopedics was fashioned from two Greek words meaning "word" and "children." The purpose of the Institute is to give children the ability to speak. The Institute is the national philanthropy of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and Theta is the largest single contributor to the Institute.

In addition to the fine Italian dinner, election of officers will be held followed by a brief installation ceremony. Mrs. William Krueger, president, will conduct the brief business meeting and election.

All Kappa Alpha Thetas in the region are invited to attend this dinner. Reservations for Thetas and their friends and guests can be made by calling Mrs. Ray Holt, 635-5267 or Mrs. William Krueger, 635-7632 by Friday, April 3.

Rainbow Girls Honor Glen Eyrie Matron, Patron

Pikes Peak Assembly 4, Order of the Rainbow for Girls held a special meeting Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple, with Sharon Brown, worthy advisor, presiding. Doris England filled in at the Station of Service, Addie Maharg as Faith, Emma Maharg as Marshal, Sue Anderson as patriotism, and Janice Wray as Outer observer, in the absence of the regular officers.

Sandra Martin and Emma Maharf were presented as past worth advisors, and Mrs. Marie Kord and Mrs. Helen White were introduced and honored as past mother advisors.

Members of Glen Eyrie Chapter 8, OES, attended, including Worthy Matron, Mrs. Mildred Zimmerman and Worthy patron, Lloyd Castanion, who were accorded honors.

Candy and Roberta Hurst, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hurst were initiated and Betty Duncan of Security joined by affiliation.

Mrs. Marie Kord presided in the Service of Majority, in which Miss Karen Wilkins received a beautiful ceremony.

A light supper was served in the banquet room.

A public ceremony will be held April 15, following the stated meeting of Centennial Chapter. The public is invited to attend this ceremony at 9 p.m.

When you are marinating (for sauerbraten) use a crock or an enamel pan for the meat and the spicy vinegar solution.

Girl Scout Troop Takes All-Day Hike

Girls Scout Troop 246 of Whittier School took an allday hike Saturday, thru the Garden of the Gods and up the Rampart Range Road.

Members worked on their gypsy badges and each girl carried her own lunch and water. A review on tying knots was presented by Erma Gaither, Shea Glebocki and Michele Peed.

A review on handling a knife was given by Linda Norman, and Debbie Patterson, and the use of the compass was reviewed by Carol Bontrager and Mary Hansen.

A trail was laid by Becky Clark, Pat Musick, and Gale Murray, and members followed the trail in groups of two or three.

Troop leader Mrs. Margaret Murray and Mrs. Archie Musick accompanied the troop.

BRIDAL SHOWER — Miss Margo Metzler, center, whose marriage to Don Yunker of Los Angeles will be a July event, was the inspiration for a miscellaneous shower given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Grant Winne, 1218 N. Fleet Reserve and Ladies Report Joint Activities

The Pikes Peak Branch of the Fleet Reserve Association and the ladies' Auxiliary held their regular monthly meeting March 25 at the Naval Reserve Training Center.

Ten members and three guests were present for the Auxiliary meeting. They were Marguerite McAnalley, Barbara Laney and Mrs. Harvey Geibe. During the business meeting it was decided to contribute $5 to the Scholarship Fund which was started by the National President of the Auxiliary. The ladies also decided to make a contribution to help cover the expenses incurred by the LAFRA in conducting a Pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Mast of the USS Maine, at Arlington National Cemetery.

The grab bag gift was won by Margaret Stokes. It was a box of very unusual greeting cards.

Eight members and three guests were present at the branch meeting. They were George Skonce, USAF (ret), J. S. Orsak, USA (ret) and Donald Laney, USN (ret.). Mr. Skonce and Mr. Orsak are members of the local Retired Enlisted Association. Mr. Skonce explained the purpose of their organization. It was announced that John H. Stang, Regional Vice President (West Coast) of the Fleet Reserve Assn. plans to visit Branch 269's April meeting. Mr. Stang resides in San Francisco.

Special entertainment was provided by the "Flapperettes" preceding the business sessions of the Branch and Auxiliary. The "Flaperettes" are a Charleston team including Joan Rowland, Connie Truett, Martha Keith and Mary Metcalf. Refreshments, furnished by Emma Lupton and Dagmire Campbell, were served at the close of the business meetings.

A luncheon in the Penrose Room in the Broadmoor Hotel is planned for April 23. Contact Iris Johnson, 392-7617 or Emma Lupton, 495-4116 for reservations.

The next meeting of Branch 269 and the Auxiliary will be held Wednesday, April 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Naval Reserve Training Center. All men and women who are eligible for membership in the association are invited to attend. For further information, call Mr. Bangs at 392-5793 or Mrs. Metcalf at 495-2025.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ◇

Declarer's blind spot in today's hand induced him to stub his toe when he was on the very brink of triumph.

North's two club response is, of course, the artificial method employed to probe for a major suit fit after an opening bid of one notrump. South is expected to show a four card major if he has one, and to bid two diamonds if he does not. Observe that North is not in position to bid spades directly himself, for a response of two spades is reserved for a hand containing less than eight high card points; whereas a jump to three spades promises a minimum of 10 points.

West opened the queen of diamonds and, when the dummy appeared, South experienced a slight regret at not being in three notrump. With eight top winners, he need score but one trick in clubs to increase the total to nine.

Declarer decided his best chance was to strip the hand and compel his opponents to do some of his work for him. He proceeded to win the diamond lead in the dummy and then drew the trumps in three rounds. A diamond was led to the ace and a diamond ruff completed the preliminary operations.

A club was led from the dummy and the jack was inserted from the closed hand, losing to the queen. West was reluctant to open up the heart suit, so he exited with a club. East played the ace and another club and South was back in.

Declarer led a small heart from his hand in the hope that West had the king in which case dummy's queen would stand up for the 10th trick. East turned up with the missing high card, however, an South could not avoid losing another trick.

Had declarer cashed the ace first, and then led the small heart, East would have had the dubious choice of returning either a club or a diamond, enabling South to discard his remaining heart as he ruffed in the other hand.

CFG Summer Day Camp Announced

Several innovations have been added to this summer's day camp sponsored by the Pikes Peak Area Council of Camp Fire Girls. The two sessions will be June 8 to 12 and June 15 to 19.

The paid position of assistant day camp director is open for application to former counselors and other women with experience in group work and camp crafts. Detailed information on all staff positions is available at the council office.

Staff training will be given in May and June. A nursery for the young children of staff will be provided at the camp site.

Campers will meet for their group activities at the new camp site south of Colorado Springs which has been made available to the council. An extra half hour has been added to the daily sessions so that the girls will have additional time for their program of hiking and exploration, outdoor skills, sports and games, handcrafts, singing and dancing.

"American Pioneers" will be the day camp theme, with campers learning about the early explorers of our country as they carry out their activities. Each small group will be responsible for planning much of its own program under the guidance of trained volunteer counselors.

A mid-week overnight is offered as an optional extra for Camp Fire, Junior High and Horizon Club members.

Girls and their parents may contact their group leaders for registration forms. Application must be made at the Council office located on the third floor of Hibbard & Co., 635-2525.

Volunteer staff applications are being accepted now at the council office. Group counselors are leaders, mothers and other adult women who guide the girls in their outdoor fun and skills. Counselors must be at least 19, and current or prior membership in Camp Fire is not required.

Girls aged 14 to 17 may apply as program aides.

TO VISIT FINNS

HELSIMKI, Finland (UPI) — President Tito of Yugoslavia will visit Finland in early June, the Finnish Foreign Ministry announced Tuesday. He will be returning the visit to Yugoslavia last summer by President Urho Kekkonen.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Sinners and Saints

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give a couple of poor saps some information? I believe there must be hundreds of people in our shoes. We have been living together since 1941. We do not belong to a church because we do not feel we are worthy of going to church. Yes, we do have children. Abby, we want to get married and live right and, after all these years, we don't know where to turn except to you. Is there a state that doesn't require a three-day waiting period? We couldn't be married too near here as we are very well-know. God bless you, Abby, if you can help us. —SINNERS

DEAR SINNERS: The very fact that you are troubled by the way you have been living proves that you are worthy of going to church. A church is not a museum for saints—it's a hospital for sinners. Go to a clergyman, whether you belong to a church now or not, and let him chart your course. You will be amazed at how easily you can legalize your union quietly, without publicity. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My parents are very old-fashioned. I am 12 years old and I have a paper route. I earn my own money and think I should be able to do what I want with it. I want a motor scooter but my parents are against it. I could buy one for $90 and I already have most of the money saved, but they won't let me buy one because I am not old enough to get a license yet. Don't you think I should be able to buy one just to ride around the dirt roads? I need someone to stick up for me. —WANTS A MOTOR SCOOTER

DEAR WANTS: It doesn't matter if you can afford a Cadillac. Your parents' permission is more important than the money. Listen to them, son, and you'll never regret it.

DEAR ABBY: When our son got off the chartered bus from Fort Leonard Wood to start his first leave since enlisting in the Army, I smelled spirits on his breath for the first time. While home, he casually remarked, "The new recruits go over to the PX at night, have a few beers and get kicked out of shape."

Is it just big talk, or is this what Uncle Sam offers our 17-year-old sons whom we have given permission to join the service? Had we known this could happen, we would not have signed for him. What is the truth about this situation, Miss Abby? —ONE BOY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I am advised that malt beverages above 3.2 per cent alcohol are NOT sold on the military reservation and that 3.2 beer is NOT sold to anyone under 18½ years of age. In doubtful cases I.D. cards are required. Twenty-one is the minimum legal drinking age in most states, uniform or no uniform. It takes two to violate the system—the seller AND the buyer.

HINTS FROM

Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I cleaned a beautiful piece of silver, wrapped it in very thin plastic wrap and stored it.

Unfortunately, months later when I removed the silver the plastic was stuck "cold" to it.

Nothing I can find will remove it. Can you help me? —Sincerely

Many of our readers have had the same trouble. One wrote that she successfully removed the plastic by using the following method, which came from Dow Chemical Company. And our thanks to them for this hint:

"In the wrapping of any metal items in thin plastic wrap, they must be "completely dry and clean," and should be stored at moderate temperatures.

"To remove the deposit from the item, immerse it in a solution of boiling water to which a few spoonsful of a pink powdered detergent has been added, and allow to soak for several minutes. Immediately upon removal from the solution, rub briskly with a rough-surfaced towel. Several applications may be necessary.

And ladies, this complaint comes from moving companies, storage houses, and housewives all the time. Be very careful about storing silver, whether plated or sterling.

Remember, when wrapping any metal item in thin plastic it must be "completely" dry and clean and stored at "moderate" temperatures. —Heloise

Letter of Laughter? No . . . Try It!

Dear Heloise:

If your legs hurt when you are ironing, try walking to the closet with each finished piece of ironing (that is, if it's not too far!) or some similar distance. The change seems to be as good as a rest. And then I find I can keep going . . . and ironing, and ironing, etc. —Mrs. T. R.

Dear Heloise:

When "we" get up in years it is hard to get all the candles on the birthday cake. But the children do not want to settle for less candles on grandma's cake . . .

This is the way I do it.

I use the figures of the birthday age, putting one on each side of the cake. For instance, for 49 I put four candles on the left side and nine on the other!

Or one could draw the figures "four" and "nine" on the cake, then insert candles in these lines. —Mrs. Massey

My, that "is" a breath-saver! I am 44! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Make an apron to protect you while giving baths to little children. Make it by sewing tapes on a bath towel.

Put one pair of tapes on the "end" of the towel so you can tie it around your neck, and another pair about middle ways . . . so you can tie it around your waist.

A bath towel, lengthwise, will give lots of protection.

Make a cover for the playpen by sewing two bath towels together, and adding little tapes on the corners and the sides. Tie these to the bars of the playpen. Terry cloth is much nicer for baby to lie on than the plastic pads, washes beautifully, requires no ironing, and can be made in a color to match your furnishings. —Ohio

Dear Heloise:

To keep my potato chips, crackers, and cereals nice and fresh and crisp after opening them, I had my husband build a shelf in the hot water closet over the heater so that I had a warm, dry place to store them.

Now I have "no" more soggy crackers or limp cereals. —Mrs. J. B. McClung

Oil Shale Corp. Sells to French Firm

NEW YORK (UPI)—Oil Shale Corp., which owns shale land in western Colorado and has a patented process for extracting oil from shale, said Monday 10 per cent of its common stock has been acquired by subsidiaries of two French firms.

Hein I. Koolsbergen, [illegible] president, said Aquitaine Oil Corp. and Auxirap Corp. of America has acquired 406,000 common shares of his firm.

Last week Standard Oil Co. of Ohio acquired 406,000 shares of Oil Shale. Standard of Ohio has an option to acquire an additional 600,000 shares over a three-year period.

Washington Affected By Quake in Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) — For about two hours last Friday, the ground on which Washington stands shimmered back and forth, up and down.

When the activity—a byproduct of the Alaska earthquake—ended, Washington was about where it had started.

Studies of new instruments at the National Bureau of Standards showed:

Starting at 11:05 p.m. Friday, the ground here went up about one inch, then sank about two inches, then rose two inches.

The ups-and-downs continued on a slowly diminishing scale for about two hours. At the same time, the ground was rolling a bit from side to side.

Each up-and-down move took about 12 seconds. But because there was no great jar, no splitting of the earth's crust, Dr. R. K. Cook of the Bureau of Standards said no one even felt the various moves.

Experts indicated the same thing happened elsewhere in the country. Places closer to Alaska had greater movement but virtually all of the movement went unnoticed.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Sam was a brilliant law professor and the son of a clergyman. But read his personal account of the daily feuds with his brother at the breakfast table. You harassed mothers can take heart, too, for the more arguments you referee among your children, the less likelihood they will get a divorce!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE S-427: Sam S., aged 34, was a young law school professor at Northwestern while I was teaching psychology there.

He and I became very good friends, for he was keenly interested in psychology.

"Dr. Crane," he told me at luncheon one day, "I can remember my worried mother's dilemma.

"For I have a brother one year older than myself, and we'd argue or quarrel much of the time.

"Since my father was a clergyman and my mother was certainly a saintly person, our constant feuding disturbed her unduly.

"At breakfast, for example, we'd have cereal. In those days, we got our milk in glass bottles and it wasn't homogenized, so the cream would stand on top of the milk.

"Well, my brother and I would quarrel over who got the most cream on his cereal, so Mother would stand over us like a baseball umpire.

"Finally, she poured out the cream, trying to hit the exact half-way point. But we'd argue that the other one got just a tiny bit more cream.

"So Mother then decided she's alternate. Thus, on Monday, I got the first portion of the cream, but on Tuesday my brother was first to be served.

"Even this failed to stop our feuding, so Mother in desperation then ordered two bottles of milk and let each of us have his own bottle.

"But we would close one eye and sight along the lower cream line till we even argued at times that one bottle had less cream in it than the older!"

CAIN vs. ABEL

Quarreling between siblings (brothers and sisters) is normal as well as desirable.

And I say "desirable" because a quarrel permits a parent to come into the fray and referee the contest.

After the parent has rendered a decision, then the grumbling litigants to the feud must learn to abide by that judicial decision.

Quarrels thus train children to compromise. They also learn to feud and even fight with their fists, but then sit right back down at the same table and finish their meal togehter in reasonable harmony.

This is superb insurance for later happy marriage!

For children who have learned to quarrel, yet stay under the same roof afterwards, are less likely to pack up a suitcase and run home to mamma when the first violent argument develops following the honeymoon.

An "only" child thus misses this valuable training in social relations.

For an "only" child has not been so well schooled in quarreling but staying together within the family unit!

You harassed mothers may wish your kiddies would NEVER quarrel.

But take a new viewpoint. The more they quarrel BEFORE they leave your supervision, the less likely they enter a divorce after they marry.

Quarreling thus is excellent tutleage in making compromises, yet remaining in a cooperative teamwork unit, despite such radical differences of opinion.

So you parents can obtain solace by realizing if they don't quarrel before they marry, then there will be more violent arguments after their wedding!

Carson GI's Trial Postponed in Denver

DENVER (AP) — Arraignment of a Ft. Carson soldier and a Colorado Springs man on murder and robbery charges was postponed today to April 14.

Joel K. Whitman, 21, the soldier, and Gary Adamson, 23, are accused of causing the death of a Littleton man in an automobile collision March 16.

Police said they were trying to escape from police after a creamery holdup netting $76.

Boy Found Guilty In Car-Scooter Accident Case

A 16-year old boy whose motor scooter collided with a car March 12 at Meade and Platte avenues was found guilty Tuesday in Municipal Court on a charge of careless driving.

Judge Allan Asher imposed a $15 fine on James Stultz, 26, S. Garo St. He found the driver of the car, Mrs. Ann Shewmaker, 49, 403 Elm Ave., not guilty of failure to yield the right of way.

The youth and Mrs. Shewmaker were ticketed by Cpl. Emmett Butler who testified Stultz told him he did not remember what happened when his scooter struck Mrs. Shewmaker's car.

James Cross, 2360 E. Boulder St., riding on the back of the boy's scooter, said he saw Mrs. Shewmaker's car and warned Stultz to stop. "I would say we were going fairly fast buy not real fast," Cross testified.

Stultz, heading east on Platte, said he saw Mrs. Shewmaker's car stop at the sign, while headed south on Meade, and the next thing he knew they had collided.

When the youth said this was his first accident, Judge Asher pointed out that it might well have been his last.

Maurice Fox, 28, 3100 Wood Ave., and Jack Robertson, 56, 2202 N. Chestnut St., were found guilty of going through a flashing school signal March 6 and received fines of $20 each, with $10 on each suspended.

Ernesto Aragon, 39, 2717 S. Corona St., pleaded guilty of injury to city property and was fined $30. Dennis Ives, 18, 2219 N. Farragut St., was found guilty of speeding and fined $10.

Barbara Wilson, 21, 1101 E. Platte Ave., pleaded guilty to injury to city property and was fined $5. A $50 fine on a charge of injury to city property was levied against Doris Shirley, 36, 810 E. Fontanero St., who was also fined $15 on a careless driving charge.

Scout-O-Rama Tickets to Go On Sale Today

Two-hundred and twenty-five Cubmasters, Scoutmasters, Explorer Advisors and Unit ticket sales chairmen, assembled at Ent Air Force Base Tuesday evening to receive final instructions concerning the sale of Scout-O-Rama tickets. This years huge extravaganza will be held April 29, 30, May 1 and 2 at City Auditorium.

Five thousand Cubs, Scouts and Explorers will take to the field today to invite friends and relatives to witness the Region's largest exhibit of hobbies, crafts and Scout requirements and Cub Scout achievements ever displayed in the Rocky Mountain Region. A one hour stage presentation with a cast of 2,000 Cubs and Scouts is included in this years event.

Every available space at the City Auditorium will be utilized to display the 70 booths developed by the Scouts of the region. Scouts will have tickets available at $1 for Adults and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age. Tickets are good for any of the four spectacular performances.

"Help the Scouts help themselves" is the theme of the ticket sales program. Cubs and Scouts will receive valuable items of Scout equipment for their ticket sales. Boy Scouts may use commissions from their ticket sales for summer camp fees at camp Alexander and for equipment items also.

This years Scout-O-Rama is sponsored by the Colorado Springs Rotary Clubs, with assistance from the Colorado Springs SWAP Club.

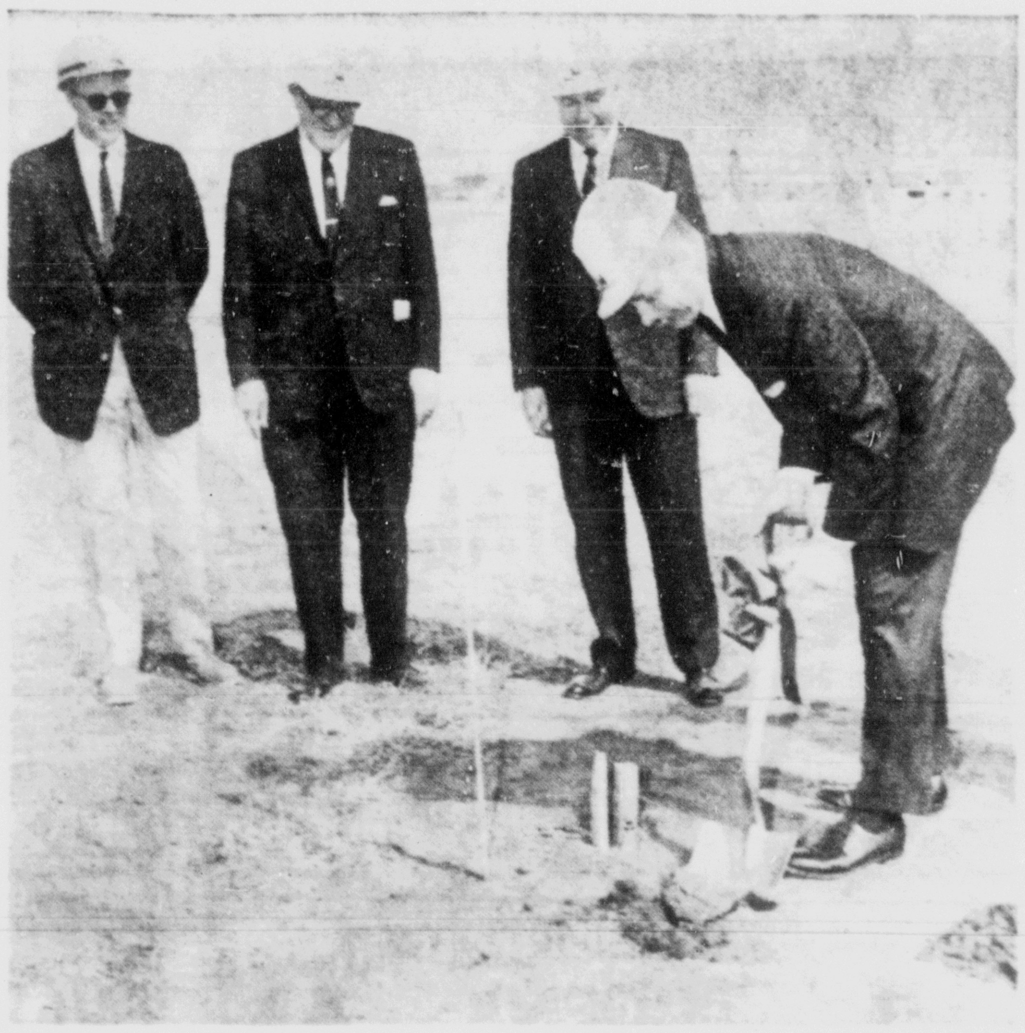
Driver Injured In Tuesday Crash

A two-car accident on Tuesday morning on Old Highway 85-87 resulted in a whiplash injury to one of the drivers and $650 worth of damage, the State Patrol reported.

The injured man, George Sullivan, 30, of Helena, Mont., did not require medical aid at the scene.

State Patrolman Carl Drake said Sullivan slowed for a road grader eight miles south of here and his car was struck on the rear by another automobile driven by Charles Fisher, 18, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Damage to the Sullivan car was estimated at $500 with $150 estimated damage to the Fisher car.



GROUND BREAKING—Digging in to the soil that will eventually bear the new chapel at Ft. Carson, is Norman A. Coleman, president of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce. Making sure that the ground is broken properly is, Joseph A. Reich, chairman of military affairs committee, Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce and the Mayor of Colorado Springs, Harry Hoth. The new H-shaped chapel is designed to serve service men of all denominations. (U.S. Army Photo).

Gen. Heintges Officiates at Ground Breaking

"To the glory of God, and in His presence, I now request that ground be broken for the new Ft. Carson Chapel Center." With these words of dedication, Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, Ft. Carson commander, officiated at ground breaking ceremonies Tuesday morning at the site of the new structure southwest of Post Headquarters.

The benediction was given by Chaplain Samuel Morreale (Lt. Col., ret.), secretary of the Council of Churches of Colorado Springs.

Penner Construction Co. of Denver will have 14 months to complete the $513,750 religious center. The H-shaped chapel will cover 9,600 square feet facing the mountains, with an educational wing of approximately the same size to the south.

It will be constructed of brick and pre-cast stone facing, with a roof supported by exposed, laminated wood arches and purlins. Interior will be wood panels and face brick.

Included in the contract is installation of heating, lighting, ventilation and public address system, as well as landscaping and a 10,000 square yard parking lot.

David Dwyer In Oratorical Contest Here

David Dwyer will represent the Colorado Springs Optimist Club at the Zone Oratorical Contest here April 8. Young Dwyer was winner of the local contest, nosing out Percy Pellerin who took second place.

Subject of this year's contest is "Optimism, Formula for Freedom."

Judges for the local contest were the Rev. Darrell Rhodes, Joseph O'Donnell and Maj. William Kopp. Howard Henderson was timekeeper.

Optimists have held the oratorical contest since 1928 and the Colorado Springs club participated since 1948.

Winners of the zone contest will go to Denver for the district meet. The zone competition will be held at Ruth's Oven.

125 Membership Cards Issued by Hill Climb Assn.

The Board of Directors of the Pikes Peak Hill Climb Association have reported that 125 charter membership cards were issued to date.

The board has announced that it hopes to achieve a membership goal of 5—by July 4.

Those interested in supporting the association may purchase a membership from the Chamber office, any member of the board, or a member of the hill climb committee for a $5 fee.

Vandals Busy In Area Sheriff Reports

Four cases of malicious mischief were reported to the sheriff's office Tuesday.

The first happened at Wiley's Used Car lot, 2450 E. Highway 24 when a windshield in one car was broken, several windows smashed and the neon sign damaged.

The second incident happened at Las Vegas Club. Sgt. Richard Small of the Air Force Academy said he left his car outside the club and someone stuck a knife into the side of one of the tires.

Paul Buss, 3316 N. Arcadia St., reported the third case. Three windows at his house were shot out with a BB gun sometime Tuesday.

The final incident was reported at Art Floral, 2304 E. Platte Ave. Two windows were broken out Monday night but there was no attempt to enter the building.

Firemen Provide Emergency Aid For 212 in '64

Of the 212 persons involved, 178 recovered and 34 died, but 29 of those 34 were dead on arrival of firemen.

The rescue squad was called out 51 times because of persons having difficulty in breathing; all 51 survived.

Some of the other trips involved attemtped suicide, 2; asthma, 7; choking, 16; convulsions, 20; drowning, 4; epileptic, 9; gas asphyxiation, 3; heart condition, 19; rescue and poison, 15.

The aspirator was used twice, the inhalator 135 times and the resuscitator 28 times.

Man Told City Doesn't Provide Home for Him

"The city doesn't maintain a home for you," Municipal Judge Allan Asher told 39-year old Zeke Rodriquez Tuesday.

The man was booked on a drunk charge Monday night when he tried to get into the trusty cell at the city jail. He told Judge Asher Tuesday he didn't get along with his sister and decided to go to jail for the night.

Rodriquez was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence.

Juan Archuleta, 42, 225 S. Wahsatch Ave., was given a 10-day jail sentence and fined $25 on charge of riotous conduct and drunkenness filed against him by his wife Emma.

Burglars Enter Cabin At Scenic Acres

A cabin at Scenic Acres, Cascade, belonging to Harvey W. Grey was broken into but nothing appeared to have been taken, the sheriff's office said Monday.

Deputy Sheriffs Bernard Barry and Eldon McCune said entry was gained by forcing the front door window.

Careless Driving Brings Man $25 JP Fine

Dennis Dale Gimlin was charged in justice of the Peace H. C. McShane's court Tuesday with careless driving and fined $25 and costs. Gimlin, 28, 2329 E. Van Buren St., was ticketed March 19 on Colorado Highway 115 by State Patrolman C. W. Hubbard.

State Patrolman John L. Baker gave a ticket to Fletcher Batts, 22, Ft. Carson, as he was driving on U.S. Highway 85-87 March 15 without a valid operator's license. A $6 fine and costs was imposed.

Following too closely on U.S. Highway 85-87 March 15 without a valid operator's license. A $6 fine and costs was imposed.

Following too closely on U.S. Highway 85-87 March 7 cost Robert Allen Cepeck, 30, 1121 Swope Ave., $10 and costs. J. D. Morrissey of the state patrol was the officer.

Herman Lewis Marion, 57, 12 N. 7th St., was fined $ 6and costs for having no operator's license. Police Office A. W. Dalton gave him the ticket March 25 on South Nevada Avenue.

Johnnie C. Campbell, 35, 732 N. 7th St., was fined $6 and costs for the same violation which happened Saturday on East Costilla Street. The officer was Jess Kyle of the police.

Raymond Dwayne Hayan, 16, 164 E. Shoup Rd., paid a $15 fine and costs for careless driving. The violation happened Saturday on Templeton Gap Road and the officer was State Patrolman Gordon Baumgardner.

John G. Hendrie, 47, of 7th Street, was fined $10 and costs for speeding. According to State Patrolman John L. Baker, the defendant was driving at 52 miles per hour in a 45 zone on Colorado Highway 27 March 22.

Driving a defective vehicle on Cimarron Street Thursday cost Simmie Williams, 35, 523 S. El Paso St., $6 and costs. Quentin Conrad of the police was the officer.

Opal Webb Gives Talk on Schools At Oahu, Hawaii

Opal Webb, a local realtor, gave a talk on her recent visit to the Kamehameha Schools in Oahu, Hawaii, at a breakfast meeting of the Colorado Springs Realtors Association held at the Embers Steak House this morning.

Miss Webb spoke of entrance requirements, curriculum, and other facts about the two schools — one for boys and one for girls — which were founded by the Hawaiian Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop.

The schools are administered by a board of trustees appointed by judges of the Hawaiian Supreme Court and are among the best in the state, according to Miss Webb.

The schools are for children from kindergarten age up to the twelfth grade. Two recent graduates of the school for boys are now attending the Air Force Academy and one is attending the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Miss Webb said.

State-Wide Local Affairs Committee to Meet Here

The state-wide committee of the Governor's Local Affairs Study Commission will hold a public hearing in the public auditorium of the El Paso County Court House in Colorado Springs Friday, April 10. The subject of discussion will be local government problems and possible solutions in South-Central Colorado.

The 100-member Local Affairs Study Commission was established by the Governor and the General Assembly for the purpose of conducting a nonpartisan study of Colorado local government.

The Commission's state-wide committee is charged with the responsibility of studying and proposing improvements to the organization and operation of the state's local governmental units.

Other commission committees are working on Metropolitan Denver area problems and on government finances. The ultimate objective of the commission is to strengthen local government through recommendation of specific legislative and constitutional proposals to the state legislature.

In attendance at the Colorado Springs meeting will be county and municipal officials from Custer, Douglas, El Paso, Fremont, Huerfano, Park, Pueblo and Teller counties.

The hearing is open to the public and interested citizens and representatives of local community organizations are invited and encouraged to attend.

Commission members include legislators, county, school and municipal officials, and other interested citizens. Governor Love acts as chairman and Representative John Mackie is commission vice chairman.

Commissioners from this meeting area include State Senator Lee R. Blackwell from Canon City, Roy O. Frantz, farm wholesaler from Pueblo, William C. Henderson, former mayor of Colorado Springs, Janet Lecompte, a noted author of Western History, from Colorado Springs, Edward R. Nelson, manager, Building Trades Council in Colorado Springs, Russell Higginson, Douglas County commissioner, Raymond Nixon, director of public utilities for the City of Colorado Springs; Ruth Parks, past president of National Federation of Republican Women, Pueblo; and Roy J. Wasson, retired superintendent of Schools, Colorado Springs.

John Holloway, former mayor of Boulder, is the state-wide committee chairman. Other committee representatives who plan to attend the Colorado Springs meeting are State Representative Vince Massari from Pueblo; Howard Lane, Denver; State Senator Wilkie Ham, La Junta; Betty Miller, Jefferson County; Kermit Buol, Burlington; Dorothy Eccles, Littleton.

The hearing will start at 9 a.m. and continue all day. County problems will be discussed in the morning session and municipal and district problems in the afternoon.

Committee emphasis will be upon county government, towns, cities, and special districts, although school problems will be discussed as they relate to the other local units of government.

The program will be provided by local participants who attend. Topics on the meeting agenda include county government organization, annexation, municipal home rule, and finance problems and proposals.

The Springs meeting will be the fourth and largest in a series of regional hearings to be held around the state by the committee. Hearings have already been held in Sterling, Limon, and La Junta.

Other meetings are scheduled in Alamosa, Boulder, Glenwood Springs, Durango and Montrose. According to Chairman Holloway, these meetings enable the committee to obtain a better understanding of local government problems in each geographic area of the state. The needs and suggestions expressed at each grass roots session should enable the committee to develop solutions to many of these problems and to improve local government in Colorado.

CC Announces Publication Of Two Studies

The Colorado College Studies today announced publication of "The Origins of Josephinism: Two Studies," by Prof. Paul Bernard of the College history department.

Copies of the work now are available at the Charles Leaming Tutt Library on the Colorado College campus. Publisher of The Colorado College Studies is the college Research Committee.

The two studies contained in the 52-page volume are the result of research started during the summer of 1952 in Austria. They are entitled "Joseph I and Reforms of Joseph II" and "On the Ideolgical Origins of Josephinism".

Working under a research grant from Colorado College, Prof. Bernard spent the summer of 1962 in Vienna laying the ground work for his study of the reform movement in 18th century Austria.

He established communications channels for continuing the study during the past two years from the Colorado College campus.

This marked his third research trip to Austria. He plans to return to Vienna this summer to spend a full year doing research on Emperor Joseph for a book.

Prof. Bernard, who earned his Ph. D. at the University of Colorado, joined the faculty at Colorado College in 1955. He is a former Fullbright Fellow and former Post Doctoral Ford Fellow.

Youth Caught In Theft at Local School

An 18-year old Palmer High School student was caught stealing a billfold in the school's locker room by an athletic coach who had laid a trap for him, police reported this morning.

Oliver Franklin of 930 N. Spruce St. was in City Jail this morning awaiting trial in Justice of the Peace Court.

Coach Bill Gordon told officers he and other coaches had laid the trap because of a recent rash of thefts at the school.

Gordon said he put an old billfold containing $1 in a pair of pants and hung them in an open locker Monday afternoon. He then hid in the room for coaches which is just off the locker room.

Gordon told officers he observed Franklin, who is on the track team, enter the locker room and steal the billforld. Police said Franklin admitted the theft when questioned.

Man Ticketed After Car Jumps Curb

An Air Force Academy man was ticketed for reckless driving after his car jumped a curb and smashed into large rocks in the 3200 block of West Colorado Ave., early this morning.

Police said Samuel Leroy Reese, 34, was driving west and failed to negotiate a curve. Both Reese and a passenger, Kathleen Irene Benson, 44, of the Pikes Peak Trailer Court, suffered minor injuries which did not require medical attention.

The oldest Canadian in length of military service and age at NORAD—he is the only RCAF original still on duty today—was Air Marshal C. Roy Slemon, the NORAD Deputy Commander in Chief. Youngest was RCAF Corporal Gerry F. Smith. Although Air Marshal Slemon has seen forty RCAF birthdays go by, the indication that this may be one of the last came last week with the announcement by the Canadian government that eventually all military services will be unified under one chief. Left to right: Corporal Smith, Air Marshall Slemon, and NORAD's Commander in Chief U.S. Air Force General John K. Gerhart. (Official NORAD Photo)

RCAF 40th Anniversary Being Celebrated Today

The Royal Canadian Air Force is celebrating its 40th Anniversary today. The RCAF is one of the "partners" of the joint U.S.-Canada North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) headquartered here in Colorado Springs.

The birthday celebration will take the form of special formal mess dinners in all officer, NCO and enlisted men's messes across Canada. Largest of these will be held in Canada's capitol, Ottawa, at which over 200 are expected. Governor General Georges Vanier will head the guest list and officiate at a special cake-cutting cremony.

He will be accompanied by Defense Minister Paul Hellyer and his associate minister, and by the chairman of the Chiefs of Staff Committee, the Chief of the Naval Staff, the Vice Chief of the General Staff and the Chairman of the Defence Research Board.

Also attending will be the present Chief of the Air Staff Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap and four former chiefs of the air staff whose tenures of office date back to 1944. Among these will be Air Marshal C. Roy Slemon who held that office from January 1953 to August 1957.

Air Marshal Slemon is deputy commander in chief of NORAD and takes command of the 200,000 man system in the absence of NORAD's Commander in Chief General John K. Gerhart, USAF.

Air Vice Marshal Murray Lister is deputy chief of staff for Operations.

Two sections under his command are the directorate of operations and the combat operations center (COC). In the directorate of operations, group captain J. F. Mitchell is assistand director to Brig. Gen. A. G. Salisbury, and in the COC Group Capt. W. H. Swetman is deputy director to Brig. Gen. L. W. Stocking.

Group Capt. A. F. Banville is an assistant director in the COC.

Two other senior Canadian officers holding key positions are Group Capt. K. P. Likeness who is director of programs management and communications analysis under Army Brig. Gen. W. B. Latta, deputy chief of staff for communications and electronics, and Group Capt. H. R. Studer, assistant director of plans and policy under Brig. Gen. R. S. Abbey.

The RCAF grew out of a non-permanent, non-professional force called the Canadian Air Force formed in 1920 with an approved strength of 5,000. In June 1922 a reorganization of the force was started to give it a permanent staff and to consolidate flying operations in Canada.

In February 1923 the King of England approved of the Canadian Air Force adopting the prefix "Royal." When the reorganization was completed and regulations published early in 1924, the RCAF was born on April 1 as a permanent component of Canada's defense forces. It had an approved strength of 375.

Today the RCAF has a strength of over 51,000 and a long history of friendship with U.S. forces dating back to August 1918.

Then, the U.S. Naval Flying Corps undertook to operate two air stations in Nova Scotia while pilots of the newly-formed Royal Canadian Naval Air Service were receiving training in the United Kingdom and the United States. U.S. Navy pilots flew convoy escort and anti-submarine patrols off Canada's East Coast during this period.

This same spirit has prevailed down through the years and we see the ultimate today in NORAD with the air defense forces of both countries under the operational control of a single commander. Canadian or American, it matters not.

Local Men Man Travel Booth At Detroit

Clay Banta, Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager and E. T. Stephens, owner of the El Patio Motel, are presently manning the travel show booth in Detroit.

This show will close Sunday. The last travel show in this year's circuit will be in Dallas from April 11 through the 19th. Will Jurgens, chamber convention director, and his wife will be on duty at the booth.

This year's travel show booths feature literature depicting the vacation advantages of the Pikes Peak Region, slides of the area, and in addition the new area travel film "Time to Live," is shown.

Springs Seniors To Begin CSU Forest Field Trip

Three Colorado Springs seniors in the College of Forestry and Range Management at Colorado State University, Fort Collins, will begin a three-week field trip through Colorado on April 6. The three are members of a group of 29 making the trip.

The annual trip comprises a required course for students studying wildlife management and forest recreation. Its main purpose is to give the student first hand experience with field problems and operations.

This year the group will make stops at Hot Sulphur Springs, Steamboat Springs, Dinosaur National Monument, Grand Junction, Montrose, Mesa Vista and the Manitou Forest Experiment Station. They will return to Fort Collins April 24.

The students will spend the nights of April 22 and 23 at the Manitou Forest Experiment Station, and on those two days will study the Trout Creek Watershed and the Tarryall recreation and wildlife areas.

Child Guidance Clinic Becomes Joint Operation

The Colorado Springs Child Guidance Clinic today becomes a joint operation including facilities for the treatment of adults.

Three new staff members have been added to the present staff to handle the new case load. The board of directors announces the association of: Dr. Charles Dye, psychiatrist; Dr. Dorothey MacDonald, psychologist and Mrs. John (Betty) Mahaffy, psychiatric social worker.

Racial Question To Be Put on Referendum

By WILFRED FEHLHABER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Charges of interracail socializing, bigotry and deception have been flung in a public accommodations ordinance campaign that closes April 7 with a referendum election.

Kansas Citians will decide then on an ordinance which would expand one in effect since 1960 prohibiting racial discrimination in hotels, motels and restaurants. About 20 per cent of the almost 500,000 residents of Kansas City are Negroes.

The ordinance would include taverns, places of amusement, hospitals, transportation businesses and trade schools open to the public and run for profit.

Tavern owners and the Association for Freedom of Choice have been the most active opposition groups. Clergymen, the League of Women Voters, Negro leaders and other groups have supported the ordinance.

The Kansas City Tavern Owners Association spearheaded a drive that put 20,000 signatures on petitions asking the City Council for repeal of the ordinance or the election.

Charles Genova, president of the tavern owners, said clergymen for generations told their flocks to stay out of taverns. Now, he said, they are supporting a measure which would force barkeeps to serve Negroes too and theoretically increase their business.

In interviews Genova challenged th churchmen to open their bingo games, lawn parties and other social events to all races.

The People for Public Accommodations said in a pamphlet?

"The sordid face of racial prejudice has done our country enough harm. Do we practice what we preach, or do we let bigotry smear another blot on the freedom we show the world?"

Spokesmen for clergymen and the Chamber of Commerce argued the measure is not communistic or an attack on private property rights and that it is based on moral principles and religious teachings. They contend the tavern people only want their places excluded from the ordinance.

The ordinance would provide for fines of $25 to $500 for each offense and a third conviction could lead to revocation of city license.

Grand Junction Jail Prisoner Hangs Self

He had been held since Feb. 29 when he was returned from Phoenix on a charge of automobile theft.

Officers said Varga was a native of Budapest and a former Grand Junction resident. His wife lives in Phoenix.

IF A DOG ANSWERS

GENESEO, Kan. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Chant Burnett don't claim that their dog, "Buddy," talks, but they do know that he answers the telephone.

When the receiver stayed off the hook for several hours recently while the couple was at work, the telephone operator became concerned. Burnett was contacted at his service station and went home to investigate. The year-old Pekingese greeted him, then went to the phone and proudly barked into the receiver, which he had apparently knocked off in an effort to "answer" it when it rang.

Wind Erosion Federal Aid Is Being Sought

DENVER (UPI)— Gov. John Love said Monday a decision should be made soon in Washington on whether farmers and ranchers in eastern Colorado will receive federal aid to combat severe wind erosion.

Request for the aid was made early last month by farmers and ranchers in Baca, Kiowa, Cheyenne, Adams, Arapahoe, Bent, Crowley, Fremont, Kit Carson, Las Animas, Lincoln, Otero and Prowers Counties.

Love said Monday that State Agriculture Commissioner Paul Swisher had been informed by a U.S. Department of Agriculture official that the request had successfully cleared lower echelon hurdles and now was at the decision-making level.

Dallas Group Buys Magic Mountain Park

DENVER (AP) — A Dallas group has bought the Magic Mountain amusement park west of here and plans to operate it under the name of All-Tom of Denver, Inc.

No sales price was announced. The purchase was made by W. H. Aldrich, Burwell J. Thompson, Bruce Graves and Harold F. Thompson from two Phoenix men.

Lewis E. Crandall and A. Monroe Blakely obtained the property last May for $360,275.

Magic Mountain was one of the numerous enterprises of Allen J. Lefferdink, former Boulder businessman, all of whose firms have entered bankruptcy are being taken over by others.

HOW MANY ICE CUBES?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — There are approximately 11 million adults in the United States and about 69 million enjoy alcoholic beverages, estimates Melrose Distilling Co. About 38 million men and 31 million women are expected to have consumed about 70 million cases during 1963.

Gruenther Quits as Red Cross President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, 65, retired as president of the American Red Cross Tuesday—a job he had held for seven years and three months.

At a farewell ceremony in the lobby of the Red Cross building he told his staff goodby and was presented a certificate citing his "distinguished service."

E. Roland Harriman, national chairman, also presented a certificate to Mrs. Gruenther.

Amnesty Proclaimed By General Franco

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish chief of state, has ordered amnesty for prisoners on the 25th anniversary of the end of Spain's civil war today.

The decree affecting both political and criminal prisoners reduces sentences by one-sixth.

Officials said this was the ninth general amnesty order by Franco since 1945.

The number of prisoners was not indicated in the decree but on Jan. 11, officials said the Spanish prison population was 11,395.

Press Plane Returns To Washington, D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A substitute White House press plane brought 71 passengers — including newsmen and presidential aides—back to the capital early today.

American Airlines flew the special plane into Dallas from Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday night after the regular press plane was forced to make an emergency landing at Dallas' Love Field when a broken turbine blade knocked out one of its engines.

MONEY STREET

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Tony Sanchez' forgetfulness cost him $400 but spread cheer to a street full of people on the city's East Side.

Sanchez, an Elsa, Tex., grass supplier, put a stack of bills of that amount on his truck while he changed coveralls last Friday. He then forgot the money and drove off, trailing bills like confetti.

By the time he remembered the money and drove back, the street was empty.

Peabodys Have Always Been Sort of Gung Ho

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY

BOSTON (AP)—The Peabodys of Massachusetts have always been sort of gung ho—and so have the women they married.

Take grandfather Endicott Peabody, for instance, the one who founded the famed Groton School, noted for its cold showers every morning and tough courses every day. One of his students was Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd president of the United States.

Peabody founded the school before the turn of the century. Before that as a young Episcopal minister, he went West—to bring the Word to the rough, brawling territory of Arizona.

And rough it was when he built a little church in a tiny town which bore the name of Tombstone. He knew such people as the real Wyatt Earp, Doc Halliday, and other gunmen of the era who were little like their good guy television counterparts.

His son Malcolm Peabody also took to the cloth. He followed the hard road at first as an Episcopal missionary in the far off Philippines. He came back to Massachusetts for pastorates, then moved over into New York State where he became a bishop.

So it should be no surprise that his wife, Mary, 72, went to jail in old St. Augustine, Fla., Tuesday, as a trespasser in a motel which refused service to her and several Negroes. She went to Florida with a group to demonstrate against segregation.

Small wonder that her son Endicott, namesake of the Groton founder, worked at his calesthenics to overcome a scrawny physique until he could make the Harvard football team. He became the most recent 1941 All-America football player turned out by that institution of learning.

He carried that inherited determination over to his service in the Navy in the war. He took the hard road, too, in submaries in the Pacific, and came out of it with the Silver Star.

Still on the hard road, the current Endicott Peabody went into politics, fought an uphill fight, and won an upset victory to become governor of Massachusetts in 1962.

The governor's mother is just as determined as her son and the Peabodys who went before him.

She often has expressed her strong feelings for civil rights—for all people. She says that segregation is wrong, and so is unequal opportunity, whether it be in the South or back home in Boston.

Mrs. Peabody has a daughter, Marietta Tree, a member of the Human Rights Commission in the United Nations. Her husband, Ronald Tree, is a former member of the British Parliament.

Gov. Peabody married Toni Gibbons, whose father was a member of the Bermuda Parliament for years.

She set the Massachusetts State House on its ear when her husband took office a little more than a year ago, complaining that it was dirty and dreary. She got things done about it, too. A redecoration program was begun. Valuable portraits of former governors dating back to colonial days were dug out of storage, refinished and put up where they can be seen.

JFK Monument To Be Built At Runnymede

By TOM OCHILTREE

EGHAM, England (AP)—Children's voices sound beside the Thames. On the meadows of Runnymede, the heirs to Magna Carta play hopscotch when the spring rains end. Young lovers walk beside the river, holding hands.

The meadow, lush with grass, rolls back to Cooper's Hill. Old beech trees cover the slopes. To the northwest looms the gray bulk of Windsor Castle.

This is the place where the British will keep the name of John Fitzgerald Kennedy imprinted in the soil of their history in association with the Great Charter of 1215.

They will link the memory of the American president with the cause he often proclaimed—mankind's continuing struggle for freedom under law.

Plans call for giving one of Runnymede's 182 acres to the United States and placing a plinth (stone base) and steps there.

At Runnymede, 22 miles west of London, restless and angry barons forced King John to grant Magna Carta June 15, 1215.

Primarily the nobles were looking after their own interests. But this document, a primitive bill of rights, became a landmark as succeeding generations broadened its meaning.

An ancestor of the Declaration of Independence, The Great Charter fired the imagination of Washington's army. It helped fix the course of English common law. It followed the English language around the world, affirming the supremacy of justice over tyranny. Trends begun in Magna Carta are reflected in the legal systems of many nations.

Today jet planes coming from New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport roar over Runnymede preparing to land at London airport. A highway packed with cars cuts across one side of the meadow. But the mind's eye can picture the scene when armored nobles and knights jostled each other in Egham's streets and pitched their tents and raised their banners in Runnymede.

King John rode out from Windsor Castle to confer with them. The arguments beside the Thames lasted four days. Then the king agreed to the charter, and 25 nobles were chosen to defend its provisions. Replicas of their shields can be seen in Egham's parish church, St. John the Baptist.

The memorial committee believes the Runnymede plan plus scholarships will strengthen American - British friendship. British men and women will be sent to Harvard University, Kennedy's alma mater, Radcliffe College or the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

All political parties and British newspapers have praised the plan.

A letter writer in the London Times protested, however, that Runnymede is getting hemmed in by the 20th century and any monument there would be "totally unsuited."

But at the Bells of Ouzeley, a riverside pub adjacent to Runnymede, a farmer observed: "Most history is about trouble and death. It's fitting that a good man should be remembered in a place where history took a good turn."

Minister at Wedding Was Long Way Away

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — A young couple was married here in a ceremony that was normal in every way but one—the minister was halfway around the world.

The bride's brother, Walter A. Routh, a missionary in South Viet Nam, conducted the ceremony with the help of a long-distance telephone hookup that included loudspeakers placed at the altar.

When the time came for the bride, Marian, to say, "I do," she picked up a telephone receiver to answer. The groom, Ronald Chilton of High Point, N.C., stationed at the Sanford Naval Air Station, repeated the responses into the phone.

The wedding took place in the Central Baptist church at 9 p.m. Sunday night while it was 10 a.m. Monday in Viet Nam.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Utilities held firm in an irregularly lower stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

Losses of key blue chips in various groups dampened the averages but there was little pronounced leadership to the downside.

Coppers also encountered some profit taking and the group was down. Cigarette stocks also worked lower.

Steels, autos, oils and drugs were mixed.

Aerospace issues and electronics were higher on balance.

Losses of a full point were taken by New York Central and Johns-Manville.

IBM and Polaroid were up about a point each.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market maintained a little firmness in spots but prices were mostly weaker in the early afternoon today on the Board of Trade.

With transactions slow, new crop corn had attracted renewed support following issuance of the government's report that farmers had signed commitments to withhold 34.3 million acres from feed grain production this year. The figure was more than the trade had expected.

Profit cashing and liquidation weakened wheat and soybeans.

Carlot receipts today were estimated at: wheat no cars, corn 112, oats 1, rye none, barley 4, soybeans none.

Ghana Calls for New African Aid Proposal

GENEVA (UPI)—The West African Republic of Ghana today called for a joint East-West "Marshall plan" to mobilize help for the have-not nations of the world.

The plea was presented by Ghana's Foreign Minister Kojo Botsio to the delegates of 122 nations attending the United Nations conference on trade and development.

"An international plan similar to the Marshall Plan now is needed, organized on a truly international basis and this time for the benefit of the less developed countries," he told the delegates.

Warning that scattered individual measures have proved to be inadequate to promote the economic emancipation of the emerging nations he urged a "departure from old modes of thinking and form traditional attitudes toward international trade and development . . ."

Dry Weather Marks April For Most U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers sprinkled areas in the far West and rain and snow fell in eastern sections but April started today with dry weather in most other parts of the nation.

Cold weather continued in sections of the Northeast but temperatures moderated in the Southeast after two days of unseasonably freezing weather which caused millions of dollars damage to early spring vegetable and peach crops.

Readings were near zero in parts of northern New England, some 30 degrees below normal marks. There was a warming trend in the Midwest after several days of abnormally cold spring weather.

The showers in the West splashed the length of the Pacific Coast and extended into some inland areas, bringing much needed moisture to Western river valleys.

Temperatures in most of the Southeast generally were in the 40s and 50s, some 10 to 20 degrees higher than the past two mornings.

Fairly mild spring weather prevailed in the southern Plains and most of the western sections. In North Dakota Tuesday the day's high in Grand Forks, in the northeastern part of the state, was 30 above. In Dickinson, in the southwest corner, the mercury soared to 75.

Western Union To Expand Its Autodin Setup

Walter P. Marshall, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, announced today the signing of a contract with the Department of Defense, involving capital expenditures in excess of $55 million to expand its Autodin Communications System, world's largest and most advanced automatic digital data network.

Scheduled for completion by mid-1966, Autodin's expansion, when additional outstation equipment and circuitry is installed, will provide Western Union with additional private wire revenues approximating $25 million annually.

The present Autodin System, completed by Western Union for the Department of Defense early in 1963, and largely being expanded, consists of five major switching centers and more than 350 outstations, with revenues of more than $30 million annually. The new contract will add four new switching centers, bringing the total in the United States to nine. Capacity of the five existing centers will be increased and the enlarged system will have a capability of more than 2,000 outstations, over five times the present number. The new system will absorb many existing nationwide teletype networks now separately operated by The Department of Defense.

Western Union has also been retained by the Department of Defense, under a separate contract, to assist in engineering additional overseas Autodin centers.

The present Autodin System has, as its local points, five fully automatic, high-speed electronic switching centers located at Norton AFB and McClellan AFB, California; Gentile AF Station, Ohio; Andrews AFB, Maryland and Tinker AFB, Oklahoma. The switching centers at McClellan and Andrews serve as the gateway stations, or connecting links, to the overseas segments of the system. One of the new centers will be located at Larson AFB, near Spokane, Wash., and one at Hancock Field near Syracuse, N. Y. Location of the two remaining centers will be determined after further studies are completed.

Each center employs two large solid state electronic computers and other equipment for control storage and relay of message and data communications. As in the present system, RAC computers and other equipment will be used in the four new centers to be added under the expansion program.

Hewlett, Packard Elected to New Company Offices

The board of directors of Hewlett-Packard Company announced today in Palo Alto, Calif., the election of the company's co-founders and principal officers, David Packard and William R. Hewlett, to new executive posts.

Packard, formerly president of the company, has been elected to the newly-created position of chairman of the board and chief executive officer. Hewlett, formerly executive vice president, has been named president.

"The election is in keeping with the growing magnitude of Hewlett-Packard's world-wide operations," according to the board's announcement.

Founded in 1939, Hewlett-Packard is today a leading manufacturer of electronic measuring instruments. It has a dozen plants, including the Oscilloscope Division in Colorado Springs. More than 6,500 employes are on the Hewlett-Packard payroll and sales during the last fiscal year totaled $116 million.

Since founding the company as a partnership 25 years ago, Packard and Hewlett have been continuously active in its management. Packard has served as president since 1947 when the firm was incorporated and Hewlett served as vice president from 1947 until his election in 1957 as executive vice president.

In addition to activities at Hewlett-Packard, both men are active in professional, educational, civic and business organizations. Packard and Hewlett are both graduates of Stanford University, members of the Stanford board of trustees, fellows in the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers and honorary lifetime members of the Instrument Society of America.

Packard is a sustaining member of the New York Academy of Sciences, a member of the Business Council and a director of the Crocker-Citizens National Bank, Pacific Gas and Electric Company, General Dynamics Corp., Stanford Research Institute, Granger Associates, National Merit Scholarship Corp. and the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Hewlett is a trustee of Mills College and the California Academy of Sciences, a member of the Panel 14 Advisory Board of the National Bureau of Standards and a director of Kern County Land Company, Hexcel Products Inc., Pacific National Bank, the Rand Corp., Sierra Capital Company and Watkins-Johnson Company.

AFA Assembly Starts Today With Space Topic

The 100 college and university students arriving at the Air Force Academy today to open the sixth annual Air Force Academy Assembly will reap the benefits of hard work by an "army" of Air Force Academy cadets almost equal in size to the body of delegates.

Chairmen of nine committees and their staff have handled the myriad details necessary to supply delegates with everything from paper and pencils to a place to stay.

Assembly chairman Cadet Robert L. Sansom numbers on his staff Tom Till, associate chairman, and assistant chairmen Brian Wages and Bart Holaday.

Cadet delegates to the assembly include: W. R. Ahern, W. P. Dickey, D. R. Heide, D. J. Alberts, D. W. Stiles, S. K. Mayo, T. H. Tietenberg, J. M. Quigley, R. A. Lodge, M. Thies, D. L. O'Bryan III, H. J. Pearce, H. C. Whatley, and T. R. Young Jr.

Assembly delegates begin registering this morning and will meet for their first session at 3 p.m.

The public may attend the assembly keynote address by James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wednesday evening at 7:20 p.m. in the Arnold Hall theater.

"Outer Space" is the 1964 assembly topic.

Col. Matthews New Commander Carson Battalion

Lt. Col. Harry T. Matthews, former chief of training, G3, is new commander of the 1st Battalion, 61st Infantry following traditional change-of-command ceremonies last week.

Lt. Col. Harold K. Roach, who served with the battalion since July, presented the unit colors to Col. Matthews. Col. Roach has been reassigned to the Division Plans and Operations, G3.

During his command of the 61st, Col. Roach had the satisfaction of commanding the only battalion in which all four companies passed the Command Maintenance Management Inspection entirely and which attained a superior rating in the annual Fifth Army training inspection.

Col. Matthews served thirty months as chief of training, G3, with Headquarters USARYIS. He had an unusual assignment in coordinating training with the Third Marine Division, the Air Force and the Navy.

As an enlisted man he was assigned to the 21st Infantry Regiment at Pearl Harbor. As an officer he was regimental S3 with the 21st Infantry in Japan, at the same time Brig. Gen. C. B. Smith, new assistant division commander was a battalion commander with the 21st Infantry Regiment.

Col. Matthews said he plans to continue the battalion's outstanding training record. He stressed the high value he places on the non-commissioned officers and specialists in the battalion.

Addressing officers and enlisted men of the battalion, he pledged his full support of the unit which proved its effectiveness as a fighting team during Exercise We Will, Swift Strikes II and III and Coulee Crest, and as a top training battalion during recent AIT cycles.

Carson Soldier To Retire and Work for Wife

S. Sgt. Harold E. Port of Ft. Carson plans to work for his wife after he retires from Army service today.

His wife, Nancy, operates a novelty business, Nancy's Little Mitts, from their home at 113 Dartmouth, in Widefield of Colorado Springs. The heart of the business is production of multi-colored felt mittens with lace trim, sequins and ribbon, suitable for lapel decorations on ladies' coats, and dresses, and as bookmarks. Port reports the project, which began when he was stationed in Hanau, Germany, has met with unusual success. With the whole family pitching in on the production line, hundreds of the hand-made decorations are ready for sale in a few days.

Port is supply sergeant for Headquarters and A Company, 5th Medical Battalion, 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized). He entered the Army on March 1, 1944, completing basic training at Camp Blanding, Fla.

With the 28th Division in World War II, the St. Paul, Minn. native participated in the French Eastern Campaign, and the German Campaign. He was on hand for all but one campaign in the Korean War.

He lists the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Bronze Star, and the Purple Heart among his awards and decorations.

S. Sgt. Port is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion.

Church Will Hold Spring Revival Here

The Palmer Heights Church of the Nazarene announces its Spring Revival, beginning Thursday, through April 12, at 7 o'clock each evening and all day on both Sundays.

The Rev. Louis McMahan, well-known Evangelist, will be the guest speaker.

The Rev. W. R. Donaldson, pastor, extends an invitation to the public to attend each session.

Hit and Run Driver Caught By Police

A hit and run driver left the scene of an accident in the 00 block of West Cucharras Street Tuesday night because he "thought he could get away with it," police reported this morning.

Charles McMath, 26, of Ft. Carson, was traced through his license number which was given to police by a witness to the accident. McMath had run into a parked car owned by Kenneth A. Aver, according to the police report.

McMath was ticketed for hit and run and careless driving. Police said damage in the accident was about $300.

Officers who questioned McMath said he told them he did not think anyone had seen the accident and thought he could get away with leaving the scene.

Woman, Girl Injured in Two-Car Crash

A woman and a girl were injured when two cars collided three miles south of here on Old Highway 85-87 Tuesday evening.

Alice B. Willis, 11, suffered bruises and was taken to St. Francis Hospital by E and E Ambulance. Paula N. Willis, 36, was also taken to the hospital with bruises.

Both were passengers in a car driven by Alexander Willis, 36, of the Cormack Trailer Cour

State Patrolman A. L. Smith said Willis was northbound when a car entering the highway collided with his car. The driver of the other car was Michael Polisano, 32, of Ft. Carson.

Smith estimated there was a total of $755 damage in the accident.

Seven in One Family Die as Fire Guts Home

BEVERLY, Mass. (AP)—Fire swept through a two-family house early today, killing a father, mother and their five children.

Killed were John Crandell, 40, a bakery employe; his wife, Barbara, 38, and their children, Kathie, John Jr., Richard, Stephen and James Crandell. The children were between 2 and 10 years old.

The children were trapped on the third floor of the three-story house. Their parents apparently died trying to rescue them. The parents occupied a bedroom on the second floor.

Laura O'Connor, who occupied the first-floor apartment in the building, was awakened by the fire and escaped.

It was a general alarm blaze in a congested area of this small North Shore Massachusetts city.

Three firemen were injured, none seriously.

Treasury Bills Are Important Money Market

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—You may never have owned one but U.S. Treasury bills are rated as today's most important money market instruments.

They often serve as a barometer for what your future borrowing costs will be, and how readily you'll find lendable funds when you want them for your business or consumer needs.

There are about $52 billion worth of these Treasury bills outstanding now, compared with around $17 billion at the end of the war. The yields they bring at the Treasury's weekly auctions often foretell the course of interest rates in general, and of the current supply and demand conditions in the money market.

The ups and downs of such auctions over a period of time also often reveal in which direction the money managers want interest rates and the supply of credit to go.

Return on Treasury bills has been strong for months. Part of this was because Washington monetary authorities wanted to discourage any outflow of idle dollars to foreign markets where yields are higher. Another reason for keeping rates high could be a desire by the authorities to head off speculative fever in the stock markets or in business and consumer borrowing.

This week the yields have turned down. One week doesn't make a trend. But dealers in government securities say the Federal Reserve System has been buying up bills fairly heavily of late, thus increasing the demand and pushing prices up—and yields down. The reasons for this activity weren't announced.

The yields work this way:

A Treasury bill is a government obligation to pay the bearer a fixed sum on a specific within a year of issue. They are sold at a discount through competitive bidding. The return is the difference between the face value of the bill and the amount you pay for it.

This week's auction saw the average discount rate on 91-day bills fall to 3.525 per cent from 3.550 per cent the previous week. On 182-day bills the rate fell to 3.710 per cent from 3.740 per cent. Another Treasury bill with a one-year maturity, was not auctioned this week.

The drop in rates seems small to the average person. To government security dealers, to commercial banks, corporation treasurers and some individual investors who regularly bid for them, the drop is being watched closely to see if a trend develops and credit policies are changing.

Even at 3.525 per cent the discount rate on the bills is above the 3.5 per cent at which the Federal Reserve lends money to member banks—a discount rate often governing charges by bankers and other lenders to the borrowing public.

The advantages of the auction system of handling this form of Treasury debt are listed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond in this order of economic significance:

In these Treasury auctions money market conditions set the price. The very fact that the bill market—at $52 billion—is so enormous keeps the weekly fluctuations within workable bounds. It is one of the least painful ways for the Treasury to raise the cash it needs. It can add to or subtract from its weekly offerings if its needs rise or decline.

For the Federal Reserve buying or selling these bills is a prime method for increasing or decreasing the reserves of commercial banks—and hence the supply of credit.

For others, the bills offer excellent temporary investment at an attractive rate and little risk of trading loss.

It's the trend in the yields of these bills that the economists watch when guessing which way credit and interest costs may be heading.

Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey
Distilled in the Slow Old Fashioned Way

BOTTLED BY FRANKFORT DISTILLING CO.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

We're on our way up
in the world.

In our view, it couldn't have happened to a nicer bourbon.

We were minding our business (which was none too big at the time), when suddenly a lot of people started asking for Antique Bourbon.

The only reason we can think of is that they must have tasted it. And liked its full flavor.

Older folks tell us we've recaptured the character of the great pre-Prohibition bourbons.

If we have, it's no accident. We have a very old-fashioned attitude.

We go right out to the corn-cribs to select the ears we prefer. (Not too moist, mind you.)

We heat our sour mash gently. Never over 212 degrees. So there's no danger of harshness.

We could turn out whiskey faster, if we took less trouble.

But we're sure you wouldn't want us to, once you've tasted it.

Tribe Defeats Trinidad To Move Ahead in Race

TRINIDAD — Sophomore sensation Phil Johnson Johnson blanked Trinidad over the final 5⅔ innings here Tuesday afternoon as Palmer moved into undisputed possession of first place in the South Central League with a hard-earned 3-1 victory over the Miners.

The win was the second straight in league action for the Terrors who slipped past Centennial 2-1 last Saturday in Colorado Springs. The Bulldogs bounced back from that loss to whip Pueblo South 5-1 behind Bob Armijo's one-hit pitching Tuesday and Wasson pounded Pueblo Central 14-7 in other conference action.

Johnson, who had allowed only one baserunner in six innings of relief prior to Tuesday, was touched fof four hits and an equal number of walks by the Miners but kept the home club from crossing home plate. The youthful righthander was summoned to the mound with two men down in the second inning after starter Tom Medlicott had yielded the Miners' only score.

From that point Trinidad threatened frequently but Johnson was equal to the task in the clutch every inning. After the Miners had put the first two men on base in the fourth, the Palmer hurler fanned Don Welch and Ed Pfalmer and retired Jim Stadjuhar on a ground ball. Trinidad had two men on with one out in the fifth but a fly ball and strikeout ended that frame. It was a similar story in the sixth when Stadjuhar skied to center and Bruce Tapia fanned with runners at first and second. Overall, the Miners stranded 13 men, 11 with Johnson on the mound.

Once again the Terrors needed the outstanding pitching as they collected only five hits off the offerings of Trinidad's Rudy Martinez. The Miner southpaw gave up only one base on balls and fanned four, but Palmer made the most of its opportunities, leaving only five runners on base.

Medlicott slipped through a shaky first inning without damage but ran into trouble with two away in the second. Greg Lovell had reached base on a walk to lead off the frame but Medlicott then settled to fan the next two batters. However, Sal Padilla followed with a single and Welch then belted a second hit to drive in the Trinidad run. At that point Johnson arrived on the scene to retire Pfalmer on a grounder to third and the Miners looked at nothing but zeros on the scoreboard the rest of the afternoon.

The Terrors picked up all the runs they were to need in the top of the fourth. Larry Williams led off and reached base on an error by Pfalmer. Jerry Golden then followed with the first of his two hits and after a sacrifice by Richard Grapp, one run crossed the plate on a fielder's choice and the second on Gary Johnson's sacrifice fly to center.

Palmer picked up an insurance tally in the sixth on hits by Golden, Rich Tafoya, and the run-producing single by Gary Johnson.

Plamer draws a bye in SCL action this weekend but will travel to Denver to meet Thomas Jefferson in a non-league game.

Denver Downs Richmond, 5-3

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Larry Maxie has given up three runs in 17 innings for the Denver Bears this exhibition season. He has allowed only eight hits in 14 innings.

Maxie, a husky righthander sent down by the Milwaukee Braves, held Richmond hitless for five innings Tuesday as Denver won 5-3.

The victory was Denver's 10th in 15 exhibition games — their fourth in six meetings with the No. 1 farm club of the New York Yankees. Today they faced Jacksonville.

T-BIRD THIEF IN ACTION—Ron Nighswonger (30), one of Wasson's larceny-minded baserunners, slides around a tag attempt by Central's Marv Schuerman to complete a steal of second base in the second inning of the Wasson-Central game at Memorial Park Tuesday afternoon. Today's Short Scoops

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Yogi Berra, new manager of the American League champion Yankees, predicted today that the Yankees would be lucky to finish fifth but the Mets should win the National League pennant.

DENVER, Colo. (UPI)—Former world heavyweight champion Charles (Sonny) Liston admitted today he was planning to become an evangelist dedicated to bringing smiles and sunshine into all the dives of the world.

MOSCOW (UPI) — One of Russia's leading sports commissars asserted today that in the 1964 Olympic Games the Soviets, "even if defeated," would accept the U.S. scoring system instead of using a half-dozen different systems until victory was asured.

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The Major League Pitchers Association cleared eight suspected spitball throwers of any such actions on the grounds that spitting is unsanitary.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay vowed in his first recorded whisper an oath of silence until he had learned to write an "X" in old English script and translated the Koran into Sandskrit.

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, preparing to play in the Masters golf tournament, said today he never expected to win another tournament because he had a nick in his favorite niblick and needed the money so badly he was pressing too much.

Baseball observers with Los Angeles Dodgers insisted today they would not "fire" Manager Walt Alston a single time this season because of lack of cooperation from the front office.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate insiders argued today that a federal boxing commission was unnecessary because a majority of fight managers had proved themselves to be on such a high moral plane that they were beyond suspicion.

Bill Mondt Named CU Assistant

BOULDER (AP)—Bill Mondt, head football coach at Air Force Academy High School for the past three seasons, was named an assistant coach at the University of Colorado today.

Mondt, 27, a native of Laporte and graduate of Kersey High School, was a starting guard on the CU teams of 1956-57-58. Also a star student, Mondt was selected on the academic All-Big Eight Conference team his senior year.

He was line coach at Washington High School, Kansas City, Mo. for two years before taking the Air Academy post. His Academy High team won the state class AA title in 1962.

Widefield Tracksters Win PPL Triangular

Chuck Loper's high-flying Gladiators kicked off the Pikes Peak League track and field campaign when the Widefield tracksters scored an impressive triangular meet victory over Harrison and Florence on their own home field Tuesday afternoon.

The Gladiators accumulated 75 points to dominate the three-way meet. Florence finished in second place with 41½ points while Harrison was third with 29½ points. This was the first track and field meet for the PPL teams.

Today, Fountain was slated to host a four-way meet Cheyenne Mountain, Air Academy High and Canon City. That outing was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. at the Fountain oval.

Claude Burke proved the most outstanding individual for the Widefield squad as the former footballer recorded two first places, winning the 100-yard dash and 180-yard low hurdles in addition to pacing the 880-yard relay team.

Burke turned in a 10.3 in the century event and considering this was his first outing, he should rate along with the other top sprinters in the PPL. Burke was clocked 21.8 in winning the low hurdles event.

The Gladiators' strong man, Rodney Coates, won both the shot-put and discus. Coates heaved the 12-pound iron ball 46-4 while he tossed the discus 128½ feet to register first place in both events.

Steven Gerleman won the 220-yard dash for the Widefield team when the sophomore speedster was clocked 22.9 in that event. In addition, Gerleman placed second in the 100 and ran anchor for the 880-yard relay winning team.

Big Six Gains Two New Members; Oregon, O-State

By STRAT JONES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Five teams that regrouped from the ruins of the old Pacific Coast Conference in 1959 have decided they miss their one-time playmates, Oregon and Oregon State Universities.

The Oregon Schools have agreed to rejoin the clan now called the Athletic Association of Western Universities.

By accepting an invitation offered Tuesday, the Oregonians are following the example of Washington State University, which came back to the fold last year, causing the AAWU to be dubbed the Big Six.

The only team of the Pacific Coast nine still out of the group is Idaho.

On hearing of the agreement reached secretly by presidents of the eight universities Tuesday, Idaho's athletic director, J. Neal Stahley, said:

"It was expected, a foregone conclusion. We will continue our relations with some of the Big Six schools and whenever possible we will schedule them."

Officials of most of the schools involved expressed joy at news of the reunion.

Now that the Big Six has gained two members, effective July 1, sports writers are wondering what name they can hang on the AAWU. The "Big Eight" is already taken.

Most of the coaches and athletic directors reached for comment agreed that geographically the grouping was a natural one.

They echoed a statement issued by Dr. Norman Topping, president of the University of Southern California and chairmen of the board of presidents and chancellors of the AAWU:

"This action represents a natural association, not only for athletics but for higher education on the West Coast."

Topping, who has been prominent among those favoring return of the Oregon schools made his statement following a closed door session held at a San Francisco hotel.

So secret was the session that athletic officials at some of the schools didn't even know the presidents had called the meeting.

Attending the session were heads of the AAWU's Washington, Washington State, California, Stanford, USC and UCLA, as well as presidents of Oregon and Oregon State.

One of the biggest effects will be in Rose Bowl participation.

The admittance of Oregon schools makes them eligible to receive a full share of Rose Bowl receipts and technically qualifies them to be selected to represent the West in the 1965 New Year's Day classic, according to a statement made by one official following the meeting in San Francisco.

The teams belonging to the Pacific Coast Conference disbanded after a smoldering feud over issues of athletic policy and academic disagreement.

Eagles Trade Veterans McDonald, Jurgensen

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Joe Kuharich apparently has decided on one thing: if his Philadelphia Eagles are destined to finish last in the National Football League's Eastern Division in 1964, it won't be with the same old faces.

Kuharich, who recently took over the Eagles' coaching job under a four-year contract, unloaded another old face Tuesday, trading quarterback Sonny Jurgensen to the Washington Redskins for quarterback Norm Snead.

In addition, the Eagles sent defensive back Jimmy Carr to the Redskins for his counterpart, Claude Crabb.

The four-player deal was the second major move by the Eagles in less than two weeks. On March 20, Kuharich swapped pass-receiver Tommy McDonald to Dallas for two young linemen and a place kicker.

The only reason Kuharich offered for the Jurgensen deal was that he had obtained youth in the 24-year-old Snead.

The Carr - Crabb swap also gave the Eagles an age advantage. Carr is 31, Crabb 24.

Kuharich said the deal was "best in regard to our plans for the next four years or more . . . I know that Snead's record over the three years is impressive enough to indicate a very bright future for him."

On the other hand, Washington Coach Bill McPeak said he swapped youth for experience.

"Winning in 1964," said McPeak, "is imperative. Jurgensen, at this stage of his career, is more advanced than Snead, and I think, with the right supporting cast, he can take you all the way."

McPeak said he had not changed his prediction of future greatness for Snead, the Redskins' No. 1 draft choice in 1960.

Snead has been Washington's No. 1 quarterback since coming into the league from Wake Forest College in 1961. In three seasons the 6-foot-4, 215 - pounder has completed 581 passes for 8,306 yards and 46 touchdowns.

Jurgensen, fourth draft choice of the Eagles in 1957, tossed 32 touchdown passes in 1962 when the Eagles finished second in the East, but the one-time Duke great has been beset by injuries ever since. Last year he missed half the season because of arm trouble.

49ers Sign Two Rookies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League announced the signing of two rookies Tuesday.

One of them is Michael Ruiz, 6-foot-2, 235 - pound linebacker from Adams State of Alamosa, Colo. He was signed as a free agent.

The other signed by the 49ers was Dennis Almquist of Mullan, Idaho, who played guard for the University of Idaho.

He was the 11th draft choice of the San Francisco club.

T-Birds Pound Central In Wild League Contest

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Wasson's Gib Funk and Ed Lesar of Pueblo Central are coaches who find mechanical mistakes on the baseball diamond about as funny as a top-grade horror movie. That being the case, Wednesdays performance by their current clubs at Memorial Park certainly provided more chills than chuckles.

Actually Funk had reason to work up a couple of smiles at the end of the two-hour-and-a-half marathon. His team survived streaks of wildness on the mound and periodic spells of erratic play in the field to club the Wildcats 14-7 and even its South Central League record at 1-1.

This afternoon the Thunderbirds return to Memorial Park for a non-league contest with Boulder of the Northern League. Starting time is 3 p.m. and righthander Bob Torrie, a transfer student from the state of Washington, is the most likely candidate for a starting role on the mound. He and lefty Al Maynard both were bypassed in the Tuesday struggle and should be well rested for today's effort.

If Funk found portions of Tuesday's contest a bit grim, then Lesar must have returned to Pueblo in an ambulance. Of the 14 errors in the game his Wildcats held the claim check for 10. In addition Central succumbed to habit and fell prey to a typical display of Wasson jitterbugging on the basepaths. Forewarned by their coach, the Wildcats nevertheless saw their defense split like an overripe melon with the first assault by Wasson's mercury - heeled thieves. The 'Birds swiped nine bases, including home twice.

The Thunderbirds' problems were late coming and by the time they arrived the decision was fairly secure. Righthander Clay Chambers, who is a sort of baseball handyman, drew his first pitching start of the season and had the Wildcats purring like kittens until a sudden streak of wildness prompted his withdrawal in the sixth inning. The 'Cats, who were down 9-1 at the time, eventually closed the gap to 9-6 off Chambers and reliever, Bob Kochis.

That streak of impudence signaled the Thunderbird base runners back into action and for a few merry minutes in the bottom of the sixth the Wildcats probably thought the diamond was revolving on an axis. Wasson stole five more bases in that frame. In addition to the larceny, Central chipped in with four errors, all by excited infielders who were trying to follow the ball and the flitting forms of T-Bird runners at the same time.

Chambers, who allowed only a pair of scratch hits over the first five innings, received credit for the victory. Oddly enough he has now been the winning pitcher in all three Thunderbird triumphs this spring. Kochis, who staggered through the final two outs in the sixth, gave way to Bill Brandt in the seventh. Brandt issued three passes and gave up an unearned run but eventually got back to the dugout by fanning Dan Piagnatto with the bases loaded.

As far as an improvement in the Wasson hitting — Tuesday's game was of little benefit. Three Central hurlers, starting with Dan Kochevar, were liberal with first base passes and the T-Birds eventually scored their 14 runs with the aid of only six hits, none of which were for extra bases. No one in the lineup had more than one.

The main concern had to be with the pitching. Chambers had most of the Wildcats with one foot in the dugout while his breaking pitches were making contact with home plate. But overall, he and Brandt issued 11 walks, the most awarded by Wasson hurlers in one game in more than three seasons. The T-Birds also had some bad moments in the field — but, in contrast, came up with some fielding gems as well.

The first was a sparkling double play started by third-baseman Mike Teague with the bases loaded and no one out in the second. Teague fired home and Hal Meller relayed to first to pull the 'Bird out of a serious jam.

Wasson then slipped over a run in the bottom of the second as dart-quick Jim Smith stole home. Central tied the score on a fluke triple and sacrifice fly in the third but the 'Birds went ahead to stay with a pair of tallies on just one hit in their half of the frame. Wasson used a single safety to score twice more in the fifth and had only two hits in the four run fifth.

The victory moved the defending co-champions into posiion to launch a serious run for a third straight title Saturday when they travel to Pueblo to battle Centennial's Bulldogs who tied them for the crown in 1963. A victory there will probably demand a more polished effort than Tuesday's, however.

Harrison Slips Past Widefield

Behind the strong arm of Danny Gieck, the Harrison baseball squad posted a 2-1 triumph over the home team Widefield in non-league play, Tuesday afternoon at the Gladiators' field.

Although the Widefield team loaded the bases in the final inning with no outs, Gieck managed to retire the side and hold onto his one run lead.

Gieck forced Bill Alexander to fly out to second base for the first out in that final stanza while the Harrison hurler struck out the last two batters, Rick Sutton and Glenn Wheller, to retire the side. Gieck registered eight strike outs.

The Panther batsmen collected eight hits off three Widefield pitchers and scored single tallies in the third and fifth inning.

Grants-in-Aids Signing Begin In SEC Today

ATLANTA (AP)—The signing of high school players to basketball grants-in-aid begins today in the Southeastern Conference, with a slim possibility that Kentucky might come up with a Negro player.

There have been reports that Coach Adolph Rupp had hopes of landing Wesley Unsell of Louisville's Seneca High. Unsell, a 6-foot-8, 235-pounder, is a top prospect. His school won the state championship two years in a row.

There are no Negroes playing in the Southeastern Conference at present in any sport, although Steve Matthews, a transfer student from Detroit, is trying to make Kentucky's football team.

Bill Marolt Favored to Capture Roch Cup Slalom Event at Aspen

By ROBERT E. COX
United Press International

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI)— Surprising Bill Marolt comes home to Aspen Mountain this weekend, favored to take his third slalom crown in as many weeks during the Roch Cup ski races.

Two weeks ago, the Olympic skier—groomed for downhill racing—wasn't rated a strong slalom threat by anybody.

But today, he's a favorite to take the slalom, set for Sunday, and most residents of this small Western Slope resort think he has the best chance in about 40 male competitors for the combined honors in the three-day meet.

Marolt has outskied everybody's guesses during the past two big slalom races on other Colorado mountains—cracking a long dry spell two weekends ago at Winter Park, and winning again last weekend at Crested Butte.

Experts said Olympic slalom silver medal winner Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., probably would have won the National Alpine slalom at Winter Park if he hadn't fallen during his first run. But there was no disputing Marolt's stunning slalom win last Sunday at the North American Alpine Championships at Crested Butte.

Marolt overcame a two-tenths of a second lead built up by Kidd on the first run by snaking down the course in 53.3 seconds on the second go-around, and beating Kidd by seven-tenths of a second in total time.

Kidd won the giant slalom in both recent meets and the combined at Crested Butte.

Marolt, who made as much news in incidents with Austrian police during the Olympics as Kidd and Jim Huega of Lake Tahoe, Calif., generated when they took silver and bronze slalom medals, said after his Crested Butte win:

"I have a lot more confidence than I had earlier this season. When I get at the start I really want to fire 'em down hill. It's a great feeling."

In women's competition this weekend, little Pia Riva looks to have the best chance for a combined title in downhill, giant slalom and slalom events, to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in that order.

Miss Riva, a 28-year-old Italian Olympian from Milan, has been overshadowing her North American competitors in the recent last-of-the-season meets in Colorado. She won the giant slalom at Winter Park and the slalom at Crested Butte, and placed high up in the standings in many other events.

But, because of her nationality, she has not been eligible for formal awards in the two meets. This weekend it's different, and the little brunette, who hopes to get a job in America and stay for awhile, will be looking for some souvenirs this weekend.

Miss Riva found her toughest competition at Winter Park in smiling Jean Saubert, who rumor here has it, might take a brief leave from the University of Oregon to come back to Colorado and compete this weekend.

Miss Saubert won a bronze and a silver medal at the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and then came to Colorado to sweep all four championships at Winter Park. Miss Riva beat Miss Saubert in the giant slalom there, but her ineligibility forwarded the first place honor to Miss Saubert, giving her firsts in slalom, giant slalom, downhill and combined.

Miss Saubert did not compete at Crested Butte, and it still was not definitely known today whether she would be among approximately 15 women competitors here this weekend.

Bucs Nip Manitou In Opener

By DICK FOSTER

Coach Dan Wright's baseball Bucs pushed one run across in the bottom of the sixth inning to edge Manitou's Mustangs, 10-9, Tuesday afternoon at Monument Valley field. The scheduled seven-inning affair was called after six frames because of darkness, and St. Mary's picked up the win in their first outing of the season.

The same two teams meet again Thursday, in a game slated for 4 p.m. at the Mustangs' home diamond, where Manitou will begin a weekend marathon, involving St. Mary's Thursday, Academy High in their first Pikes Peak League contest Friday at 4 p.m., and finally, Wasson "B" squad on Saturday at 10 a.m. at Manitou.

The Mustangs got things rolling in a hurry when their first man to the plate, John Fletcher, tripled. Bill Schorer followed, hit by a pitch. Fletcher came across on Terry Martin's infield hit and Schorer scored later when Dick Haynes singled.

St. Mary's countered with some solid wood, and Dave Grantz, George Walker, Pat McElderry and Pat Graham sent Mike Viondini, Grantz and Walker across the plate to put St. Mary's in front, 3-2.

Weak hitting on the Mustangs part, and some timely pitching by the Pirates' Rick Ferguson made for sparse Manitou scoring in the four innings following the first. Fletcher and Dan Wheeler crossed in the second and Bucky Ravenstein tallied in the fourth.

Besides the three run first frame, St. Mary's had a big fourth inning which padded the Buc's lead. Daryl Grantz scored in the second on a wild pitch and Bob Kabot came across in the third on another bad pitch. The same three that pulled St. Mary's ahead in the first inning, Biondini, Grantz, and Walker, were responsible for the lead the Bucs picked up in the fourth frame. Biondini walked, Grantz doubled sending Biondini home. Walker singled moving Grantz to third and both Walker and Grantz scored on Pat McElderry's single and error play, which sent the latter to third.

The Bucs added their ninth run in the bottom of the fifth when Rick Ferguson doubled and scored on Dave Grantz's sacrifice fly. It was 9-5 at the end of five.

Manitou's sixth inning was their big comeback story. Rupert Sullivan's diamondeers scored four runs to tie the game up. Frank Liby was the first to score. Fletcher, Wheeler and Schorer all followed.

Sophomore Pat Graham gave the Bucs their winning run in the last of the sixth. The little sophomore got on on an error, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored when Daryl Grantz singled. Nothing followed that except the umpire's calling of the game due to darkness.

TO MAKE BOXING DEBUT — Ralph Rogers, 120-pounds, will make his boxing debut this Saturday when St. Mary's hosts Machebeuf in a dual meet at the Pirates gymnasium. Rogers will be entered in the novice division. There will be 10 matches on Saturday's slate with each bout scheduled for three rounds (two-minute rounds). Ed Kintz revived boxing at the local school for the first time in seven years. The St. Mary's boxing team will also participate in the State Parochial Championships set for April 8-11 at the St. Joseph's gym in Denver.

Montreal, Detroit Net Victories in NHL Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pocket Rocket and Mr Zero came through with clutch performances, leaving the Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings in the drivers' seats today in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs.

Henri Richard, the little Rocket, scored with 25 seconds left to give the Canadiens a 3-2 victory over Toronto and goalie Terry Sawchuk posted his 11th Cup shutout in the Wings' 3-0 conquest of Chicago.

The triumphs gave Montreal and Detroit 2-1 margins in the best-of-seven semifinal series. The competition resumes in Toronto and Detroit Thursday night.

Richard, whose big brother Maurice holds the playoff record of 18 winning goals, stole the puck from Allan Stanley, the Leafs' veteran defenseman, and beat Johnny Bower on a solo effort for the deciding goal. The tally capped an uphill battle for the Canadiens, who tied the score on J.C. Tremblay's goal with only 2:35 remaining in the third period.

Sawchuk strained a shoulder muscle in Sunday's game at Chicago and was released from the hospital late Tuesday after being in traction for more than 24 hours. He made 26 saves, four on point-blank shots.

Denver-L. A. Meet Tonight In Fourth Playoff Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) —The Denver Invaders and the upstart Los Angeles Blades face off tonight in the fourth semifinal game of the Western Hockey League playoff, with Los Angeles leading in the series, 2-1.

The Invaders, who ran off with the regular season title, may be handicapped by the absence of their goalie, Al Millar, who is out of action with a bone fracture of his left, or catching, hand.

Millar's injury occurred Monday night when the Blades forged ahead in the series, 4-3. Denver Coach Rudy Pilous rushed in a replacement, Marcel Paille, the league's standby goal tender.

Paille is highly regarded and a club spokesman said Millar's absence might not be too costly. It appears doubtful that Millar will get into the fifth game here Friday night.

Los Angeles defeated the Invaders in the first of two games at Denver, 7-3, but lost the second encounter, 8-2.

Colts Shred Dodgers Untouchable Label

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

No immediate call for reinforcements is being considered, but cause for concern may be building at Los Angeles Dodgers headquarters over another shelling administered to the Untouchables.

For two straight days, the weak sisters of the National League Mob have fired a fusilade of hits and further shredded the Untouchable label attached to the Dodgers' four key pitchers — Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski.

It was Podres' turn Tuesday as the Houston Colts ricocheted 11 hits around their Cocoa, Fla., base, came up with six runs in five innings and went on to a 6-3 exhibition baseball victory.

The day before, Drysdale had been subjected to a similar attack by the New York Mets, who belted the right-handed ace of the Los Angeles staff for eight hits and four earned runs in six innings.

In all, the Big Four—credited with 74 of the Dodgers' 99 victories en route to the National League pennant last season—has been tagged for 64 hits in 59 innings.

Even Koufax has not been safe. The brilliant left-handed strikeout artist who posted a 25-5 record, pitched 11 shutouts and had a 1.88 earned run average last year has given up 21 hits in 22 innings this spring and has a 3.27 ERA.

The hitting stars for the day were shortstops—Ron Hansen of the Chicago White Sox, Washington's Ed Brinkman and Philadelphia's Bobby Wine.

Hansen, who hit .226 last year, slammed two homers and drove in six runs as the White Sox edged St. Louis 7-6. Brinkman, a .228 batter, stroked two doubles and three singles in the Senators' 11-5 walloping of Baltimore.

Wine, a .215 hitter, had been hitless in 18 previous trips to the plate when he came up in the 11th inning with the bases loaded and slashed a single that gave the Phillies a 4-3 decision over Cincinnati.

Ron Santo hit a homer and two singles in the Chicago Cubs' 6-2 triumph over Cleveland. Willie Stargell banged a two-run homer as Pittsburgh belted the New York Mets 8-4 and Milwaukee's Hank Aaron homered for Milwaukee in a 6-3 victory over Detroit.

In other games, San Francisco walloped Boston 9-1, Kansas City edged the New York Yankees 5-4 in 10 innings, Minnesota shut out the Philadelphia B team 6-0 and the Los Angeles Angels defeated Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League 8-5.

Arizona Harriers Trip CU

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Arizona won 10 events as the Wildcats easily defeated Colorado and Wyoming in a triangular trackmeet Tuesday night.

The hosts piled up 82 points to 59 for Colorado and 40 for Wyoming.

Arizona's Gayle Hopkins won three events, taking the broad jump at 22-feet 11¾-inches, the high jump at 6-2 and the triple jump at 45-11¾.

Arizona also had a double winner in Steven Robbins who won the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds and the 220 in 21.2.

Florence Posts Win Over Manzanola, 3-2

FLORENCE — The Huskies' baseball team picked up their second straight victory of the season when the Florence nine recorded a 3-2 victory over visiting Manzanola, Tuesday afternoon.

Paul Hardrick was credited with the win as the Florence hurler limited the visiting team to four hits. Rodney Irvin and Dave Cristelli provided the batting power as both Florence players collected two hits and one RBI apiece.

Herb Woolsey knocked in the final Florence run as the former basketball standout blasted a triple. The Huskies collected a total of five hits to tally three runs.

LIMBERING UP—Candidates for next fall's varsity football team at the Air Force Academy limber-up with back bends and neck bridging at the start of practice. The Falcons started spring practice on Monday and will continue on a daily basis as long as weather permits. The spring drills are scheduled to wind up May 2 with the annual Silver-Blue intrasquad game in Falcon Stadium. Coach Ben Martin, with 19 lettermen returning, is preparing his squad for one of the most rugged schedules in the AFA's history.

As Spring Begins . . .

AFA Winter Sports End With NCAA Tourneys

With the spring sports schedule in full swing, winter squads have finally closed their season at the Air Force Academy with the competition last weekend in NCAA national championships.

There were no team titles taken by the Falcons, but a few of the individuals entered earned high finishes in the standings and could come in for honors at a later date.

Meanwhile at the Academy, spring football practice is the only local activity this week with all other teams on the road in early season contests. The schedule this week calls for the baseball team to have a single game on Friday and a doubleheader Saturday at San Diego State in California.

The golf team will also be in California for matches against Claremont College on Friday and at the University of California on Saturday. The tennis team takes on California U. Friday and California Western at San Diego on Saturday, and the track squad will travel to the Kentucky Relays at Lexington, Saturday.

On the freshman level, there will be a local doubleheader in baseball this Saturday as the fledgling Falcons entertain Denver University at 12:30 p.m.

GYMNASTICS — A possible All-American title might be in the offing for the Falcons' tumbler, Doug Reynolds, following his second place finish in the NCAA Gymnastics Championships held last weekend at Los Angeles State College.

But for the young sophomore from Pekin, Ill., it was his first experience at being other than first. During the regular dual season he was undefeated.

In other categories, Terry Higgins — another sophomore from Reseda, Calif. — finished ninth on the high bar after breaking in his routine, and the Academy's Gerald King, a senior from Tucson, Ariz., took seventh place in the side horse.

Higgins set the gymnastics world on its ear Friday when the sophomore led all contestants through the preliminaries and was standing alone in first place going into the finals.

Should Reynolds be honored with an All-America rating he would be only the second Falcon to gain such distinction in the gymnastics field. The Falcon's first, and only, All-American gymnast was Jim Weaver, who earned that title on the trampoline in 1962.

WRESTLING — A loss in the semi-finals ruined a bid by the Academy's great Terry Isaacson for a third consecutive "All-American" title. Terry entered as a 167-pound contender in the 1964 NCAA Wrestling Championships, finished sixth in that meet held at Cornell University.

Although denied an All-American title for 1964, Terry still capped his wrestling career as the greatest grappler in Falcon history with a string of 29 wins in college dual competition, and no losses, and the 167-pound Mountain Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championship for 1964.

SWIMMING — With more experience to be gained than honors, the Academy's great diver, Dan McLean, competed in the 1964 NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships, held at Yale University, and finished 20th among 40 of the best divers in the country.

Still ahead of the young sophomore from K. I. Sawyer AFB, Mich., is the 1964 National AAU Men's Indoor Platform Diving Championships, scheduled at the Air Force Academy, April 7.

Russell Leads Celtics Win in NBA Opening Tilt

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—"Bill Russell and defense were the story," Coach Red Auerbach said as he slumped wearily onto the dressing room bench.

The old pro Boston Celtics had just beaten Cincinnati 103-87 and taken a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Division finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Jack McMahon, disappointed coach of the Royals, has more than the defeat on his mind. He forecasts a gloomy future unless rookie rebounder Jerry Lucas improves tremendously — and quickly. What's more Oscar Robertson, the league's Most Valuable Player, is scheduled for an X-ray of his aching right wrist Wednesday.

While the second game of the Eastern struggle is here Thursday night, the Western finals open with St. Louis at San Francisco Wednesday night. The Hawks ousted Los Angeles in the division semifinals.

Russell scored 18 points, grabbed 31 rebounds, blocked nearly a dozen shots and helped demoralize Cincinnati on an off night.

"That Russell is fantastic," Auerbach said. "When he plays like that any opponent is in trouble. He sure dominated this game.

"Our defense was good in the second quarter and again in the third when he broke it open. We did a good job on Robertson. I can't use enough superlatives about him and his 20 points have to be the lowest against us all year.

"I don't know about future games. But they keep counting us out and we keep showing up."

Auerbach added with a sigh: "This first game's a tough one."

"We don't have much of a future unless Lucas can break out of it," McMahon said. "The whole pattern of our team is based on his rebounding."

In 45 minutes, Lucas managed only 11 points and seven rebounds.

Sam Jones, game high scorer with 27 points, including 20 in the second half, sparked a third-quarter clincer as Boston scored on its first seven field goal attempts. Tommy Heinsohn added 20.

Wayne Embry led the Royals with 21.

Aurora Topples Wasson

Paced by the double victory of Terry Truman, the Aurora Central gymnastics team scored a 69-43 triumph over Wasson's Thunderbirds Tuesday afternoon at the Wasson gym. Truman won both the Parallel Bars event and the Tumbling and he also placed second in the Floor Exercise and fifth in the Horizontal Bar to gain 17 points for the winners.

Wasson was able to win only two of the seven events with John Stock taking the Trampoline and Fred Schanburger the Horizontal Bar. However, second place finishes were recorded by Wasson's Art Wright in Side Horse, Dave Caulder in Horizontal Bar and Dennis Berg in Tumbling.

Complete meet results are as follows:

Roy Saari Olympics Top Hope

By BOB HARING

That prophetic paragraph was written two years ago. But, except for Saari's age-he's 19 now—it's still correct.

Saari is perhaps the outstanding individual performer in the Men's National AAU Swimming and Diving Championships beginning here Thursday.

For the past two years he has won three events in the AAU indoor. Last week he was the only triple winner at the National Collegiate Championships. Now he'll be trying for a third straight AAU triple.

Saari, who first burst into Olympic prominence at the AAU indoor here two years ago, holds the world's record in the 1,500-meter freestyle. He has set American records in freestyle events from 200 yards to 1,650 yards and also has set American marks in the 200 and 400-yard individual medleys.

Saari, son of an El Segundo, Calif., swimming coach and a sophomore at the University of Southern California, will be after his first victory in this meet Thursday. He's entered in both the 400-yard individual medley and 1,650-yard freestyle, both of which he won in record time last year, but is expected to choose only the longer race.

He won the 1,650 easily at the collegiate meet in 16:49 minutes, which bettered his listed American record. He might be more closely pressed here, because his main long-distance rival, Don Schollander of Santa Clara, Calif., is a high school boy.

Saari also is in the 500-yard freestyle and is entered in both the 200-yard individual medley and freestyle, but probably will compete in the medley, which he won in a record 1:56.7 at the NCAA.

Invader Goalie Awarded WHL 'Three Star'

SEATTLE (AP) — Goalie Al Millar of Denver is the 1964 winner of the Three Star selection contest and the $100 that goes with the annual award, Western Hockey Leageu headquarters reported Tuesday.

During the season a hockey expert in each city, picked by management, selects three outstanding players in each game. Points are awarded and the player with the highest point total at the season's end is the winner.

Guyle Fielder of Seattle, league leading scorer, placed second. Fielder also was the No. 2 selection for the league's "Most Gentlemanly Player."

Eichelberger Enters PBA Denver Tourney

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

There will be no foolish pranks on this April Fools Day in Denver. At least the 96 professional and 10 amateur bowlers will skip the traditional practical jokes today and concentrate on the $25,000 in cash up for grabs to the winners of the second annual PBA Denver Open Tournament.

Harry (Ike) Eichelberger, who was the top state qualifier for the 10 amateur slots conducted last month, will be the only entry in the Denver Open from Colorado Springs. The Denver Open kicks off today and continues through Saturday at the Celebrity Sports Center.

The Ent AFB warrant officer will pit his kegling skill against the national touring pros. Eichelberger and the PBA pros will be faced with competing against a new crop of youngsters including the Denver Open defending champion, Andy Marzich and 22-year-old hotshot, Bill Hardwick.

Marzich, 29, became big bowling news in January, 1963, when he won the Denver Open after recording a victory at St. Paul, Minn. Since his Denver win, Marzich has won tournaments at St. Louis (twice) and at Boston, and gained a second at Ft. Smith, Ark. He accumulated more than $43,000 on the PBA tour within 15 months and bowled at 206.72 clip.

Hardwick has established one of the most amazing rises in the history of the game. After failing to win anything in 1962, he entered 26 tournaments in 1963 and 1964 winning at Mobile, Phoenix and Los Angleles. Hardwick also captured the national PBA fourth annual Championships at Garden City, Long Island. He is the only professional to maintain an average in excess of 210 on the tour and has won more than $33,000 during the 1963 summer and current 1963-64 PBA tours.

Although Eichelberger is considered an amateur, he is accustomed to the pressure which accompanies such competitive tournaments as the Denver Open. Eichelberger, who was the leading Colorado Bowling Stars Association tourney winner last season, is a seasoned veteran having competed in 26 state and national tournaments last year.

Eichelberger indicated that it probably will take a 207 average to qualify for the semi-finals. The field of 106 pros and amateurs will be trimmed to 16 finalists after today and Friday's shooting.

The 16-man group will then continue with two sessions Friday before the top four keglers are determined. Pinfall counts will carry through Friday, but the bowlers will pick up 50 additional points for each match won in the head-to-head competition.

For the first time, the finals will be conducted on a different format. The finals are limited to four men, the same as last year, but each of the three runner-ups from the semi-final field of 16 will roll against each other in head-to-head matches while the high scorer sits on the sidelines.

The winner of the roll-off will then face the number one finalist for the championship which will be televised over ABC on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The winner is slated to receive $4,000.

According to PBA officials, Don Carter and Dick Weber of St. Louis will not compete in the tournament. Weber is committed to the Friday night Make That Spare TV show on which he won $5,000 last week by picking up the 6-7-10, while Carter came down with the flu.

In their place will be Bob Strampe of Detroit and Bill Aziz of El Paso. Strampe, the All-Star champion, is the leading money winner on the current PBA tour with $16,600.

Shea Stadium's Scoreboard Even to Keep Mets' Score

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tune in the new Shea Stadium scoreboard, and find out.

The scoreboard, largest in the world, is being built for the new stadium in which the Mets will open against the Pittsburgh Pirates on Apr. 17. The board has 28,000 lights, shows movies, plays music in color—and even keeps score.

A model was unveilled Tuesday at a Manhattan hotel, and the press was duly impressed.

First, the inventor, Bob Roston, played some music on a tape recorder. Each musical note produced a different color on the white shell in back of the scoreboard. The shell is 175 feet long, which will give you an idea of the size of this new board.

"High notes come out in yel- darker colors for the low notes," darkr colors for th low nots," Roston said. "It's the first time this has ever been tried on a scoreboard."

Roston's firm designed the exploding scoreboard for the Chicago White Sox. He said this one will be much larger, but it will not explode.

Roston didn't say, but the reason probably is that gunpowder could go stale waiting for the 10th-place Mets to hit a homer.

Instead the board will play music, flash the colors, display the words for songs, and show color slides of each player as he comes to bat on a screen that works like the ones in the drive-in movies.

The board can also show movies, or even television programs, if a game is held up by rain.

This brought suggestions that the board be used to bring in the broadcasts of other games, on those frequent occasions when the Mets are behind 13-1 in the third inning.

Roston played some more music, this time "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," and the colors flashed on and off on the white shell like the background for an old Esther Williams movie.

Phil Cagnoni Awarded Letter At Dartmouth

HANOVER, N. H. — Phil Cagnoni of Colorado Springs recently was awarded a varsity letter as forward with the Dartmouth hockey team, which this season won the Ivy League title. Cagnoni, a junior majoring in Spanish, was sixth leading scorer on the team despite playing most of the campaign with his shoulder heavily bandaged.

He was on Dartmouth's starting line and had 11 goals and seven assists in 21 games. Cagnoni left five days after the season ended to finish the year's studies in Spain.

While at Cheyenne Mountain High, Phil was an honor student and was voted the outstanding citizen of the school by the faculty. When Cagnoni was with Cheyenne the Indians won the City Championship three straight years.

He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi social fraternity at Dartmouth and is a member of the Sphinx Senior Honor Society.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Melting Pot of Europe

It has often been pointed out that one of the great merits of the United States is that it is a "melting pot," a place where persons of many nationalities and races can get together and work and live in harmony. Whatever the original nationality or race, it has been stated that here we all become Americans.

We are "melted" or merged together in a common bond of understanding.

From this happy circumstance, recently marred by racial violence, there has grown up the idea that this blending of various nationalities was made possible by the government of the United States. Actually, it was not. The real "pot" in which the melting has occurred in this nation, was the huge vessel of our magnificent economics system.

And an interesting series of events is now occurring in Europe to underscore the fact that it is not government that brings us together and resolves our difficulties, but rather the fact that men can and will work together in common understanding when sufficient freedom in the economy can be found.

Post World War II Europe is labor poor. In West Germany, France and Switzerland there is an almost chronic labor shortage. To meet this shortage, workers are being imported from Spain, Greece, Italy and Turkey. Modern Europe, still handicapped by having a score of conflicting, arbitrary and predatory governments, is becoming a "melting pot" in its own right, simply because there are jobs available and men come from far places to fill those jobs.

We are reminded of the strident notes coming from Washington in which it is claimed that our own "Peace Corps" has done such an outstanding job. It has never begun to create the understanding and good feeling which Western Europe is beginning to create without much in the way of a political assist.

And we are thinking in terms of the announced "war on poverty" which will impoverish the productive under the faulty notion that more wealth can be had by the many if the government will penalize the producers and take away what they have.

Thanks to the migration of workers, Italy, which began the post-war epoch with a labor surplus and vast unemployment, nearly has the problem licked. Her excess labor has gone elsewhere. One West German firm now hires 3,000 Turks, 2,000 Italians, 500 Greeks and 500 Spaniards. Another firm employs men from two dozen different countries.

We can only comment that Western Europe, at the moment, is engaged in teaching us or reminding us of a lesson we should have learned long ago. When goods and services do not cross boundaries, soldiers will. But when goods, and, in this case, services, are permitted to cross boundaries freely, shifts in population bring about far better understanding, a higher economic standard, increased production and productivity, and a lot of beneficial by-products.

Incidentally, the European worker shortage has caused wages to rise there without the belligerence of union bossism. Wages are now rising more rapidly in Western Europe than in America. And this is having a beneficial result in this country. For European goods, manufactured with lower wage costs, had a trade advantage in this country. Now this advantage is lessening as European employers bid up the wages of workers in their competitive drive for new employees.

All of which serves to illustrate the fact, so often observed, that a free and unimpaired market works to the advantage of all and sundry.

If political barriers are removed from economic areas, then the finest workers will be drawn to the best paying jobs the world around. The finest merchandise will be produced and offered for sale around the world. And customers will all benefit by being able to buy more through wider selection and lower prices.

Best of all, fellowship and understanding is encouraged and promoted through a free market. And this procedure will do more to eliminate international tensions than all the diplomats and Peace Corps ever conceived.

Buy Your Own

When you want to build something, buy your own bricks. No building is ever entirely satisfactory which is constructed of bricks torn from the other fellow's edifice.

Politician Without A Peer

The federal administration of President Johnson seems to have adopted a very slick political gimmick. For a number of weeks the boys in Washington discussed the 1965 fiscal year in terms of "anticipated" budgeting which was estimated to require something close to $103 billion.

Then, with heroic stance, the administration stated that it was FOR real economy and that it planned to hold expenses down to $100 billion. It would take a struggle, but it would be done.

Following this, the President came forward with his "State of the Union" message in which he announced that he had "reduced" the spending total in 1965 to a mere $97.9 billion.

Moreover, the estimated deficit, the President declared, would be only half of what it will be in 1964.

The impression was certainly created that the Johnson administration was a frugal one for its earliest manufactured image was one of care and thrift. And this image was enhanced by the reality of a tax cut retroactive to the first of 1964.

But administrative budget estimates for revenue for 1965 total an optimistic $93 billion which, if it occurs, will be the largest gross revenue receipts from taxes ever obtained from the American taxpayers. It will represent, not a reduction, but an INCREASE in total dollar take that year.

The gimmick is shrewd. In the midst of getting more dollars, the administration is able to pose as economy minded.

The President further embellished his position by claiming that he would "keep costs under tight control." Propaganda in favor of the $97.9 billion budget has it that that much money is "austere" and that it was derived from "vigorous pruning of old programs and procedures."

An examination by the Tax Foundation of New York raises some interesting questions. The foundation, in a circular letter, states that upon a careful examination of the budget, such "pruning" of old programs and procedures fails to come to light. Though possible reductions may occur in defense spending and in the area of agriculture and housing and community development, NEW programs, suggested by the President, appear to be capable of wiping out all possible savings, plunging the nation into greater debt and introducing a far larger expenditure in the area of paying interest on new borrowings.

Apparently, the President is basing most of his "economy drive" on the idea that as a result of the tax cut, the "gross national product" will expand by some $38 billion above the 1964 level.

Even with the administration's politically sound optimism, the federal debt picture looks this way. At the end of 1960 the debt stood at $286.3 billion. In 1963 it had climbed to $305.9 billion. The estimated deficit for this year is expected to put us further in the red up to $311.8 billion. And the forecast for 1965 places the expected debt total at $317 billion.

The administration's "war on poverty" is going to cost the productive segment of the economy many many millions of dollars.

And there is just a possibility that Mr. Johnson is moving into the 1964 fiscal year certain expenditures that otherwise would occur in 1965, to make 1965 LOOK better than 1964.

The Tax Foundation concludes that "proposed new programs would lead to far greater spending in the future than in 1965."

Mr. Johnson is demonstrating that if he is not a sound economist, he is at least a politician who knows no peer.

The Individuals

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

The number of individuals who are interested in discussing various aspects of the freedom philosophy is certainly growing. During the past five days almost all of my time has been spent in discussions with Mr. Spaulding from Canoga Park, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Lee from South Laguna Beach, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heinlein (he's the science-fiction author from Colorado Springs), Mr. Lewis Culver from Canoga Park, Calif., and Capt. Kidd from Garden Grove, Calif., who flew his private plane and landed on the private property of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young at Grasshopper Junction. In addition, Mr. Briscoe of Chloride sat in on two of the discussion sessions.

The rugged individualism of each of these good people was readily apparent. As a matter of fact I discovered I could facilitate the exchange of ideas by carefully studying the manner in which each of the individuals used words and before long I found myself acting as an interpreter who attempted to define words in relation to my belief in the understanding of each of the individuals.

For instance, Mr. Culver made the statement that a group exists only in the mind of an individual, in which case consideration of the action or reaction of a group, per se, may be a waste of time. On more than one occasion I have stated that my own interest is in individuals, not groups because anything that might be classed as a group is more correctly defined as a certain number of individuals and that no collective can be organized without individuals. From this point of view, we discussed the idea that government, as a group, does not exist except in the minds of those who think of government as an undefined mass. Further consideration, then, brought forth the idea that those who become involved with what is known as government, are constantly at work building an image of mass or collective power to disguise the fact that government is a number of individual tyrants.

At this point, it was a simple matter to recognize my own contention that socialism and communism and fascism exist only in the minds of those who are willing to accept the image of mass power as reality and in so doing become part of the problem which could not exist without their participation in the fraud. In other words, when no one does business with thieves, individual thieves will find it unprofitable to steal. When individual human beings have, for one reason or another, refused to recognize a power image as the real thing, the individuals who make up what we call government have accepted the fact, as in the case of the prohibition law.

We find then that if individuals refused to participate in the fraud which is socialism, socialists would go out of business. It is a complete waste of time to rave and rant against socialist power unless you wish to build a more powerful appearing image against which you do not wish to pit your own strength. The way to oppose socialism is to recognize the phony image for just an image and to refuse to do business with the image on a voluntary basis.

It is probably easy to fall into the habit of considering government as a faceless accumulation of power. When you pause to place faces on the individuals involved, the frightening image is replaced by reality because you realize you may be able to cope with each individual in a rational manner. As a matter of fact, politicians would prefer to have you not consider them from a strictly personal point of view except at election time; they frequently try to sell you on the idea of not discussing personalities while individually and personally planning another onslaught on your earnings.

The fact that an increasing number of individuals are finding it worthwhile to examine individualism is, I believe, important. From a recognition of the reality of an individual, a beginning in understanding of the freedom philosophy is only a very short step.

Good luck and good health to you in Freedom.

It's Up to You

Proposed World Court

By R. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

In 1946 the United Nations adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. It might be called a manifesto or a statement of ideals and is not binding upon member nations. Speaking in New York on November 17th, and again in Washington December 19th, Justice Arthur Goldberg urged that the Declaration be reduced to treaty form, ratified by member nations, and that an international court of human rights be established "to implement the essential civil rights of the Universal Declaration."

The Declaration of Human Rights calls for many things, some of which are: the right of every child to an education, the right of every able-bodied individual to a job, if he wants one, adequate housing, adequate medical care and hospitalization, an income sufficient to maintain a reasonably satisfactory standard of living and time for leisure, recreation, and amusement.

Justice Goldberg wants these and the other provisions made legal and enforceable by an international court, having jurisdiction over the nationals of the member states of the United Nations.

In the first place, it should be noted that there would be millions of cases, probably scores of millions of suits filed in the international court. Imagine the complaints that could be made by people who fancied they were inadequately housed or educated, were not provided with a congenial job with adequate leisure time for recreation and amusement! The number of people who could make complaints of that kind is almost as great as the number of nationals of the member nations of U.N.

Every government in the world would soon be bankrupted by the judgments the court might levy against it in its efforts to implement the Declaration of Human Rights. The utter impossibility of the proposal becomes apparent on even a cursory examination.

Worse still, if people believed they could get judgments from the international court entitling them to access to the public purse of their country to supply all these things for them, what would become of individual effort? How many millions would mark time until they could get a favorable judgment from the international court which would provide them with the things they wanted.

The proposed law, backed by the proposed court, would bring upon us the most chaotic condition in the history of the world and would complete the destruction of freedom, independence, self-reliance, and self-government. The resulting chaos would quickly bring totalitarianism upon us. It might possibly be some species of international tyranny, but it would be more likely to destroy the United Nations, to break up international cooperation, and to throw individual states back upon their own responsibility. If that should happen, it might be a blessing in disguise.

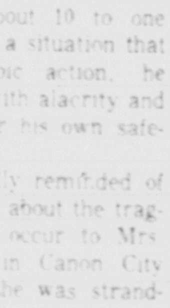
The Local Scene

Heartening News

By RUFUS L. PORTER



About the time we become utterly discouraged and disgusted from reading of man's foibles and follies, his sins and crimes, his inhumanity and lack of virtue, we come upon a piece of news that brings new encouragement and puts our thinking back in its proper perspective.

It is good to be reminded that men have virtues. They are not to be censured because their vices make better copy. According to the old "man bites dog" theory, only the bizarre makes news. If this is true, man's virtuous acts far outnumber his vicious ones and for that reason are not often considered newsworthy unless they are more or less spectacular.

We seldom think of the man in the street as a hero, but the chances are about 10 to one that, faced with a situation that called for heroic action, he would respond with alacrity and little thought for his own safety.

I was forcefully reminded of this when I read about the tragedy that didn't occur to Mrs. F. B. Hamby in Canon City recently when she was stranded in a stalled car on the railroad tracks with a train approaching. Showing great presence of mind, rare courage and complete disregard for his own safety, Joe Gallardo rammed Mrs. Hamby off the tracks and out of danger, doing considerable damage to his station wagon in the process. We salute Joe Gallardo; may his tribe increase.

According to the Labor Department report on manpower, only 300,000 full-time new jobs were provided from 1957 to 1963 by the productive part of the economy. Meanwhile the various governments, mostly state and local, provided two million new jobs and non-profit groups another 700,000. Eight hundred thousand more new jobs were financed by government support. This looks bad for the producers and profit makers who must support the whole economy.

Government spending, where it is being done in large amounts in a given area, always looks like a good thing to local businessmen, workers and others. But in the long run it can wreck the nation and wash everything down the drain. El Paso County, with 20 per cent of its working force in government employment of one form or another, has been on the receiving end of much governmental spending for a long stretch of years. And this has added greatly to the growth of the area. But such growth is not healthy. What the government gives, it can withhold.

That is why we must work unceasingly for new industries and businesses in the area, so when the bust comes it won't be fatal.

Most of the big spending here has been at the hands of the federal government with its many military installations. More than one great nation has sunk into oblivion because it feared its real or imagined enemies so much that it spent itself into bankruptcy trying to maintain a military establishment that it hoped would frighten the enemies off. This seems to be the route we are taking these days. It cost us a million dollars a day to wage the Civil War. It is now costing us 15 times that much just to "keep even" with the enemy in armaments. The Civil War was over in four years. We have been spending at this rate, or nearly so, for many years. How long can we keep it up?

Defense spending is a misnomer for something that is heading us into the bankruptcy our enemy predicted for us, and in the same manner.

A friend remarked the other day that if only governments make war why wouldn't one-world government be a good thing? It would have no other government to make war on—so the end of wars, in his opinion. The trouble with this theory is that governments are fully capable of making war on their own people. Governments are naked force. The bigger the government, the greater the power and the more force. One big government will result in total force against the total world population, supported by total taxation. SLAVERY — is that what we want?

These Days

Murphy Has A Law for It

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Something more ought to be said about this Ad Hoc Committee on the Triple Revolution which thinks that cybernation (a fancy word for extreme computer control of automated factories) is going to relieve almost all of us from the necessity of working. The Ad Hocers — or ad hockers, as I prefer to call them — argue that the only way to keep people consuming in the world of the future will be to divorce income from the need to draw down a paycheck, with the government doling out the money by way of what economist Milton Friedman calls "negative taxation." (Any man showing less than $3,000 a year on his tax form would automatically be presented with enough to bring him up to standard.)

Try as I may as I lug my aching carcass about the mechanized modern world, I can't see automation really taking over. How do you automate taxicab service? Or an advertising agency? Or a newspaper city room? Or door-to-door salesmanship? Or horse racing? Or Casey Stengel's Mets? Or two-platoon football? Or television repair work? Or the conduct of political campaigns? Or the making of moving pictures?

MORE AND MORE

You can make out list after list of this sort, and all you can conjure up in your mind's eye is a picture of more and more people being put to work because gadgets create the necessity for the endless supplementary jobs that seem inevitably to be called into being by the operations of efficiency experts.

Take the movies, for example. When Charlie Chaplin was making his inimitable silent pictures, he did a lot of the direction himself. But today the list of screen credits that go with a movie is, give or take a few yards, at least a quarter of a mile long.

The Post Office, you hear, is going to be automated, with mechanical scanning of zip code numbers. But how do you automate the processes involved in the interminable production of junk mail? The proliferation of sucker lists is guaranteed to get you eight invitations a day to subscribe to a magazine which you have already subscribed to for three years in advance. If you are dead, you still get the invitations. Meanwhile, men continue to plant trees for wood pulp and to manufacture paper and to compose deathless prose to sustain something extremely elaborate which, in itself, is a creation of the time-saving computers that enable people to manipulate sucker lists.

The big automobile companies have found many ingenious ways of cutting the labor costs of manufacturing a car. Cylinder blocks are machined without the intercession of a human hand. The assembly line has become the last word in efficiency. But the cars are so complicated that it takes hundreds of labor hours by garage mechanics to repair what can be made in Detroit in a few seconds flat. If you have a fender, a bumper and a grill replaced after an accident, the bill for the labor involved is more than the down payment for a new car.

GADGETS

Parkinson's Law, which states that "work expands to fill the time allotted to it," is one reason for believing that the fears of joblessness in an automated world are being vastly overplayed. But Parkinson's Law is not even the half of it. There is also Murphy's Law, which says that if there is any possibility of a thing going wrong it will.

There isn't a gadget made by automated factories that won't break down at least three times a year after its initial guarantee has run out. If only some of those disemployed factory hands would learn how to rebuild what they used to make, there wouldn't be an unemployment problem.

The Ad Hoc-ers, or ad hockers, have addressed their fears about the effects of automation to Lyndon Johnson in the White House. Lyndon has been around a long time, and he may have heard tell that Woodrow Wilson, who lived before the day of cybernetics, used to peck out his own speeches and letters on his own typewriter. Automation now saves the President a lot of work — but look at the gang that is needed in the White House today to keep the appointments, and to dial the numbers, and to type the eighth and ninth drafts of the speeches.

If Lyndon is as wise as I think he is, he'll tell the ad hockers that Murphy's Law also applies to their collective brains. Something could go wrong with them, and it did.

TRAFFIC FINES

To the Editor:

Regarding your comment to imposed fines for traffic violations in the March 27 issue of the Gazette Telegraph.

Colorado Springs is having its growing pains, as we must expect. In the area of automobile traffic, which certainly is an inevitable headache, we must constantly seek ways for an adequate flow. The people of Colorado Springs are paying good tax money to support engineering in this regard and it can hardly be argued that the new double-turn system here has not been proven to facilitate the moving of vehicles.

If we are to move ahead with modern methods or expect to get maximum use of what we have, we must learn to be alive and observing. If people are going to dream at the wheel and endanger the property of other people, it is perhaps necessary to impose a fine to awaken them. After the change in traffic regulations in this respect was publicized in the Gazette Telegraph and well detailed through the medium of television and the "BOX CAR" signs hung in place, at a most noticeable location I circled the block five times, each time using the optional turn lane. Each time I was obliged to slam on my brakes to avoid a collision because the driver in the "must turn" lane ignored the new traffic regulation. Also, on each occasion I was given a nasty blast from the violator's horn.

A few days later the police were worn out and disgusted from long days of warning violators. Now I ask you, "How much patience must these people endure"?

WILLIAM POTTER
2915 Concord St.

Editor's note: In answer to Mr. Potter's question, we suggest that policemen should have an INFINITE store of patience. They would need to have a good deal of it to cope with a man who adds to traffic congestion by circling a given block five times "each time using the optional turn lane" just to see how turning from the center lane affects the people in the right-hand lane.

Actually, we are not too certain the opening of the center lane to optional right turns is a real help.

What we now have is this: We have two lanes from which right-hand turns can be made. But we only have one lane from which a person can proceed to cross an intersection. Prior to the new signs we had two lanes from which a person could cross an intersection and only one wherein he could turn right.

In most cities where these optional turning signs are used, we believe they are put on one-way streets. Denver, for example, uses such signs extensively. Thus, in Denver, you have two possible lanes for right turning, but you also have three possible lanes for going thru the intersection.

The new regulations in Colorado Springs WILL be helpful IF more people go around a single block than want to cross the intersection. But if more people want to cross the intersection than go around the block, the new rules will be injurious and will create additional problems.

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 468: "The Constitution of the United States of America, under Amendment II, states a well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed. To your knowledge, has the right to bear arms (concealed on your person) ever been put to a test case, either in a state court or the Supreme Court of the United States?"

Answer: Colorado State Law, Article II, Section 13 of the Colorado constitution states that a citizen has a right to bear arms in defense of home, person or property: "But nothing herein contained shall be construed to justify the practice of carrying concealed weapons."

The state has had no test case in this regard. The only related case occurred in 1936 and appears in 99 Colorado Supreme Court Reports, page 262. It has to do with an alien, and a state statute prohibiting aliens from having any guns. The case of People versus Nakamura.

Federal rulings are much similar to those of the states and more or less allow state laws regarding the carrying of concealed weapons to supersede the constitutional amendment. The federal courts have held that this applies to acts of Congress only and does not affect the state rulings. Two cases, Miller versus Texas, 153 U.S. L. Ed. 812, American Jurisprudence Vol. 1104, and Robertson versus Baldwin 165 U.S. 275, 41 L. Ed. 715, applies to this holding that state statutes do not abridge any constitutional privilege of a citizen of the United States.

RUSSIAN STYLE

To the Editor:

We read communistic Albania expropriated the building of Russian Embassy in state's capital and sent Russian officals home. Russians yelled their heads off in protest and said that this building has been erected with their money and therefore belongs to them. This could be just a laughing matter if the philosophy of real estate law, Russian style, would not be behind this story.

1) If a small communist takes something from a big communist, the big one gets mad.

2) If a communist has a chance to grab some property belonging to a non-communist, it is not a crime but a "nationalization."

3) Albania would not have the courage to stand up if not supported by Red China.

We have not to look far to see the practice of communistic philosophy of law:

1) They said okay when Castro snatched American property in Cuba, property built or bought lawfully by American money, and called it "nationalization."

2) After the occupation of the Baltic states, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, the Russians "nationalized" all real estate, all business and all bank accounts. This is the truth, and part of their unpunished crimes. Today the little Albania is supported by big Red China, but who protects the free man and his property?

The free man looks for help and protection to U.S.A. and the same does the enslaved man behind the iron curtain in Cuba, Europe, Asia and elsewhere.

The unpunished crime of the communists should not be forgiven nor forgotten!

To the Editor:

The above amount made possible the assassination of President Kennedy.

This $435.71 paid for the return of Oswald, the communist, from Russia to the United States. This $435.71 was provided by an official of our State Department.

Why has this official not been called for questioning by the Earl Warren Committee supposed to be investigating the President's assassination?

Could it be they are afraid to call a State Department official for fear that such an investigation would expose a nest of communist vipers?

CHURCH SECTION

To the Editor:

Thank you so much for the splendid church section of the paper March 22. This was by far the best it has ever been my privilege to read. I have heard many favorable comments in the community about this fine section.

WELFARE PROGRAM

To the Editor:

My attention has been called to an article appearing in the Gazette Telegraph of March 29 captioned, "Homemaker Service Seeks Low-cost Family Aid" by the Colorado Medical Society. This excellent article describes family situations in which a "new" community service, called "homemakers," has met a very real need in some places, among which Denver is mentioned.

The article must have been prepared by someone connected with the State Medical Society as no reference is made to the homemaker service which has been in operation in the Child Welfare Unit of the El Paso County Welfare Department since February, 1957. This service began with one homemaker, Mrs. Elva Ewy, who is still with the program. At present, a total of ten homemakers are employed on this program and their services are in constant demand. These homemakers are primarily placed in homes where the mother is ill or must spend some time in the hospital and where small children need the ministrations of a temporary mother figure. Where the family is able, they are expected to help meet the expense of this service, but where this is not possible the service is given without charge. Applications for the service are submitted to the Child Welfare office.

It is true that home-helpers, or home aides, would be very helpful in many homes of adults where, due to disability, illness, or age, some assistance is needed to keep family together, or save the heavy expense of nursing home care. Such a program has not yet been developed locally although it is one which has been contemplated at times by the County Welfare Department. This would be an area for experimentation by private community agencies if that is felt to be a more acceptable approach.

HUNGARY, U.S.A.

To the Editor:

The greatest stage play is yet to be premiered. The script has been written, the actors chosen — greater in number than all the "greats" combined, for you and I, every one of us, will be the "extras" (without pay).

The hero, miscast — more properly, the victim — is that great leader who isn't leading, Uncle Sam. Uncle, like Gulliver, has fallen asleep (he is a registered addict, in the world's book of knowledge, of tranquilizers). And while Uncle sleeps all the Ban-the-Bomb'ers, the Sane (?)-ists, the mental health experts (?), the ladies-for-peace, disarmament advocates, one-worlders, et cetera, are tying him fast with their Lilliputian cords.

The scene where the dignity of man is elevated to its highest glow is the one where we all take part. This is the house-to-house search by the United States Army for any and all kinds of arms. Under this systematic round-up (to be completed by end of 1965), all privately-owned firearms will be in the hands of the government and Mr. and Mrs. American will be completely disarmed. Don't forget the main plank of the communist plan for take-over of a country is to first disarm the populace.

One would think the next scene would be civil war. With what? Chopsticks? TV antennas? Our THINKING has been too little and too late! The next scene depicts the peace-loving (remember Katanga) United Nations International Police Force.

The finale? Can the children of Mr. and Mrs. America, recognizing the helpless state into which their parents have involved them, revolt? Every road to civilian resistance has been blocked. There is no human remedy. Remember Hungary?

Blind Student Teacher May Open Avenues

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)— Educators here are observing a blind student teacher in an experiment that could open new horizons for sightless men and women.

While local administrators view the project with some apprehension, 69 students of Spanish at Gettysburg High School are enthusiastic about William J. Shoemaker Jr., whose other senses are so acute that no student dares to be obstreperous or inattentive.

Blind from birth, the 21-year-old language major at Gettysburg College will complete a 14-week student teaching program at the local high school in mid-May. He will receive his B.A. degree in June and will begin graduate studies at the University of Pennsylvania in September.

Shoemaker is one of two blind children of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Shoemaker Sr., Valley Stream, N.Y., elementary teachers in the New York City school system. Bill and his sister, Ruth, a sophomore at Gettysburg College, both were born blind, victims of optic nerve atrophy. Each is determined to teach in public schools.

When Shoemaker came to Gettysburg College four years ago Dr. Russell Rosenberger, head of the department of education, questioned the advisability of his going into education.

"But I soon realized that his determination to become a teacher was much stronger than any of the obstacles I thought he faced," Rosenberger said.

Shoemaker recognizes the obstacles, but he believes he can meet them successfully.

His teacher-adviser, Jose M. Perez, says he is amazed at the response Shoemaker receives from the students.

"Perhaps they feel a sense of humility, for they must admire his courage; however, he has a forceful manner. His pronounciation is excellent, and I'm sure the students realize that he's determined that they will learn Spanish."

Shoemaker acquired his college education by carrying a portable tape recorder to class and, through a special mouthpiece, dictating notes to the machine without disturbing other students. When he returned to his dormitory room he transcribed the recording to Braille notes.

"I learned to accept it many years ago and was determined that the loss of sight would not keep me from doing everything in life there is to do," he said.

Planting Guide Offered Free By Nurserymen

The Colorado Nurserymen's Association has recently published a comprehensive "Planting Guide" to assist gardeners and home owners with spring planting activities, states C. M. (Chuck) Drage, Colorado State University extension horticulturist.

The 16-page booklet contains planting instructions for container stock, balled and burlapped trees, bare-rooted trees and plants, hedging plants, and perennials. In addition, it also has sections on special planting conditions, watering, spraying, pruning, and lawn care. Each section contains several illustrations.

"This booklet makes a fine supplement to the CSU horticultural publications currently available," Drage said.

The booklet may be obtained free of charge from any local nurseryman who is a member of the Colorado Nurserymen's Association.

"Between the Bookends" is the theme for the Grand Floral Parade, June 13, at the Portland Rose Festival.

Children can have a lot of fun by mixing bird seed with peanut butter and putting dabs of the mixture on the scales of a pine cone of the open type, like that of a white pine. Cones can be hung from tree branches.

TRUE BLUE—If you can't visit Capri this summer, the next best thing is a planting of this new blue petunia, the Capri—as blue as the waters off this famed vacation spot. It is a large flowered F1 hybrid variety, and the nearest to a true blue in petunias.

Contest for Best Lawn of Month Offers Prizes for Area Residents

The Gazette Telegraph will sponsor a "Lawn of the Month" contest this year to be held in May, June, July and August with a different section of the community to be judged each month.

A September contest will be held to select a Sweepstakes Winner from all of Colorado Springs and suburbs, with the contestants to be selected from the top three winners each of the previous four months.

Co-sponsoring the contest with the Gazette Telegraph are the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association and Manco Chemical Co. of Denver.

For purposes of the contest, the Colorado Springs area will be divided into four sections with Nevada Avenue and Pikes Peak Avenue forming the dividing lines.

Valuable prizes will be offered to the winners of the first four places in each month's contest. Five other winners will receive certificates each month. Only the Sweepstakes Winner will receive an award in the September contest.

The complete list of prizes offered will be published on the Farm and Ranch page about April 15.

Registrations for each contest must be received by the Gazette Telegraph no later than the 20th of the month prior to the month of the contest. Entries in the May contest must be received by the Gazette Telegraph no later than April 20. Late entries will not be considered by the judges.

Winners of each month's contest will be published in the Gazette Telegraph on or about the first day of the month following each contest.

Local lawn experts will judge the entries. A list of the rules of the contest and a registration form are published on this page. The coupon and the rules will be published each week on the Farm, Ranch and Garden page in the Gazette Telegraph.

Entries for the May contest must come from the section of the community south of East Pikes Peak Avenue and east of South Nevada Avenue, including Security and Widefield, Stratmor Hills, Pikes Peak Park and other housing areas in the area designated, even though they are outside the city limits. This does not include Fountain.

The June Contest will be held in the area west of South Nevada Avenue and south of West Pikes Peak Avenue. In Manitou Springs, beginning with the intersection of West Pikes Peak Avenue with Ridge Road, Manitou Avenue will be the dividing line. All of Manitou Springs located in a southerly direction from Manitou Avenue will be included in the June contest. Broadmoor will also be included in the June contest.

In July, the area north of Manitou Avenue and north of West Pikes Peak Avenue beginning with its intersection with Ridge Road, and west of North Nevada Avenue will be judged. Cascade, Green Mountain Falls, Chipita Park or Woodland Park are not included in the contest.

In August all of the area east of North Nevada Avenue and north of East Pikes Peak Avenue will be judged. This area includes additions as far north as Falcon Estates but does not include Black Forest.

The first three winners from all four areas will automatically be entered in the Sweepstakes Contest for the month of September. The Sweepstakes trophy will be furnished by Manco Chemical Co. of Denver.

Lawns will be judged on the basis of their freedom from weeds, density of the grass, its color, purity of stand, grade and level and height of cut.

1. The Lawn of the Month contest is open to any homeowner in the area of the monthly contest.
2. all lawns registered must be a minimum of 1,500 square feet in size.
3. participants agree to have both front and back yard lawns open for inspection by the judges from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. All lawn areas of each home entered will be judged.
4. Participants agree not to allow dogs to roam freely in the back yard while judges are making their inspections.
5. Judges shall score each lawn and record the score.
6. Judges shall recognize that lawns must be watered and mowed regularly, and shall make due allowance for these operations.
7. Judges' decisions will be final.
8. Participants agree to these rules by submitting entry.
9. Winners agree to open lawns to public inspections.
10. Registration forms must be postmarked before midnight, April 20, and mailed before midnight on the 20th of each month thereafter during the contest. Mail entries to: Lawn of the Month Contest, Gazette Telegraph, 30 S. Prospect, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Gardener Known By the Tools In His Garage

Just as you can tell a carpenter by the kind of tools he uses, so you can tell a good gardener by the tools in his garage, cellar, or wherever he keeps them.

A good selection of sensible, businesslike tools mark the real gardener. They're not gimmicky, with cheap, flashy handles and flimsy "Business ends," but they're clean, sharp and ready for use at any time.

One way the gardener can tell the real tools from the imitations is to look at the ferrules, the sockets that hold the handles. If they are long and well-fashioned, he can be sure that the quality hasn't been skimped upon. If they're otherwise, the handles are likely to break and the opposite holds true. The best long handle tools are made of ash that is smooth sanded and weather protected with a clear lacquer finish.

Of course, the new home owner or gardener cannot always go out and buy everything in sight the first year — he may have too many other things to spend money on, too. But, with the right selection, he can take care of his needs reasonably well the first year and can add the rest to make his gardening still easier and more fun the next year.

First of all, you should have a shovel. For all-around use the long-handled, "round-pointed" type is best. It is good for just about everything in the digging line — even prying out rocks or digging post holes.

Then, you need rakes. A good steel, general-purpose type is usually best for general garden work and a steel lawn or broom rake for grass and leaves. The latter can be of the yard-wide type, a narrow rake for getting between shrubs or the fan type. The latter can be of the adjustable width or fixed type — the adjustable is better.

Your first purchase should also include a moderate-width, all-purpose hoe and a three-or four-pronged cultivator. Here is where many people make a mistake. They buy a cheap one with too short a handle and then complain about a tired back. Get a real one. (Don't confuse this with the hand-type we'll discuss later).

The first year you will also need an all-purpose green thumb trowel — get one with a solid shank, not just a bit of folded metal holding it into the handle and which will quickly break.

Then, you will also need a hoe, watering can and a mower.

Later on you should add a spading fork, preferably one with a short "D" handle, a narrow or triangular hoe, a turf edger, some form of pick, a hand cultivator, pruning shears, perhaps rotary lawn edger, a sickle or golf-club type weed cutter, and a sturdy wheel barrow.

In all cases, too, remember that the best tools are not the heaviest, but the best steel. Also, keep in mind that the lady of the house may like her own lady's size or light-weight tool set. And, if you're counting on some help from the younger generation, remember, too, that the junior size tools fit them best.

Test Yourself; Identify Men in First Paragraph

By MARGUERITE MITCHELL

Ask a historian to identify Joel Roberts Poinsett, Caspar Wistar, J. G. Zinn, and Pierre Magnol, and he will probably bat .250.

Put the same question to a botanist, and he's certain to come up batting a 1.000.

The historian may remember Poinsett (1779-1851) as Secretary of War in President Van Buren's cabinet. The botanist will place him as the man whose name lives in the Christmas-time flower, the poinsettia.

Poinsett was serving as a special minister to Mexico when he noticed the flaming red flowers that grew wild south of the border. He brought some of the plants back to the United States and was honored by having his name given to the flower.

The botanist will know Caspar Wistar as a professor of anatomy, midwifery and surgery at the one-time College of Pennsylvania whose name (in 1818) was given to the high-climbing shrub, the wisteria.

Zinn was an obscure 18th Century German botanist whose name was given to the striking colorful zinnia, and Magnol was a professor of botany at Montpelier, France, whose name was given to the magnolia.

Other botanists whose names were given to flowers were Leonhard Fuchs (fuchsia), a 16th Century German, and Dahl (dahlia), an 18th Century Swede.

But most flowers can trace their christening back to the early Greeks and Romans.

For instance, the gladiolus was named thusly because its spikes resembled the gladius, or sword carried by gladiators into the arena. The geranium was named after the Greek word geranos, meaning crane, because the Greeks thought its seed pods resembled the bill of a crane.

The common dandelion is called "dent de lion" by the French. Translated, this means "the tooth of the lion" but repeat the French phrase rapidly and you come up with dandelion.

The Latin word for star is aster so it is easy to see how that flower got its name.

The sweet-scented honeysuckle began as "hunnisuccle" - a Middle English word built up from "hunisuc". This goes back to Old English "hunisuce" - from "humig" meaning honey, and "sucan" meaning suck.

The peony was once used in medicine. It traces its name back to Paion, physician to the gods in Greek mythology.

In naming flowers, the American Indian was not left out. They called tobacco "petun" and when botanists observed a resemblance between tobacco plants and a small tropical plant, they added a Latin sounding "ia" and came up with what we know today as the petunia.

Spring's showy tulips looked like Turkish tulbends (turbans) to the fashion-conscious French who call this flower tulipan. The French also thought the pansy had a thoughtful face and called this charming flower "pensee" meaning thoughtful.

When the lilacs burst forth in bloom here, you may want to remember that this flower got its start from the Persian "nilak" (bluish) which passed into Arabic as "laylak" and on to Spain as the name we use today.

Colorado's state flower, the columbine, looks like a cluster of five doves because of its inverted blossoms. Columbine came to us through French and Late Latin, with its origin going back to the Classical Latin "columba" meaning dove.

WITHHOLDING TURNS 21

It began in 1943. A 5 per cent "Victory" tax was imposed to help siphon off excess purchasing power produced by full employment during the initial stages of the war.

The withholding rate was boosted to 20 per cent in mid-1943, and employers regularly deducted the tax from pay checks.

The rate was reduced in 1945 to 18 per cent. Take-home pay was again boosted in 1948 when the withholding rate was reduced to 15 per cent. It was boosted in 1950 to 18 per cent; then, set at 20 per cent to run to 1954 when it was leveled at 18 per cent.

Now the new 14 per cent rate represents the first reduction in withholding tax in 10 years.

Gladiolus bulbs will bloom earlier if they're stored at 80 degrees for about two weeks before planting.

Golden-Tangerine Zinnia Wins Silver Medal Award

Two zinnias, a salvia and a celosia have been named flower winners of the All - America Selections for 1964. Two broccoli, the Cleopatra and the Zenith, have won top awards in the vegetable division.

The zinnia "Bonanza" is the silver medal award winning F 1 or true zinnia, a glowing golden-tangerine counterpart to the scarlet "Firecracker" which won the award in 1963.

Outstanding as the finest giant cactus - flowered zinnas ever created, the Bonanza is the superb golden yellow. Free flowering bushy plants grow 30 inches tall. The huge flowers measure up to six inches across with two - inch depth, on long stiff stems for garden, show or cutting.

Even with the largest size, the curled and pointed petals give an airiness and light appearance to these striking double flowers. And, zinnias are about the easisest flowers to grow direct from seeds.

The salvia "Evening Glow" is the long sought annual with rich old rose coloring, livened with coral tongues to the individual flowers. Large flower spikes, the equal of any red salvia or scarlet sage, on base-branching, uniform bushy plants to 18 inches or more, beautifully retain their rich coloring. Striking rich rose. Evening Glow provides lush green foliage towered with spires of lovely flowers until killing frosts. Try this beauty for salvia so pleasing and different from the usual red in hedge, row or in the mixed flower border.

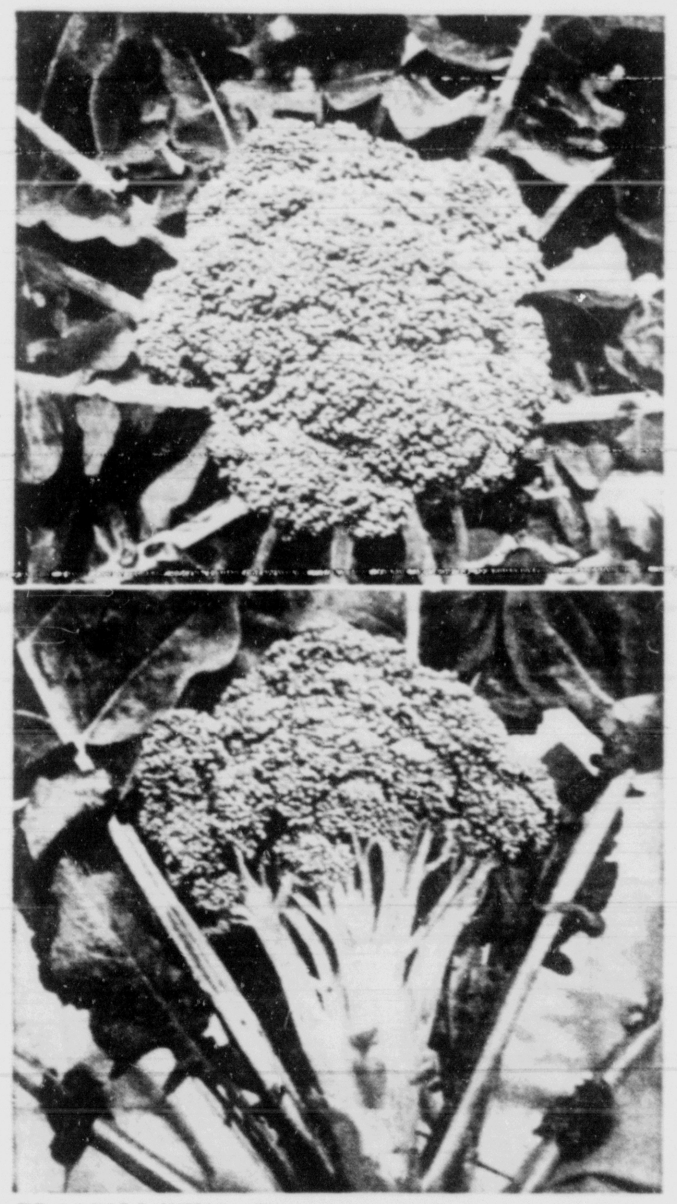
A cardinal red globular cockscomb of extremely large size heads, the celosia "Fireglow" is a new color, away from purplish crimson, that shows up more noticeably with its huge velvety central globes which measure up to 6½ inches across and about as deep. Later basal branches produce smaller flowers. Luxuriant large dark green leaves enhance the central flower heads on 15 to 18 - inch plants. Use for exciting garden color display, for cut flowers fresh or dried, in arrangements or cut apart for corsages. Fireglow is a Japanese novelty creation for the grand monde and the rest of us too.

The zinnia "Pink Buttons" is a light salmon rose - pink double flowered new buttons type zinnia that grows about 10 inches high in bushy season in the garden and for cutting. Showing good disease resistance, free flowering habit and most desirable height for widest garden usage. Pink Buttons is a little marvel. It is considered an improvement over other small flowered and dwarf zinnias, of popular color and easily grown from direct seeding as soon as soil warms up in spring.

The broccoli "Cleopatra" is a true F1 hybrid, a very early, vigorous plant of uniform maturity and good quality. It is dark green with medium fine beads or buds in a large and compact, rounded central head. It produces vigorous side shoots for extra, smaller and later side heads after the central head is cut.

The Cleopatra is useful for spring and fall crops. It shows earliness and semmingly more clod and drought torlerance than other varieties. Long lasting in the head for home or market, continued production of side shoots gives it special home garden value.

The broccoli "Zenith" produces green sprouting, cold-resistant, uniform plants of 18 to 24 inches. Heads are compact, deep, rounded on top without leafiness. Beads or buds are medium to small in size and medium green. Early maturing, Zenith is suitable for fresh market, freezing and its good quality with numerous later side shoots make it very useful for home gardens. It is resistant to "hollow stem" and is considered extra cold tolerant and an improvement over Decicco strains. Zenith is open pollinated so seed is cheaper to produce than for an F1 or first generation hybrid.



BROCCOLI WINS—The true hybrid broccoli "Cleopatra," top, for spring and fall plantings, hardy and early, was one of the 1964 All-America Selections in vegetables. Below is the open pollinated broccoli "Zenith" which is suitable for home, market and freezing. Get seeds from any reliable seedsman.

Official Reports Show Holstein Milk Output

An official production testing report from the Holstein-Friesian Association of America shows that a three-year-old owned by Raymond L. Powers of Colorado Springs produced 14,388 pounds of milk and 593 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. The animal was Paganok Paymaster Ida 4810022.

Four registered Holsteins owned by the Myron Stratton Home were also tested by Colorado State University, which supervised the sampling.

Stratton Changeling Mistress, 4969834, a three-year-old, produced 17,440 pounds of milk and 634 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. Stratton Gracious Nudine, 4472352, a four-year-old, had 16,200 pounds of milk and 610 pounds of butterfat in 305 days.

Stratton Doreen Hazelwood, 4969841, a three-year-old, had 18,450 pounds of milk and 608 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. Stratton Gracious Ormsby, 4472350, a five-year-old, produced 15,070 pounds of milk and 531 pounds of butterfat in the same period of time.

These production figures may be compared to the annual output of 7,211 pounds of milk and 270 pounds of butterfat by the average U. S. dairy cow.

Bur cucumbers or East Indian gherkins may be grown in your own garden.

Crab Grass Comes In Three Basic Types

There are three types of crab grass — smooth, hairy and silver. All three look similar and are annuals. They develop from seeds to mature plants that flower and seed usually by the late part of August.

In the spring seedling crab grass sprouts from the soil as a small plae green plant with two leaves. The leaves are oval, broad at the base and taper to a point at the tip.

As the leaves develop, they become coarse and spread out.

A FINE LAWN
IN 6 EASY STEPS

1 SELECT GOOD SEED. The work, water and care make up the greatest cost of a lawn. The wise gardener uses only the best seed.
2 CULTIVATE soil to a depth of 4 or 5 inches and rake to a smooth seed bed.
3 APPLY PLANT FOOD — using Garden Gro from 2 to 4 lbs. per 100 square feet.
4 SOW SEED — using 1 lb. per 150 square ft. Rake in lightly and cover lightly with peat moss using 1 yard per 1000 square feet as a top dressing.
5 WATER — carefully to avoid washing and run off. Keep the seed bed moist at all times.
6 MOW when grass reaches a height that the mower will cut. This may hit only the higher spots at first but will quickly result in a smooth velvety lawn.

Handy Coat Hanger

You can make a handy flower support from an old coat hanger. All you have to do is straighten the elbows of the wire hanger and bend the hook at a right angle. Then cut the "legs" apart and insert them in the ground.

FOR LIGHTER WINDOW BOXES

Plunging clay-potted house plants in window boxes and planters filled mostly with peat moss rather than solid soil will make them lighter, less apt to fall from walls.

Shade trees should be planted in relation to the sun and its path across the sky in the hottest summer months.

'64 All-America Gladiolus Lead Spring Flower Parade

Gardening always goes into high gear when leisure, assured by wintry days, enables the gardener to spend plenty of time looking over the latest offerings of the new flowers. The news about the new All-America winners noted in magazines, newspapers and catalogues is largely responsible for stimulating interest in gardening.

The farch of the new flowers for 1964 gathers momentum with the news of the All-America Award winning glads. Three new glads make their bow — La France, Blue Sapphire and Snowsprite. La France is a large flowered beauty, while Blue Sapphire and Snowsprite are charming miniatures. All three are available for planting this spring.

La France is a fresh, cool, pure pink of a shade known as "Dawn Pink". The petal edges are a slightly deeper shade of pink, white the center of the flower is a clear creamy white. The intensely ruffled florets, of which 7 to 9 open at once are of heavy substance, with a frosty, glistening texture.

With its beauty of coloring, delightful ruffling, and easy growing habits, La France should become one of the most desired new glads, whether for garden or show table, massive display or home decoration. It is a creation of Winston Roberts, Boise, Idaho, an internationally known hybridizer who has produced many prize winning glads. La France is his first All - America winner.

Blue Sapphire is a bright new jewel that will sparkle in your garden; a "Rhapsody in Blue"! The color is like a reflection of the summer sky — a smooth, light blue with a "cloud puff" throat. This new addition to the All - America miniatures is nearly four feet tall with slender, graceful spikes and round, slightly frilled florets. Six to seven of the 18 - 20 buds open at once.

Blue Sapphire has a host of admirers who have enjoyed its petite size and delicate coloring. Perfect for arrangements of all types.

Snowsprite is as dainty as its name suggests and as lacy as a snowflake. Six to seven round, ruffled and recurved florets open at once in graceful, informal placement on wilowy, tapering spikes. The color is a sparkling, crystalline white with a greenish tint in the throat. The total effect is cool and refreshing. Snowsprite is a fusty grower which is easy to cut and a joy to use. You'll want lots of this white "elfin" beauty.

Both Snowsprite and Blue Sapphire are originations of Carl Fischer, St. Charles, Minn. Fischer's previous All-America winners include China Blue, Appleblossom, Horizon, Maytime, Goldilocks, Morning Sun, Emperor, Little Pansy and Victory. All are extremely popular.

The first All - America Gladiolus Selections were announced in 1956. Some of the most widely - acclaimed that were tapped for the All-America honor, and which are still going strong, are Ben - Hur, Joyous, Landmark, Rusty, Thunderbird and Frisky, the later being a 1963 release. Landmark and Thunderbird have become famous for their phenominal record of flower show championships.

In each case the selection is made on the basis of testing new originations in numerous trial gardens across the United States and Canada, with judging being done by experts while the varieties are identified only by number.

The All -America awards are not given lightly. Some idea of the competition that lies behind the Gladiolus awards may be had from the fact that nearly 500 Gladilous originations have been tested, but only 22 have won the coveted award.

Each All-America gladiolus bulb is packaged in a color - coded mesh bag, with the color of the variety being indicated by the color of the package. Each is identified by variety name and by the AAGS emblem. To insure bulb quality, each bulb is protected by a U. S. plant patent. The bulbs are available at garden supply stores and through cataloguers.

A $11 CARE contribution will equip a school or community garden project with a rake, shovel, weeding hoe, eye hoe, spading fork, hand trowel and hand cultivator.

Ornamental Shrubs Give Yard Character

As trees provide the shade for protection from the sun, so ornamental shrubs furnish the character of the landscape in the garden. Shrubs are used for screening, separation, and foundation planting, or simply for their flowers and attractive foliage.

The following varieties are generally available at local nurseries and garden shops and have been adapted for growth in Colorado.

Medium Shrubs, 5 to 7 feet: Alpine Currant, Butterflybush, Beautybush, Rosemallow, Coralberry, Flowering Plum, Forsythia, Golden Ninebark, Floweringquince or Japanese Quince, Mentor Barberry, Mockorange, Peking Cotoneaster, Redtwig Dogwood, Regel Privet, Vanhoutte Spires, Winged Euonymus, Viburnum Burkwoodi, Weigela.

Large shurbs, 8 to 10 feet: Amur Maple, European Euonymus, Golden Elder, Cranberrybush Viburnum, Common Lilac, Persian Lilac, French Hybrid Lilac, Manchu or Nanking Cherry, Purpleleaf Plum or Cistena, Red Honeysuckle, Siberian Peashrub, Rose of Sharon, Snowball, Frangrant Snowball, Common Snowberry, Wayfaringtree Viburnum.

The wishbone flower or torenia grows well in semi-shade. It has bronze-green leaves on a foot-high, bushy plant with a flower having sky blue upper petals and violet blue lower petals.

Soil Conditioner Aid in Planting Various Bulbs

SOIL CONDITIONER—When digging a hole for bulbs or transplant, place the dirt in a pan or on a board. Mix one part vermiculite, a soil conditioning mineral, into the soil for every two parts of earth. After digging a hole larger than required for the bulb or plant, fill the hole to proper planting depth with the mix. Fill in the hole with the remainder of the mix after planting.

This spring enhance the chances of beautiful blooms in your garden by following three simple steps when planting those bulbs you have bought or saved from last year.

First use a spade, trowel or bulb planter to dig a hole a few inches deeper than you intend to plant your bulb. Throw the excavated soil onto a board or into an old dish pan.

Second, add the soil conditioning mineral vermiculite to the earth you've removed. Because horticultural vermiculite is porous and absorbent, it aeates the soil, provides a reservoir for moisture, and hastens propagation. A proper mix is two parts soil to one part vermiculite. To this mixture add a level teaspoonful of plant food. Now refill the hole to the desired planting level with the mixture.

Third, plant the bulbs at the depth best suited to each variety. After planting, fill the hole with the remainder of the soil-vermiculite blend.

The following chart tells the number of inches of soil that should cover various bulbs, as well as the number of inches apart each bulb should be planted.

Crocus, covering, 2½ inches; space, 3 inches.

Scilla, covering 3½ inches; space 3 inches.

Jonquil, covering 3½ inches; space 6 inches.

Tulip, covering 4½ inches; space 5 inches.

Hyacinth, covering 4½ inches; space 6 inches.

Gladiolus, covering 4 inches, space 5 inches.

Narcissus, covering 5 inches; space 6 inches.

Dahlia, covering 5 inches; space 10 inches.

Pansies Give Borders Blooms for Months

With moderate attention, pansies will give your border blooms for months.

If you have raised pansies from seed, transplant before the buds form to reduce shock to a minimum, compared with blooming time.

Keep the flowers plucked to increase vitality for growth.

Fertilize lightly occasionally (monthly) to help increase the size of flowers, and pinch back long shoots. Pansies enjoy a bit more water than many other plants, so plant them in a bit of a hollow to provide a rain catcher.

Carson Employe Takes Lead in Growing Lemons

Quite a few people pride themselves on their "green thumbs"—their knack of growing almost anything in almost any kind of soil. But most of them will have to take a back furrow to Austin Oppenlander of the Ft. Carson Post Engineer Key Shop.

Oppenlander raises lemons, big lemons. His latest product weighs 1¼ pound: "below average", according to him. When asked if he uses special fertilizers, and pampers them day and night, he explained that all he does is water them. His lemon tree is 6 years old, and apparently is quite normal except for the lemons.

He also has a non-descript vine, donated by an interested friend. The plant has leaves 13 inches long by 9 inches wide.

Large Size Packages Fertilizer Less Costly

When buying fertilizers for your lawn or garden, determine the total amount of each kind of fertilizer that you will need for one season, then buy this amount in the largest available packages.

Paying the higher rate for small packages may be justified if you need only a small amount, if the case of handling smaller packages is sufficiently advantageous, or if storage of large packages is a problem.

Here's How to Keep Your Easter Corsage

It's probably already too late for this year, but next year when your corsage has completed its Easter parade, remove the ribbons, dunk it in cold water for 20 minutes, then store it in your refrigerator (not in the freezing compartment).

It will keep longer toward the time you want it again to wear, use as a table arrangement or float in a bowl of water.

Don't submerge your corsage of orchids. The flowers will spot in water.

Fungicides Help Keep Plants Well

Each year plant diseases interfere with many Coloradoan's plans to raise plants just like those in the garden catalogs. A part of this frustration can be overcome, however, by following preventative measures of plant disease control, says L. E. Dickens, extension plant pathologist at Colorado State University.

The basic question that usually underlies plans for a control program is: Should I apply preventive measures before the disease appears, or should I wait until the disease appears and then apply a curative measure?

The answer to this question, Dickens says, is that experience has shown that plant diseases are usually prevented but seldom cured. In fact, most modern foliage fungicides are designed to be used as protective sprays. They are not good cures.

If disease has never been a problem in your yard or garden, you will probably question the economics of applying seemingly unnecessary preventive measures. However, the past experience of other home gardeners with plant disease problems may change your viewpoint.

"There are no mysteries about how plant diseases occur. They are usually caused by a fungus and are favored by poor growing conditions.

"A chemical alone will not prevent disease. Effective control depends on a number of things that come under the general heading of proper cultural management."

He listed a number of management precautionary measures which will help control plant diseases. Plant in well-drained, well-prepared seedbed. Use adapted varieties that are known to do well. Plant best seed or planting stock. Seed treatment offers a degree of protection. Make daily inspections of plantings. Control insects and weeds. Follow good watering and fertilizer practices. If disease has been a previous problem, apply protective sprays early and at regular intervals. If disease occurs for the first time apply protective spray immediately. Choose the right chemical and use it in the right amount at the right time. Fungicides are more effective if a pinch of household detergent is added to the spray mixture. During dry weather the interval between applications should be 7 to 10 days, but during wet weather 3 to 7 days.

Lawns and other plantings should be inspected daily throughout the growing season for any sign of disease so control can be started at the earliest moment. If you wait too long, Dickens said, the results from applications of a fungicide are often disappointing.

EASTER TREE

Use halves of egg shells to make flowers for an egg treat Easter. First spray a tree branch white, gold or green. Stick branch in flower pot, preferably matching in color and cut off all pointed ends on the twigs. Dye the egg shell halves and attach to branch by using a small amount of florist's clay.

NEW THREAT — In the opinion of Tony Venetucci, detergents are fine for doing dishes, but are bad for corn. He and other ranchers in the Pikes Peak Region use wells to supply water for irrigation. He regards the high nitrogen content in the water as one reason for the flavor of fine corn. Contamination of underground water sources by detergents, he feels, is changing the taste.

YUMMY—Look at all the melons, and grapes, and vegetables, and other manifestations of the bounty of autumn pouring from the Horn of Plenty. You didn't notice the Horn of Plenty? You . . . oh, yes, that's Jo Ann Berger, 19, who happened along when the produce was getting its picture taken at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

Preparing Soil for Garden Vegetables Most Important

Thinking about having your own vegetable garden this year? The time to start planning was three months ago, but with a little luck and a lot of hard work you may be able to get some pretty good results even though you're starting late.

A small garden is usually 100 square feet to 625 square feet and is usually found on a town or city lot. The space used may have previously been waste or in flowers or grass. Since the space is small, you have the opportunity of attaining near perfection. The soil can be heavily fertilized and every inch of space can be utilized. Every plant can receive individual attention.

If you're growing your garden in your yard in town, you probably have little choice about where it will be located. But it might help anyway to give you a few hints.

The land should be level or gently sloping toward the south or southeast. It should not be too steep. The soil should be deep; a dark, sandy loam is preferred. You should have plenty of water available, and the spot should be located in a place where the plants can receive a minmum of five hours of direct sun each day.

The garden should be planned on paper first and you ought to start doing this in January. That's the time to look over the seed catalogs and decide on varieties recommended for your community. It's a good time, too, to order your seeds or to buy them from a local nursery or seed store.

Next, get your material ready for the construction of shallow flats, shallow boxes in which you can produce good plants and make sure you will have the variety you want by planting the seed and raising the plants. There'll be more about flats later.

Next, locate organic material, compost or manure for the garden.

The best varieties of the principal vegetable crops are recommended by your extension agent. You can also get advice from local seed houses and nurserymen. The use of recommended varieties will generally result in bigger yields of high quality and greater uniformity.

Now about those flats. Garden crops such as cabbage, tomatoes, pepper, cauliflower, eggplant, broccoli, celery, and head lettuce may be started inside and transplanted later. You plant the seeds in one or more flats.

A common size flat measures 3 or 4 inches deep by 12 by 15 inches. Drainage is provided by holes or cracks in the bottom. A good soil for the flat may be made by mixing together one-fourth sand, one-fourth well-manure and one-half good garden loam. If well-rotted leafmold or compost is on hand this mixed with one-third sand is one of the best soils to use in flats. The soil must have organic matter to provide plant food and to hold moisture, and must be loose to allow roots to penetrate and to make it easy to work.

Firm the soil by packing lightly, then mark into rows using a straight edge. Make the rows one-quarter inch deep and 1 or 2 inches apart. Plant the seed about 1 inch apart, barely cover, and firm the soil lightly. Sprinkle the flat carefully with lukewarm water. Keep the flat at room temperature. Water and turn the box every other day so that all the plants will get an equal amount of sunshine. It's a good idea to cover the flat with paper after seeding and keep it covered until the seedlings break through the soil.

The first leaves to appear are not true leaves. When the young plants show their first true leaves they should be thinned carefully and those removed transplanted to another flat.

The time required to grow plants from seed until they are ready to plant in the garden is as follows:

Onions, 10 to 12 weeks; peppers, 8 to 10 weeks; eggplant, 8 to 10 weeks; celery, 8 to 10 weeks; broccoli, 4 to 6 weeks; cauliflower, 6 to 7 weeks; cabbage, 6 to 7 weeks; lettuce, 4 to 7 weeks; kohlrabi, 4 to 6 weeks; croccoli, 4 to 6 weeks.

Because of the great variation in seasons over the state, definite dates for field planting cannot be given for Colorado. Consult local people who know again your county agent or your local seed dealer or nurseryman.

The following dates are usually considered safe and are given as a guide as to when tender crops can safely be planted. However, seasons vary tremendously from year to year, so if a killing frost comes the day after your tender crops peek thru the ground, don't say you weren't warned:

Pueblo, May 1; Canon City, May 5; Colorado Springs, May 15; Limon, Calhan, May 25; Salida, June 10; Buena Vista, June 15; Hayden and Victor, June 20.

Tender plants like tomatoes, eggplant, and peppers cannot be safely planted until long after the half hardy plants, such as cabbage, lettuce, cauliflower and celery.

Fertilizer Application Important

The Proper application of a good fertilizer is one key to a good lawn. Moderate amounts of fertilizer should be applied both spring and fall—sometimes even a little in midsummer.

Manure applied to frozen ground, or put on so thickly that the turf cannot be seen, is often wasted in the drainage water and in the surface runoff.

Well-rotted, weed-free manure is excellent top dressing for lawns. Soil from spent mushroom beds is excellent lawn dressing. Commercial fertilizers should contain about twice as much nitrogen as the total of other elements.

Complete commercial fertilizers are often recommended and are much used on lawns. A common analysis of complete fertilizer is 4-12-4-4 per cent nitrogen, 12 per cent phosphate and 4 per cent potash. A 100-pound bag of such fertilizer has 8 pounds of fertilizer that will soak down in watering but 12 pounds that will remain on the surface—that 12 pounds being phosphate.

Nitrogen deficiency usually occurs first in lawns. Any one of several elements may become deficient. Ammonium sulfate is a good nitrogen fertilizer because 100 pounds of this material contain about 20 pounds of nitrogen available to plants. It should therefore, be used more sparingly than a 4-12-4 for instance which contains only 4 pounds or one-fifth as much nitrogen per 100 pounds. One-half pound of ammonium sulfate per 100 square feet will not burn a growing lawn if it is spread evenly. Just as the grass starts growing in early spring, 1 pound per 100 square feet can be used.

To be sure that manure is weed free, some such precaution as steaming, baking, or composting must be taken to kill weed seeds. The inconvenience or expense of these processes leads many to the use of commercial fertilizers.

Being so much more more concentrated, more care in spreading the commercial fertilizers is necessary in order to avoid burning. These should be no lumps, and the material should be spread evenly, diluting it with sand or soil if necessary to assure even spreading. It should then be watered in to wash the material off the grass blades.

If grass is wet when commercial fertilizer is applied, there may be burning unless a thorough watering follows immediately. Many dealers in fertilizer will loan or rent a mechanical spreader for commercial fertilizer.

Nurserymen Suggest Plans Be Made for Backgrounds

(This is another article prepared as a public service by the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association, and its contents are specifically applicable to this region.)

One of the activities that can occupy the gardeners' time during the long winter months is planning for a suitable background which a really successful flower border must have.

The background can be a wire or wooden fence, a hedge, border of shrubs, or a wall. However, in using any of these materials, the gardener should remember that what is desired is a background and only that. Fences or walls of eye-catching color or design have a place in the garden, but not where they are in direct competition with the flowers.

A small plot of ground has little room to spare for any shrubs; but a well of stone, brick, or tile, with well-placed ivy or evergreen bittersweet, is a distintcive setting for any flower garden, the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Assoication points out.

Herbacious annuals or perennials are not considered proper materials for foundation planting, but in a patio, facing any intimate living area, or along the wall of the house, they can serve as well as any others.

More economical to build is the wire fence, and it can support any number of rapidly growing vines to provide an excellent living wall through the summer months when privacy and background are most important. The Association points out that most of these vines send their roots deep into the soil and so do not rob the shallower rooted flowers of food and water.

Wooden fences may be built to fit nearly any situation and can take the form of rustic split rails, the tidy white picket fence, or the newer basket weave. These, too, are best planted with suitable vines or an espalier fruit tree to relieve the bare look.

A clipped hedge of evergreens, privet, or other adaptable material is perhaps the most appropriate enclosure of all for the small garden, in the opinion of members of the Nurserymen's Association. The hedge requires a minimum of space, it is a living wall, and after a few years of trimming it is an impenetrable windbreak and screen the whole year around.

However, a good hedge requires a lot of water, regular feeding, and plenty of "elbow grease" to keep it trimmed. A poorly cared for hedge can be the garden's worst eyesore.

A very satisfactory modification of a trimmed hedge, the Association reports, is a straight row of any type of shrub which has dark foliage, naturally erect type of growth and will withstand enough trimming to keep it from becoming overgrown. A background of shrubs, if it is not well fed and deeply watered, will soon fill the flower border with feeder roots, starving the plants and defeating the purpose of the garden.

When limited space is not a consideration, a well-developed border of shrubs and evergreens forms an ideal background for a perennial border. In this type of border there is sufficient depth to have an abundance of flowers throughout the whole border all season.

Shrubs chosen for this type of planting should be of an erect type with dense green foliage, the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association advises. The gardener can plant some of the varieties that have brightly hued bark or produce a brilliant display of berries in the dull winter months.

If space permits, some of the dwarf flowering trees are very satisfactory. They not only bloom in the spring, but many of them retain their fruits long after the leaves have fallen. In this manner the garden colors can be prolonged for many weeks.

Evergreens can be used in the background and provide a windbreak and screen throughout the year. Dwarf types might also be used sparingly in the foreground as a wintertime attraction. This is essentially a background for a garden of herbaceous plants, comparatively shallow rooted and less able to compete for the available food supply. The shrubs and trees must be well fed, watered, cultivated, and judiciously trimmed so their roots and tops will be confined to their proper function, advises the Colorado Springs Nurserymen's Association.

'Gardening by the Month' Plan Aid To First-Time Gardener in Colorado

Colorado State University at Fort Collins has worked out a "Gardening by the Month" plan which will be of invaluable aid to the vegetable gardener, whether the plot is large or small.

JANUARY

Decide on the varieties recommended for your community. Order seeds.

Get material ready for building your flats.

FEBRUARY

February is the month to order seeds if you haven't already done so, to make or repair flats, and to make your garden plans on paper.

First, decide where your garden will be, how big it will be, and the kinds and varieties of vegetables you will plant. The whole family ought to get in on this, for a good garden will provide tomatoes, leafy green and yellow vegetables for summer use and canning. It will provide cabbage and root crops and potatoes for winter storage, if of sufficient size.

Remember, however, to plant only those vegetables adapted to your area. And don't plant anything the family doesn't like to eat.

Vine crops such as melons, cucumbers, squash and pumpkins are warm season crops and will not do well at high altitudes where nights are cool. Peas, root crops, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower and spinach enjoy cool nights.

After all the details have been decided, plan your garden on a piece of heavy wrapping paper. This makes it possible to arrange the space so all will be utilized. Too, it's easier to make the changes on paper than to make them in the garden. Draw the garden in detail, using a ruler and sharp pencil, with a scale of one-eighth or one-quarter inch for each foot. Where mobile garden tools are used, run the rows the long way if it is possible to irrigate this way. Otherwise, run the rows the short way, preferably north and south. Decide when, what, and where the vegetables are to be planted and draw the rows to scale on your map.

When the plan which suits the family best has been decided upon, copy it neatly and refer to it often when actually laying our your garden.

MARCH

This month you should:

1. Treat all seeds, where recommended, before planting, in the manner recommended.

2. See tomato, cabbage, pepper, celery, etc., in flats in the house or in hotbeds outside. Take care of the plants.

3. If the season permits, you can prepare your soil for planting. Make a good seedbed and plant early cool-season crops such as peas, lettuce, radishes, onion sets, and spinach.

4. Study the latest information on gardening, especially on insects and disease control and order your insecticides.

March is the time to plow or spade your garden plot and apply organic matter. Spade at least six inches deep and keep clods and large chunks of dirt on top. Rake or harrow newly turned soil in several directions immediately after all of it is turned.

APRIL

Now, we're about to catch up. This month, take care of the following:

1. Plant beets, carrots, lettuce, onions, parsnips, peas, early potatoes, radishes, spinach, and turnips.

2. Transplant to the garden early cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, head lettuce, kohlrabi, and onion plants.

3. Apply cutworm bait if cutworms are present. Protect transplants with tar paper discs or paper collars.

4. Transplant or thin plants in flats or hotbeds. "Harden off" all plants except tomatoes by reducing water supply and temperature and by increasing ventilation. During the day covers may be lifted on hotbeds and flats may be set outdoors.

Transplanting should be done on a cloudy day or in the late afternoon or evening. The soil around the plant in the flat should be well moistened. Keep as much soil on roots as possible during moving and do not let roots dry out.

Set roots slightly deeper than they were growing in the flat and do not cramp roots. If you are transplanting large tomato plants, set them in a slanting hole with only 5 or 6 inches of the top exposed. The slanting hole prevents placing the roots too deep into chilly soil.

Transplant to a moist soil if possible and firm the soil tightly around the roots. Water each plant after it has been set and place dry soil around the plant after water has soaked in. It is suggested that you shade the plants two or three days after they have been moved.

If you're planting seeds, make the seed trenchs narrow, make only one trench at a time, and put the seeds in it before making another. Plant in moist soil and cover seed immediately to keep soil from drying out. Follow the instructions that come with the seeds on depth and distance.

MAY

Transplant tomato, celery, eggplant, pepper, and other plants not transplanted in April. Plant beans, corn, and vine crops and make second plantings of peas.

Start cultivation, weeding, and thinning. Start hilling potatoes.

Watch for insects. Flea beetles, aphids, cabbage worms, grasshoppers, cutworms, and radish and onion maggots may appear this month. Apply control recommendations when they appear. Ten days after tomatoes are transplanted apply psyllid control as recommended. When potatoes are 4 to 6 inches tall apply psyllid control. Repeat psyllid control every 10 days to two weeks on tomatoes and potatoes.

JUNE

Make second planting of bush beans and sweet corn. Plant late potatoes, beets, carrots, and celery for fall storage and winter use, in late June or early July.

Be prepared to protect vegetable crops from insect damage. Watch for bean beetles, they are the most serious pest of beans in Colorado. Squash bugs, corn earworms, and Colorado potato beetles may appear this month. Continue spraying potatoes and tomatoes for psyllids. Don't let plant lice or grasshoppers get ahead of you.

JULY

This is the critical month. Water thorolv and stir the soil often enough so that it does not have a chance to crust over.

Never let any portion of your garden go to waste. Refer often to your garden plans. As soon as one vegetable is taken out sow some other vegetables in its place. Clean off and burn or compost early pea vines after harvest. Clean up all rows which are past their period of usefulness. This month plant early varieties of dwarf beans, table beats, carrots, and turnips.

AUGUST

Continue your fight against insects.

Dispose of early varieties of cabbage as they mature. Do not let cucumbers ripen if you expect them to bear late in the season. Harvest the onions which have ripened.

SEPTEMBER

Harvest and store onions.

Fight weeds; don't let any go to seed this month.

Continue the compost pile. Be sure it is kept damp.

OCTOBER

NOVEMBER

DECEMBER

Landscaping Mountain Residences

Planning to landscape your mountain cabin? Or, are you just looking for some pretty plants and some good ideas to make it more attractive? Well, either way, Charles M. Drage, extension horticulturist, and George Beach, professor of horticulture at Colorado State University, Fort Collins, have some suggestions which should make your work easier.

The landscaping of a mountain home is complicated, of course, by the limited number of plants adapted to higher elevations. Often plant selection is limited to those species which already grow around the home site. Such plants are difficult to locate in nursery and seed catalogs.

Landscaping is especially difficult when the home is occupied for only a short time during the summer season.

In planning to lanscape your mountain home, you should follow one of the four following procedures:

1. Employ a landscape architect to prepare plans and contract with a nursery to provide and place the plants according to the plan. Ideally, the landscape architect is called in before any earthwork or construction is done on the site. This method is well adapted to those who occupy their summer home for only a short time during the summer.

2. Contract with an established nursery to do the planning, provide the plants and do the planting.

3. Draw your own plans, secure seeds and plants from a nursery, and do your own planting. If your family enjoys gardening as a hobby, you will find satisfaction in this plan.

Do your own planning and planting using native plants found in the community of your mountain home. This can be very inexpensive and satisfactory. Often the building site is chosen for the excellence of the natural vegetation.

Base your decision as to these four methods on your family's desires, abilities, finances, and time.

There is one important thing to remember about using native plants. Never move a plant from its natural location without permission of the landowner or someone else in authority.

ROSE OF SPAIN—The Granada rose is anything but plain! And it's the first multi-color hybrid tea ever to win the coveted All-America Rose medal—the Oscar of the rose world.

Sheepmen Back Campaign For Meat Import Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheep growers joined cattlemen Friday in urging approval of legislation placing quotas on meat imports.

Edwin E. Marsh, Salt Lake City, Utah, executive secretary of the National Wool Growers Association, told the Senate Finance Committee his organization supports the proposal of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

This would put quotas on imports of beef, veal, mutton and lamb to reduce them about one-third below 1963 levels.

Marsh said dressed lamb imports in 1963 were 955 per cent above 1957 while mutton imports increased 7,300 per cent in the same period.

The industry has sought relief from the Tariff Commission but this has been denied, he said.

Marsh said New Zealand lamb is sold in that country at about 22.2 cents a pound and can be sold in the U.S. at 36.7 cents. But American growers require at least 42.4 cents to meet production costs and try to make a profit, he told the senators.

Don F. Magdanz, Omaha, Neb., executive secretary of the National Livestock Feeder Association, also appeared in support of import quotas.

But Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., told the witness he felt that "monopolistic buying practices" of chain stores had more to do with falling beef prices than imports. Gore suggested that the committee should take a look at this situation.

Octavio R. Elias, Mexico City, representing the Sonora Cattleman's Association, said he wanted to support the plea of U.S. cattle growers for import quotas based on the last five years. This is the basis used by Mansfield.

Spanish in Name, Granada Rose Is All-American

Granada is apple-pie domestic — an origination of Howards of Hemet, California. It is presently making its debut at nurseries throughout the country, evoking such praise as "no colors like it ever" ... "a true breakthrough in rose research" ... "marvelously fragrant."

Gardeners agree that most roses must be seen to be appreciated. This is especially true of Granada. Here is an outstanding example of the new "hot" or fluorescent colors brought to full flower by a mastery of the hybridizer's art.

The actual colors are listed as scarlet, nasturtium and bright lemon yellow. But it's the blending that makes the magic. The rose indeed seems to burn in its intensity — from nearly perfect urn-shaped buds to brilliant full blooms, borne in abundance throughout a long season.

The rose fancier will be doubly delighted to learn that fragrance is back — and Granada has it in full measure. In addition to its newsworthy coloring, this rose is a pleasure to be near. Its penetrating and somewhat spicy aroma is reminiscent of the old-fashioned roses grandma used to grow. Foliage that bears a close resemblance to holly is still another unique touch.

Time for planting Granada and all roses is while they are still in their "barefoot" or dormant state. The cost is little. And the results are almost foolproof. In fact, take one good first quality rosebush, plant it at the proper time and there's hardly a thing you can do to prevent it from putting on a spectacular show in the months to come.

In figuring how much grass seed you need for a new lawn, first compute the number of square feet in the area you plan to seed. Then buy seed of high purity and high germination. If the seedbed is properly prepared and maintained, three pounds of quality seed are sufficient to provide an excellent stand of grass on each 1,000 square feet.

No Colorado Yard Complete Without Evergreen Trees

This being Colorado, no yard is complete without one or more of the many beautiful evergreen trees which are natives of the area or which can be successfully adapted to this part of the country.

The Extension Service of Colorado State University, Fort Collins, has prepared a list of the various evergreens of both native and introduced species which have many fine ornamental uses in the general landscape of a home.

So that you might get some idea of what they are like, the list that follows identifies the tree as to height, its common name, what it looks like, and any special care that it needs:

TALL EVERGREENS — Colorado Blue Spruce, 75 feet, a beautiful symmetrical tree available in blue, green, silver and gray, it requires occasional irrigation. White Fir, 75 feet, A beautiful native tree, similar in color and growth to spruce, but longer needles and one that requires average moisture conditions; Ponderosa Pine, 75 feet, a hardy native conifer, needs room, resists drought, requires little moisture; Austrian Pine, 75 feet, similar in size and habit, but superior in appearance to Ponderosa Pine; Bristlecone Pine or Foxtail Pine, outstanding for landscape use, slow-growing and picturesque, must have good drainage; Limber Pine, a fine, slow-growing native, must have good drainage; Scotch Pine, lighter green-needles pine, faster growing and quite hardy.

MEDIUM EVERGREENS—Pinon Pine, 15 feet, hardy and adapted to poor soil and dry locations, very slow growing; Juniperus Scopulorum, 30 feet, a hardy native Colorado juniper, subject to attack by spider mites and cedar apple rust. The members of this family include the Blue Haven, Pathfinder, Platinum, Sutherland, Virginiana or Eastern Redcedar, Cansert Redcedar, Keteleer Redcedar and Juniperus Monosperma.

LOW EVERGREENS — Pfitzer Juniper, 6 feet, excellent low-growing form, spreading habit, foliage blue-green; Juniper Goldtip Pfitzer, similar to regular pfitzer, current year's growth is golden yellow, fine for contrast; Juniper Blue Pfitzer, silver-blue and more feathery than regular pfitzer; Juniper Tamarix, excellent low-growing form, blue-green, very dense, used for planters; Mugo Pine, 6 feet, dense dwarf pine, perfect for formal shaping, fine for specimen foundation planting, requires sunshine.

BROADLEAF EVERGREENS — Pyracantha or Firethorn: Varieties Wyatti and Lalandi are showing good adaptability in this area and are attractive with white flowers in May and orange-red berries in fall; Oregongrape or Mahonia, satisfactory compact-growing evergreen which turns bronzy-green in winter and has yellow blossoms and blue grapes, may wind or sandburn in winter; Compact Oregongrape, a dwarf form of the regular one and similar in appearance, one that is useful for special interest plantings; Euonymus, upright growing forms are quite dependable on north and east side of Colorado homes, especially if variety Sarcoxie is used; Spreading Euonymus, variety Patens more vase-shaped, not as winter-hardy, dislikes winter sun.

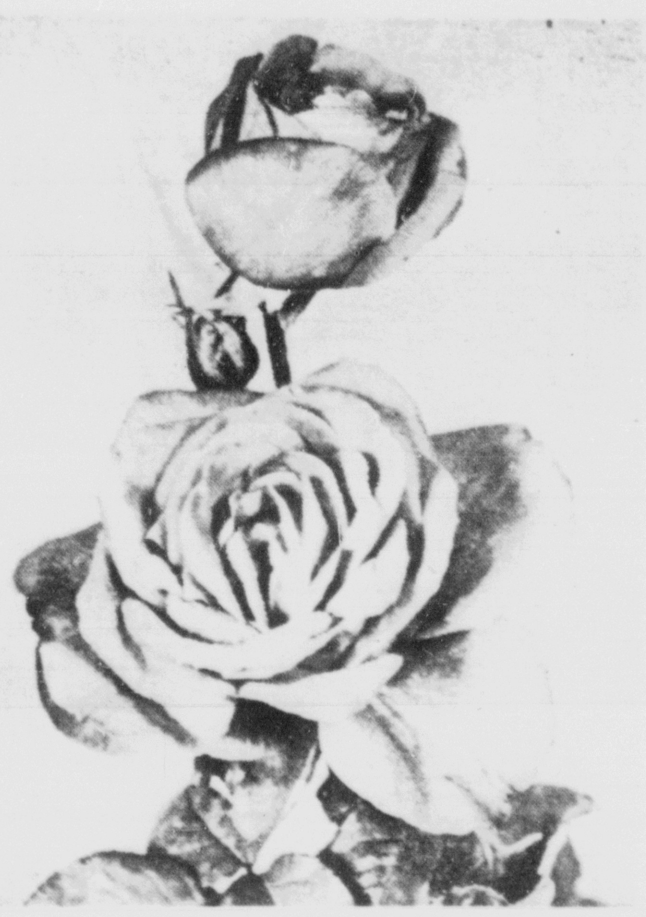
Euonymus Radicans in Tegetus and Vandicaus varieties are useful and add special interest altho slow-growing and tho most are like vines, some are small shrubs; Yucca comes in four varieties, the native or Glauca, Filimentosa, Harrimanni and Baccata are excellent for banks, naturalistic settings and specimen use chiefly because they have very showy flowers; Rock Cotoneaster is useful for rock gardens and planters and has red berries. Native Mahonia is excellent, winter-hardy ground cover with yellow flowers and blue berries; Periwinkle or Vinca Minor, is a viny ground cover for most any exposure. Its blue flowers bloom very early.

Seedling Tree Supply Limited, Forester Says

Farmers and ranchers will have to act soon if they wish to take advantage of the seedling tree distribution program offered by the Colorado State Forest Service. Of the original one million trees on hand, only about 100,000 remain to be sold, according to Don Young, State District Forester at Canon City.

The supply of cottonwood and ash has been exhausted, Young said. Hardwood species still available include caragana, Chinese elm, hackberry, Russian olive, quailbush, and lilac. A few evergreen species remain; these include blue spruce, Douglas-fir, rocky mountain juniper, ponderosa pine, Austrian pine, and white fir.

Those wishing to get trees may obtain order blanks from the local county extension agent or by writing to the State Forester, Colorado State University, Fort Collins.



CRIMSON DUKE—A new red hybrid tea rose by Alain Meilland, originator of Peace Rose is the Crimson Duke. Glorious rich red exhibition blooms elicited this statement out of one admirer, "Crimson Duke is a swashbuckler; it's built like a football guard and produces like a winner." It is available at nurseries and garden centers.

Big, Bold Crimson Duke Real Swashbuckling Rose

Unlike many of the rose introductions of the past few years which have been on the delicate side, their colors even tending toward pale mauve and lavender, one of this year's top contenders for first place is a real he-man red — big, bold and boisterous.

The gardener who wants a rose that will grow into a rugged high bush, clothed with substantial glossy leaves and covered with showy blooms, will find Crimson Duke to his liking. Everything about it reflects its vigor and hardiness. In fact in the rose garden it is well to allow it somewhat more space than is accorded the average run of Hybrid Teas.

In mid-October our plants were still making strong new growth and producing fat flower buds. Where we had the opportunity of seeing Crimson Duke in late autumn, in field tests with dozens of other varieties, its vigor of growth and fine show of color made it outstanding.

A serious fault of many big red roses, and especially of some recent introductions, is that they "die miserably", the petals fading to a displeasing carrion purple. Crimson Duke holds its royal color to the very end, half-open buds and fully opened flowers making a harmonious display in the rose bed, in flower arrangements, or as specimen blooms in competitive classes.

Any gardener who is interested in exhibiting roses at flower shows will certainly want to add Crimson Duke to his stable of prize-winners. Peace, the world's record gold medal and blue ribbon winner, is one of the parents of Crimson Duke. Flowers, which are of exhibition quality, open up to five inches or so in diameter. As they are medium double — about thirty petals — they are best cut when fairly tight. The lasting quality is excellent — an important point with any exhibition rose.

For home decoration many people like roses in sprays of several flowers on a single main stem. Many main stems of Crimson Duke support four or five individual blooms firmly. Each bud and flower stands proudly erect without the usual droopy effect so often noticeable in cluster-flowered varieties. This characteristic, together with their slight fragrance, make these new roses ideal for use as cut sprays for indoor decoration.

Another feature of Crimson Duke which will make it a favorite with home gardeners is its generous autumn bloom. When cut back fairly hard after the June-early July flowering, it puts on an excellent autumn display, an extra dividend of fine buds and blooms lasting right up to hard frost which closes the show — until another year.

It is small wonder that Alain Meilland, whose firm created the world-famous rose Peace, feels that in Crimson Duke he has achieved another triumph in rose breeding — a rose that experts and amateurs alike will want in their gardens.

Care and Propagation Of African Violets

By MRS. CHARLES POE

African Violets (Saintpaulia), in their natural state, grow in leafmold. They must have very loose, friable soil, to bloom well. This is my own personal soil formula. For a measure I use a No. 2½ size peach can.

- 9 cans good, black soil
- 7 cans peat moss
- 2 cans sharp sand, not too fine
- 1 can dehydrated cow manure

Sterilize this by baking in the oven at 180 degrees, or as high as your oven will burn. Have mixture quite damp, and cover it tight. Bake for 1½ hours. Soil must be spread out and aired for at least 48 hours before using. Baking builds up a large amount of nitrate which will damage roots.

To this mixture, after cooling, add the following:

- 2 cups fine charcoal
- 3 cans Sponge Rok
- ½ cup bone meal
- 4 tbsp. Fermate

Never over pot an African Violet, as they must be root bound to bloom well. The very young plants taken off the mother leaf, should be put in 2¼ to 2½ inch pots. I prefer clay pots over plastic ones. After the plant has bloomed well the first time, it may be shifted on to a 3-inch pot. Many varieties may spend the rest of their lives in this size pot. A large plant may be put in a 4-inch squatty pot which is the largest I ever use. Never take a plant out of a small pot and put it in a large one. It is far too much soil for the shallow root system to care for. Keep a newly planted violet out of the sun for at least 48 hours.

How much should you water? Let your finger tips tell you, by testing the soil on top of the pot. There is no hard and fast rule for watering, as so much depends on the size of the pot, type of soil, and size of the plant. It is much safer to let a plant get a little on the dry side than to keep it too wet. Water from the bottom with a very warm water and let set only until soil feels wet. Pour off remaining water. Never let a plant sit in a dish of water after the mositureis taken up.

I feed twice a month, using recommended plant foods. Plants will really pay off in blooms if fed accroding to a routine. During the hot summer months, let the plants rest by not feeding.

Violets must have good light in order to bloom well. Filter any direct sunlight through thin scrim curtains. East and south windows are excellent, but must be shaded from 11a.m. to 2 p.m. A newspaper may be put between the window and curtain during these hours.

Movement of air around African Violets is quite essential. As soon as the weather is warm enough, open the windows behind the plants and leave open if possible. A small fan may be used for a short period of time, each day, to keep the air stirred. This cuts down on mildew, which is prevalent during the hot summer months. Never place violets in a strong draft, which will cause the foliage to curl and buds to drop off.

Temperature is best at 70 to 75 degrees. At night the temperature should not vary more than 10 degrees from the daytime temperature.

Mositure in the air is very necessary for violets to bloom well. If you only have a few plants, a pan or pitcher of hot water among your plants, to provide humidity, will serve. Chicken grits may also be placed in each dish to kept slightly damp.

Leaves of African Violets get very dusty and may be washed by spraying in the kitchen sink or bath tub. Spray with water a degree or two warmer than the room. Always set plants on a shaded table, being sure that they are dry before setting back in the sun. A sprinkling bottle may be used if you only have a few plants.

To propagate African Violets from leaves, cut center leaves from healthy plants 1¼ to 1½ inches long, with sharp razor blade, at a 45 degree angle. Let leaves heal for about one hour by placing them on a table. Then dip tip end in a mixture of 1 tablespoon of rooting powder and the same amount of Fermate mixed together. Gently tap off the excess powder on a piece of absorbent paper. Plant in a mixture of fine charcoal and Vermiculite or Zonalite. Have this thoroughly soaked with hot water before planting. Pans saved from frozen pies or the small meat pies are excellent, as the more shallow the pan, the faster the baby plants will come up.

Carson Bids Opened For Valve Replacement

The Ft. Carson contracting officer has announced an invitation to bids for replacement of safety and pressure relief valves on boilers at Ft. Carson.

He will receive bids at building T-305 until 2 p.m., April 27, 1964, under serial number AV-05-010-64-48.

In keeping with national policy, this invitation to bids has been set aside under the Small Business Program.

Person or Family Judged By Appearance of Home

Surely, the new homegardener wants an attractive, livable home. Economically, colorful plantings add to the value of a home. If average American families move, as reputed, every five years, plantings can mean considerable money. This applies to rentals as to home owners at selling time.

A person or family is judged by the appearance of the home and perhaps a thousand pass by to one who comes inside. Plantings thus have a social aspect, especially with neighbors and in a community.

The house is a picture to be framed. The mat around the picture is probably the lawn, smooth and richly green with suitable permanent grasses. Blending lawn with the house calls for foundation plantings. Border plantings provide the frame. Accent trees and plants in selective groupings may enhance the picture framing and provide backgrounds for colorful floral displays.

Permanent landscaping with shrubs and evergreens may be done at one time, if afforded, or with gradual addition towards the finished plan. However, color gives life and expression to the picture and the home, with or without "permanent" landscaping.

We prefer colored movies, color in magazines and catalogues, on television, color arrangements in the home. Living color outdoors is even more desirable.

Annual and perennial flowers, easily grown from seeds, are needed every year. The newest and best varieties cost no more to grow and usually a packet of seeds will produce as many plants as are needed for a border or foundation planting of any variety color.

Serious gardeners may visit trial grounds and demonstration gardens of leading seeds — men and public institutions to determine colors, kinds and varieties of their choice. Other real gardeners study their seed catalogues for color, height and type of flowers to suit their color schemes and garden locations. They have the widest choice.

Casual and new gardeners frequently choose varieties, even kinds of flowers, by color illustrations on the seed packets or may afford to purchase pot plants of a few locally available varieties beginning to bloom.

There's no need for fancy and expensive equipment, clothes, dues, or fees, fighting traffic or making delaying engagements with others. Enjoy playing at home. Be a garden expert if you will but be a gardener. Have something worthwhile to brag about.

Putting in New Lawn Worthwhile, If It's Done Right the First Time

Planning to put in a new lawn this year? You can do it the right way and enjoy it for years, or the wrong way and do it again next year.

To do it the right way, the best times to sow your grass are late summer and early fall. That's when nature sows her seeds.

At these times heat is less intense, and the approach of cool weather encourages deeper rooting and moderate leaf growth. The opposite occurs in the spring for when weather is warming instead of cooling, too few roots develop and an overabundance of leaves occurs.

If plenty of water for sprinkling is available, the very best time of year to sow lawn grass is from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15. Getting the "jump" on weeds is the important point in late summer or fall planting because the sod developed before winter is able to compete with next spring's weeds much more favorably than sod from spring sown seed.

If fall sowing is impossible, the next best time is early spring. March is preferable to April, if ground can be properly prepared that early.

Early sring is likely to be cold and damp, causing slow and irregular germination. In late spring or in mid-summer, weather is usually too hot for the best interests of grass seedlings. Sprinkling several times daily as well as shading with straw or burlap is necessary to prevent the surface crusting. Crusting kills many seedlings.

Sowing may be done more or less satisfactorily at any time of year. Grass seed is often sown on snow. This is a rather hit-or-miss practice but will succeed if the seedbed under the snow is in good condition, however, nothing is gained by waiting for snow when the ground is prepared beforehand. August 15 to September 15 is best.

In sowing seed, it should be thoroly mixed and then divided into two parts: one to be sown by walking back and forth in a north-south direction; the other to be sown at right angles, or in an east-west direction. At sowing time there should be no soil lumps on the surface larger than a grain of wheat, and most of the soil should be as fine as sifted ashes. Seed should be covered by raking lightly or by sprinkling a thin coat of well-pulverized rotted manure, peat or compost over the surface. Average conditions with good seed and a carefully prepared seedbed require a pound of seed per 300 square feet. Many seeds will not be covered by a light raking, but sprinkling will take care of most of these.

Now about your soil requirements in the Pikes Peak Region.

Lawn may be grown on the subsoil removed from a basement excavation, but starting and maintenance are more difficult than when the surface soil can be restored after excavating. If planting the lawn is anticipated before building, the removal of four or five inches of surface soil before excavating, to be subsequently spread over the poorer soil, is an effort well worthwhile.

If the damage of covering good surface soil with subsoil is already done, working a heavy application of well-rotted manure into the upper plow or spade depth of soil is a good practice. If your land is rocky and has little soil on it, you will need to have soil hauled in. Try to get good surface soil if possible.

If the lawn is to be planted on a light, sandy soil, a dressing of a few inches of clay soil, as well as the manure, can be used very profitably as the clay will increase the water retention of the soil. If clay is not worked into a very sandy soil, almost continuous sprinkling will be required to keep it in proper condition during warm months.

Few soils are so good as not to be benefited by some system of soil improvement. In general, there are three such systems. The sowing and subsequent plowing under of a soil-improving crop, such as oats, rye, clover or vetch, the working into the soil or addition after sowing of well-rotted manure, peat, or leafmold, and the use of commercial fertilizers.

The first method, plowing under a cover crop, is called green manuring. If soil lacks humus and is of poor texture generally, it will be considerably improved by the planting of a cover crop in spring which is plowed under a month or six weeks before sowing the lawn.

In the large majority of cases, liberal application of well-rotted manure —100 pounds per 100 square feet — worked well into the soil will furnish all the plant nutrients necessary and increase the soil's capacity for water retention because of the amount of humus it furnishes.

Commercial fertilizers should be the "complete" form unless there is known to be a deficiency of certain elements. Two and one-half pounds per 100 square feet is a moderate application of complete commercial fertilizer under average conditions. One pound on the same area of established turf is a good average application.

Now that your soil is prepared, it's time to select the grass seed you prefer.

The foundation of most successful Colorado lawns is Kentucky Bluegrass. This grass has a rich green color; its crowns are close to the ground, and after it is established it spreads rapidly by underground shoots.

Merion bluegrass is now widely available and extensively used despite higher cost.

White Clover is another grass that is used in many lawn mixtures. It starts rapidly — ahead of bluegrass — and furnishes ground shade while slower grasses are geting started. Bluegrass then will gradually crowd out the clover, as a rule.

Another good grass is Perennial Ryegrass. It is coarse in leaf and stem, starts rapidly and produces early effect as well as covering quickly ground that would otherwise support weeds. The use of this grass coarsens the lawn the first year, and it is useful only where quick effect is more desirable than fine apearance.

Redtop grows better under adverse soil and moisture conditions than most varieties of good turf grasses. It is a finer grass than rye but seldom is used by itself for lawn. When mixed with clover and Kentucky Blue, it helps to give a good effect the first season but is gradually crowded out.

Chewings Fescue will withstand somewhat drier, shaded and less fertile locations than will Kentucky Blue. It is classed as a basic lawn grass for Northern states and does not differ greatly in appearance from bluegrass.

Creeping Bentgrass is the type commonly used for putting greens. Seds are more expensive, and it should be used only by those who are willing to give the lawn the care and study that a putting green needs. Bentgrass is good in grass seed mixtures, especialy for turfs receiving hard wear. When used alone, however, bentgrass flourishes in soils of slightly more acid reaction than those occurring naturally in Colorado.

Rough-Stalked Bluegrass is a type of turf grass commonly used in mixtures for shady places and often may be used alone in deep shade. It makes a very desirable lawn and is particularly well adapted to shade and moist conditions but usually does not last as long as bluegrass.

Lawn Must Be Properly Maintained

The preparation of the soil and selection of seed is important to having a good lawn, but nothing has been gained unless it is properly maintained.

When starting a lawn during hot months, nearly constant sprinkling is necessary to keep the surface from drying and cracking. Surface moisture retention is materialy increased by a thin coat of some finely pulverized vegetable matter put on after seeding.

When the sod is established, a thorough soaking every few days, as weather and water rationing demand, is much better than the usual perfunctory, twice-daily sprinkling. Watering in full sunshine is not harmful if it is a "soaker." Subsoil, as well as surface, should be wet. Bluegrass roots penetrate 1½ to 2½ feet and often, as much as 5 feet.

If only the surface soil is wet by watering, grass roots will be shallow. Shallow-rooted turf burns easily in hot weather. Fertility in the lower soil is largely unavailable to the shall grass roots, and even some trees, like the naturally shallow-rooted spruces, will blow over easily after they have extended above house roof levels if shallow irrigation is practiced.

Many lawns are mowed too short, which unduly punishes the bluegrass and at the same time encourages Crabgrass. Bluegrass should not be mowed shorter than 1½ inches.

Keep the mower sharp; a dull mower bruises grass blades. The mower throws grass to the left. Mowing counter - clockwise around the lawn will keep the clippings on the turf. Mowing with the right side next to the sidewalk will keep the clippings off the sidewalk.

Set the mower high. Close-clipped grass stands less abuse than that cut 1½ inches or higher. One inch is too short. Using a grass-catcher on a mower removes a part of the "crop" from the land and increases the need for fertilizer.

Without a catcher, clippings fall through the grass onto the soil and soon out of sight. They enrich the soil by the constant addition of organic matter. If the lawn is mowed often enough, the clippings will be short and therefore not unsightly and they can all be allowed to decay where they fall.

Care Required In Transplanting Native Plants

When moving native plants from the field to your home, choose small plants and dig a good portion of the root system with the plant. It is not necessary to keep the soil on the roots of broadleaved trees and shrubs, but always be sure to cover the roots immediately with damp sacks or place them in the carrier and cover them with damp soil.

In moving evergreens from their native location, keep the roots covered with a solid ball of earth. Evergreens contains resinous material, and if the roots are exposed to the light and air for even short intervals, the resin in the roots harden. When this happens, the tree dies soon after planting.

Never move a plant from its natural location without permission of the landowner or the government body in authority.

Be sure the plants you select are adapted to the soil and exposure in the location where they will be placed. For example, find sunny, well-drained locations for yucca and cacti but choose a moist, shady location for columbine and ferns.

With permission, visit areas containing native plants with environmental factors identical to those in the yard of your home.

Perennials should be moved in the fall after leaf-fall or in the spring before growth starts. When plants are moved in the fall, you may heel them in, in a protected location, and then plant in early spring.

Herbaceous perennials can be moved after their foliage dies. Move as much soil with the clump as possible.

Farmers Club to Hear Rescheduled Program

The program originally scheduled for March 7 at Farmer's Luncheon Club will be held Saturday at the Swiss Chalet Restaurant. The program was postponed due to a snow storm.

Speaker will be George W. Colburn, state ground water engineer, who will discuss the ground water law.

Colorado Net Farm Income $3,088; Lowest Since $56

Colorado's per farm net income was $3,088 in 1963 . . . down 16 per cent from 1962 and the lowest since 1956, states Ken Jameson, Colorado State University extension farm management specialist.

On an average, the net income of each Colorado farm was reduced $773 last year. The major cause of this decline in net income was the lower prices received for livestock. Cash receipts from cattle and calves account for about 50 per cent of the total cash receipts received by Colorado farms and ranches, the farm management specialist explains.

Last year emphasized the downward trend of Colorado farm income since 1950. Although gross income has risen about 36 per cent since 1950, costs have climbed approximately 61 per cent. This cost-price pressure has decreased number of farms, discouraged people to remain on the farm, and required others to strive for more efficient operations through lowering cost, Jameson notes.

Since 1950, the total number of acres in production has remained around 39-40 million. At the same time, Colorado farm population has declined about 30 per cent.

Lower prices for sheep and lambs contributed to the 1963 net income decline. However, this effect on total net income was minor since only about five per cent of cash receipts are from sales of sheep and lambs.

Lower wheat prices and reduced yields also contributed to the 1963 decline in net income. Sales of wheat account for about 15 per cent of the total cash receipts received by Colorado farmers, Jameson notes.

Prices of some commodities were up, helping to halt the decline in net income. However, these commodities contribute only a small per cent of total cash income and cannot offset losses suffered by other commodities. For example, sugar beet and hay prices were up, but these two crops together account for only seven per cent of total cash receipts.

Farmers and Ranchers also faced higher costs for interest rates, taxes, depreciation and miscellaneous expenses, the farm management specialist points out. However some production expenses declined, such as the average per farm outlays for livestock and hired labor.

"The forecast for the next several years give no indication of change in this economic situation," Jameson concludes. "Beef cattle numbers, for example, are at record levels. Beef, being the largest single contributor to cash receipts in Colorado, could hold down 1964 average farm income as it did last year."

DANCING WATERS—The new wonder of the entertainment world, Dancing Waters, will be presented at the Colorado Garden and Home Show now in progress at Denver. The electrically controlled water display produces a variety of lavish formations under multi-colored lights.

Dancing Waters One of Garden Show Features

The electrically controlled water display, Dancing Waters, is being featured at the fifth annual Colorado Garden and Home Show which began Tuesday and will continue through Sunday at the Denver Coliseum and National Western buildings.

Dancing waters, with fountains which actually dance to music, will be presented amid a background of indoor garden and mountain scenes.

This expanded show, for the first time in both the Denver Coliseum and National Western buildings, will include the Colorado Aquarium Society annual show, garden designed by author-designer George Kelly, many other gardens with English, Spanish, Japanese and natural Colorado influence, and a large array of mountain homes.

The show opens at 2 p.m. on week days and at noon on Saturday and Sunday. Doors close at 10 p.m. daily. Dancing Waters will perform each hour through the day and each half hour at night.

FHA Members Meet Thursday In Fort Collins

Miss Loxie Richardson of Simla, state president of Future Homemakers of America, is among those who will direct an early April convention at Colorado State University for Colorado High School girls.

The convention, scheduled to open Thursday and continue through Saturday, will take nearly 800 high school girls from 104 FHA chapters throughout the state to Fort Collins.

Theme for the convention is "Maturity, the Endless Challenge." The opening session Thursday afternoon will be a symposium on the question, "What is Maturity?" with a panel of four CSU faculty members.

Panel members will include Mrs. Pauline Birky of the office of international programs; Dr. Stanley Ahmann, head of the psychology department; Dr. Leland J. Exelson, sociology department, and Dr. Authur Cash of the English department.

Other speakers will include Lyle Carpenter, CSU student body president; Earl Reum, director of student activities for the Denver Public Schools, and the Rev. A. B. Patterson, rector of the St. Aidans Chapel in Boulder.

Legislature Did Well for Stock And Crop Men

"Colorado's ranchers and farmers fared quite well during the recent short session of the state legislature," Lloyd Sommerville, Colorado Farm Bureau president said in Denver last week following the close of the session.

"While we didn't get everything we were working for, major provisions in most of the items directly affecting farmers and ranchers were written into law," Sommerville pointed out.

He was referring to the fact that most of the key elements in the top priority measures affecting Colorado agriculture were approved by the legislature.

The passage of Bill 1005 which revamps the procedures used in property assessment was one of the major accomplishments for farmers and ranchers. Property subject to an ad valorem tax will now be assessed on the basis of six factors, similar to those used by surrounding states, in an attempt to arrive at an equal assessment rate of 30 per cent of the actual cash value in all Colorado counties.

The assessment supervision will be in the hands of the county assessor rather than with the State Tax Commission, which is the procedure currently. The State Tax Commission is to "aid and cooperate" with the county assessors in making the change to the 30 per cent level over the next three years.

Also of prime importance to the state's rural families and all owners of property subject to ad valorem taxes was the refusal of the legislature to renew the state mill levy on both real and personal property. The replacement revenue is to come from a sales tax on cigarets and personal income tax.

An attempt to place a constitutional amendment before the people which would enable the state legislature to levy fees in lieu of taxes on state and locally owned property that has been removed from tax rolls failed in the final moments of the session.

Vermiculite Handy Aid In Garden

Vermiculite is a mineral that comes in small, multi-layered granules. It is mined in Montana and South Carolina and is rendered completely sterile by processing at high temperatures. Vermiculite does not have any food value itself, but its usefulness as a growing aid and carrier is virtually unlimited.

As a growing aid, vermiculite is often used in starting trays. Simply place seeds and cuttings in a tray or flat filled with vermiculite. Water thoroughly about once a week, using a diluted plant food after the initial watering. In three to four weeks, lift the plants and transplant outdoors. With vermiculite, root development will have been more extensive than with plants started in soil, so be careful not to remove granules that may be clinging to the roots.

Vermiculite is especially valuable outdoors in the lawn or garden as a soil conditioner. Due to its sponge-like structure it is capable of holding large quantities of air and water. One part vermiculite mixed with two parts soil will enable sandy soils to have substance and hold water, while clay and hard-packed soils are loosened and aerated. Furthermore, vermiculite will stay in the ground as a permanent conditioner.

Fertilizers do a more efficient job in soils containing vermiculite, since the granules absorb the chemicals and release them at a uniform rate. In fact, many fertilizers sold today are impregnated in vermiculite granules serving as carriers.

Those shrubs, evergreens and even trees from the local nursery will better survive the shock of transplanting if the roots are encased in a vermiculite-soil mixture. When transplanting, dig a hole three or more inches larger than the root system. Then add one part vermiculite to two parts soil from the hole. Return part of the mixture to planting depth, place the plant in the hole, and return the remainder of the mixture. The vermiculite will control water and air supply to the roots.

This unique mineral has a place on top of the soil as well as in it. With its natural insulating qualities, vermiculite is an effective mulch, protecting the roots of roses and other plants from the hot summer rays of the sun. Anyone starting a lawn will find it handy on two scores: first, as a soil conditioner; and second, as a mulch thinly spread over the newly seeded lawn. Vermiculite will reduce soil crusting and hold moisture longer.

After a successful garden has been established and a special occasion demands a floral arrangement be made from the choicest flowers, place the cut stems in a pot containing vermiculite soaked with water. The vermiculite serves as a firm base while supplying the flowers with moisture needed to stay fresh longer.

SADDLE CLUB QUEEN—Sandy King has been elected queen of the Plainsman Saddle Club. Her aides are Patsy Cook and Sharon Anderson, and the alternates are Jan Cook and Linda Ricketts.

Dairy Cow's Output Over Twice Average

Polly Gypsie Mae 4818786, produced 13,493 pounds of milk and 583 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. This level of production may be compared with the average U.S. dairy cow's annual output of 7,211 pounds of milk containing 270 pounds of butterfat.

Colorado State University at Fort Collins supervised the production, weighing, and testing operations in cooperation with the official breed improvement programs of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

RECOGNITION

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—An estimated 133 Assemblies of God ministers, each with more than 45 years of service to the church, will be honored during the 50th Anniversary Convention scheduled here April 20-23.

About 10,000 delegates from throughout the United States and from other countries are expected to attend the four-day convention.

Plainsmen Plan 1964 Schedule: Elect Queen

The Plainsmen Saddle Club will hold a series of trail rides and gymkhanas throughout the summer months. The schedule was set up at the last meeting of the club.

An Easter egg hunt was held at Ricketts Ranch.

At the last meeting, Sandy King was named queen of the club. Her aides are Patsy Cook and Sharon Anderson, with Jan Cook and Linda Ricketts as alternates.

The schedule for the rest of the year includes a gymkhana on April 12; trail ride, April 26; gymkhana, May 10; trail ride, May 31; gymkhana June 14; trail ride, June 28; trail ride, July 4; gymkhana, July 19; rodeo parade, Aug. 2; gymkhana, Aug. 30; trail ride, Sept. 13; gymkhana, Sept. 27.

Regular meetings will be held Oct. 28, Nov. 18, and Dec. 16.

What's Up in Four-H

PRAIRIE RAMBLERS

The Prairie Ramblers 4-H Club will hold a horse clinic Saturday at the White House Ranch. The next regular meeting will be held April 18.

WAGON WHEEL

Wagon Wheel 4-H Club met at the Fountain Community Hall and discussed new events coming up during April.

A beef judging program is scheduled to be held at the Banning Lewis Ranch and square dancing practice is on the agenda.

Record books were distributed to new members. These included Darylee Williams, Darrell Wiltgen, Donna Wiltgen, Peggy Weigel, Marlon Bradley, Lester Bradley and Cliffton Bradley.

The meeting was adjourned with a song led by Ravonda Masters, assisted by Ted Reed and Marlon Bradley.

Refreshments were served by Mike Hall and Doug Hughs.

CHEERIETS

The Cheeriets 4-H Club play, "The Fatal Quest," won first place in the county talent contest and will go on to state competition in June. The play will also be entered in the Knights of the Round Table competition.

The Community Spring Project committee recommended that the club members make Easter baskets to take to the children's wards at the hospitals. Penny Lampe displayed a sample basket and showed how it was made.

Mrs. Drommond reported on the Home Economics Judging workshop and urged all members to attend those to be held on future dates. She also mentioned the Simplicity Spring Wardrobe for teens which will be held in the Nob Hill Community Center.

Demonstrations were presented as follows: "How to Make a Lap Seam," Sue Alldredge; "Care of the Teeth," Colleen and Lorrie Fisher; "How to Measure Dry Ingredients," Carol Keffer; and "How to Clean a Mirror," Sharon Johnson.

Refreshments were served by Carol Keffer and Penny Lampe. The next regular meeting will be held April 21.

CHEYENNE RANCH RIDERS

The Cheyenne Ranch Riders 4-H Club will meet at the home of Fred Chess, 1205 Morningstar Dr. on April 13.

On April 11 the club will attend the horse clinic at the Flying W Ranch.

Trace Elements Are Essential To Plant Growth

Trace elements — more properly, micronutrients — are essential to the growth of plants but are needed only in very small amounts. Known micronutrients are iron, manganese, zinc, copper, molybdenum, boron, and chlorine. There may be others.

Do not apply trace elements routinely. Plants need tiny amounts of these elements, but an over-abundance of them may be toxic to plants. Apply trace elements only if they are recommended by your county agricultural agent or your state agricultural experiment station.

CHE GAMBE!

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A Milan lower court judge fined Aldo Di Biago $16 for sticking his head into the parked car of teacher Maddalena Giraudo and exclaiming "Che gambe" (what legs).

Di Biago told the court the 23-year-old teacher jumped out of the car and slapped him. But the court ruled that Di Biago's "grave provocation" clearly offset any accusation of assault and battery against the teacher.

Petty Larceny Brings Suspended Sentence

Thomas Stanley Bogasshewicz, 23, of Ft. Carson was fined $25 and $7 costs and given 30 days suspended in county jail Monday by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine for petty larceny.

The defendant who pleaded guilty, stole a $15 sweater from Virgil Seese March 26.

NO HUMPTY DUMPTY

LEHIGH, Kan. (AP) — Rufus D. Unrau was unloading four hogs from his pickup truck when his young son pointed into the truck bed and said:

"Look daddy, is that an egg?"

A loose chicken egg had made a 160-mile trip rolling in the truck with the hogs, and was undamaged.

It is illegal to use dogs for hunting deer, bear or skunk in New York state.

FINED

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Charles W. Dry, 41, Salt Lake City, was fined $150 in city court Tuesday for drunken driving. The Fine was imposed by Judge M. H. Morris after Dry pleaded guilty.

Drive for Helping Hand Fund for Alaska Starts

A drive to raise a Pikes Peak region "helping hand" fund for the benefit of disaster-stricken Alaska was launched Tuesday it was announced by J. D. Hill, president of the local advertising club.

The idea was initiated by George Krueger and Dick Faulkner, owners of McDonald's Hamburger drive-ins at 1703 S. 8th, and at 207 N. Wahsatch, who have offered to donate one-half of the gross proceeds of these two eating places to the fund Thursday.

The advertised council of the Pikes Peak Advertising Club will act as co-ordinator for the community effort. Individuals or groups interested in lending a helping hand to Arctic neighbors should contact Col. Broun H. Mayall, chairman of the council, at the Colorado Springs National Bank, telephone number 633-7771.

All monies contributed will be divided between the local headquarters of the Salvation Army and the Pikes Peak chapter of the American Red Cross.

From those offices it will be forwarded though proper channels to the earth-quake-shattered areas of Alaska.

A nation-wide campaign for emergency funds to help alleviate the disaster has already been started, according to E. N. McIlrath, executive director, Pikes Peak Chapter, American Red Cross. "The intense local interest, as reflected in the number of local telephone inquiries, is probably due to the large number of residents who have lived in Alaska," McIlrath said.

"The Salvation Army entered the disaster scene a few hours after the earthquake when it was called upon to set up a food and clothing depot in Anchorage," Major Wilfred J. Mahy, commanding officer of the Salvation army in Colorado Springs, commented today.

Hill, who is owner of Radio KSSS' has asked for the co-operation of the news media in the region in the promotion of this timely and humanitarian project.

Man Jailed for Lack Of Money to Pay Fine

A Ft. Carson man, Clarence R. Pauley, 19, was unable to pay a $25 fine and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Tuesday and went to county jail.

Pauley pleaded guilty to creating a distrubance at the Navajo Hogan, 2317 N. Nevada Ave. Sunday.

Cost of Living Decline Noted By Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living, as measured by the government, dropped last month for the first time since December, 1962.

The Labor Department reported today the decline was one-tenth of one per cent, putting the consumer price index at 107.6.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the major factor in the decline was gas service. The funds ordered by the Federal Power Commission in voluntary gas price reductions following the recent federal tax cut.

The February index of 107.6 means that it cost $10.76 to purchase the goods that cost $10 in the base period of 1957-59.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the reductions and refunds in residential gas service accounted for two thirds of the price index decline from January. On a nationwide basis the gas reductions averaged 3.5 per cent and there will be a further drop as more gas companies make refunds later, he said.

Most of the remainder in the decline in the index was due to a .7 per cent drop in transportation costs as gasoline prices and used car prices went down in a usual midwinter pattern.

Food prices, rents, home ownership costs, consumer service prices and medical costs continued to rise, Chase said.

Food prices edged up .2 per cent, mainly because of higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables.

Chase said the index will probably go up a little this month because of increases in food, clothing and other prices.

The bureau said that about 100,000 workers will receive cost of living wage increases of one cent an hour based on quarterly reviews of the old consumer price index.

How to Keep Well

FEVER FACTS

The significance of fever depends upon the cause, the age, how long it lasts, and at what times of day it occurs. Temperatures seldom go higher than 106 degrees F. but the hieght is not necessarily an index of the severity of the illness. It is true that few survive 109 degrees but such temperatures are rare.

Fever lasting less than two weeks usually stems from a simple respiratory or other infection. Should it persist, we suspect a more serious disorder such as tuberculosis, rheumatic fever, rheumatoid arthritis, cancer, drug toxicity, or an obscure disease.

Something must be done about the effects of fever on the body. A temperature of 103 degrees F or more produces dehydration and excessive amounts of salt are eliminated through profuse sweating. Metabolism rises so that food is burned up at a fast rate and some persons lose up to 4 poounds a day in this way. More fluids (up to 3 quarts), salt, and food are needed to combat dehydration, weight reduction, and lack of strength. Sponging and aspirin help lower the reading.

Age enters the picture. Children have higher readings than do adults for comparable infections. A youngster may have a temperature of 104 during the first day of a sore throat but it may not rise above 101 in diphtheria, rheumatic fever, or appendicitis. Convulsions are likely to occur in youngsters when a high temperature persists.

On the contrary, older persons have lower temperatures when they develop respiratory and other infections. The reason is not known except that they react more slowly to fever-causing agents. This phenomenon backfires occasionally because the oldster refuses to believe he is ill when the temperature is normal or only slightly elevated. But a high reading in the elderly is a serious sign.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer question on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Spasmodic Pain

B. B. writes: Whenever I lift a heavy object or make a quick turn, my back bothers me. I get sort of spasm. Can anything be done about this type of backache?

Reply

Yes, but the remedy depends upon the cause. Start by having a thorough examination of the spine, including X-rays. These studies would determine whether your spasms are due to muscle strain, arthritis, or slipped disk. Temporary relief may be obtained by wearing a corset, applying heat, and exercising the back muscles. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet which describes different types of backache.

Chest Pain

H. H. writes: Is it unusual to develop angina pectoris after (not before) coronary thrombosis?

Reply

No. Chest pains are more common before a heart attack but they may come on afterward.

Intake and Outgo

A. H. writes: What is meant by frequent urination—every 30 minutes, two hours, or what?

Reply

Much depends upon the intake of fluids. Frequent urination is more often than every three hours during the day.

Yaws From Spirochetes

E. S. writes: Is yaws curable?

Reply

Yes. This largely tropical disease is caused by a spirochete and responds to penicillin.

Aeronautics Head To Speak to AFA Assembly

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, keynote speaker for the sixth annual Air Force Academy Assembly, will have an opportunity "to explore" the Academy before he leads more than 100 delegates in their exploration of the 1964 topic "Outer Space."

He will meet the Superintendent, Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren, and then tour facilities in the academic area.

The public may attend the 7:20 address in the Arnold Hall theater.

ONE IN A MILLION—There was great cause for excitement at the Broadmoor Greenhouse recently when this Easter lily, an Ace variety, was found blooming in profusion. On the single stalk are five beautiful, white blossoms and four buds when usually there are four or five at the most. The chances of this happening are one in a million, and one man at the Greenhouse said that in 30 years of plant growing he'd never seen anything as unusual. Holding the lovely plant is Barbara Weiss.

Tire and Wheel Stolen From Fort Carson Car

Junior R. Rosier, Ft. Carson, reported to the sheriff's department Monday that a tire and wheel had been stolen from his car.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche said they were worth $40 and that the vehicle was parked in the Ft. Carson housing area at the time of the theft.

Stop Reading by Word . . . and Get Better Grades

By The Reading Laboratory, Inc.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Association

Time your reading of this column and compare your speed with that indicated at the end. The expected speed assumes a daily five per cent improvement.

Without too much trouble, you have managed to work up a solid distaste for world history. Your grades are poor. Or maybe you do honestly like it, but your grades are poor anyway.

There's no point in blaming the teacher or the text; you'll change neither. The problem is that you couldn't care less. You are failing to concentrate. Notice we didn't say you are incapable of concentrating because you can surely pay attention when you like what you're doing. The only cure for "I couldn't care less about world history" is to care more for Number One—you.

Before finding out how to get control of ourselves, let's make a study-room check.

CHAIR. Not too comfortable, not too uncomfortable. Set your lower back firmly against the chair's back.

LIGHT. Natural light is best. If you don't have that, be sure the bulb is no less than 100 watts and that there's another nearby light source of about the same power.

NOISES. You'll enjoy that disc jockey a lot more before or after world history, not during. And vice versa.

BOOK. Don't lay it flat on the desk. Prop up the top so every part of the page is an equal distance from your eyes.

You're all set, except something's bothering you. Your girl friend or boy friend has been giving you grief lately. Or you're in some sort of trouble. If there is anything you can do about it now, do it. Can't do it right now? Then figure out the best thing to do and the best time to do it and resolve to do just that. No point in worrying any more right now.

There must be someone who likes world history. The fellow who whote the text book does. He's happy and making money from the book; you're miserable and piling up aggravation. Do what the author did; find the good in world history for you.

One motive would be to turn around and get the better of it, to remove one more itch from your life. Don't worry about five years from now; find motives for right now. Maybe the prospect of shock on the teacher's face when you show up prepared tomorrow; certainly getting rid of a failure on your record should motivate you to discover some good.

Look at it this way. World history was assigned to you. The faculty had some advantage for you in mind. Ask one of them if you have to. Chances are you skip one of the best parts of your newspaper—world affairs. Why? Because you have no world history gackground to bring to your reading. There's a motive.

Solid advice, you say, but it's too late in the course. No. Take 15 minutes before you read tonight's assignment. Look at the title page. Get all you can. Now read the table of contents and see what the book plans to cover. Read the opening and close of the preface; there the author tells you his plans. Already you have learned a good bit.

Now go through the chapters preceding tonight's homework. Study the title, the first two paragraphs, the divisions, the boldface sections; check pictures and illustrations; read the conclusions. Do that with all the chapters till you get to your assignment. This will show you where you're going, why you're going and the things you don't know.

The big thing is that you have involved yourself. You have tackled world history for your own good reasons. You're beginning now to concentrate.

You should have completed this reading in 96 seconds.

Demo Split Widens on All Senate Fronts

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Old friends parted company and the Democratic split over the party's contest for the U.S. Senate widened on all fronts today.

Don Bradley, executive director of the Democratic State Central Committee, broke off with Gov. Edmund G. Brown to become campaign manager for Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary who leaped into the race March 20.

Brown, backing State Controller Alan Cranston for Sen. Clair Engle's seat, was obviously displeased. He said Bradley, who managed his 1962 re-election effort, acted without his approval.

The governor fired off a letter to "friends and supporters" to let them know that he is still behind Cranston for the Democratic nomination. He urged them to back his choice.

Cranston, in a speech Tuesday night, declared Salinger is "riding for the same fall as Richard Nixon." He alluded to the fact that Salinger, like Nixon, came home after a long absence to run for office.

Tom C. Carvey, president of the 70,000-member California Democratic Council, charged that Salinger's last-minute entry was a "brazen power play by Big Daddy Jesse Unruh." The CDC has endorsed Cranston.

Carvey accused Assembly Speaker Unruh of engaging in "a cynical double game"—publicly sympathetic to Sen. Engle but working behind the scenes to line up his own candidate.

Engle's Northern California chairman, Assemblyman Jerome R. Waldie, D-Antioch, pooh-poohed talk that the Democratic incumbent would pull out of the June 2 primary.

He called it wishful thinking by "some who thought they could huff and puff and blow the man down."

Engle filed for re-election in the face of assertions by state party leaders, including the governor, that he is too ill to run.

The 52-year-old senator underwent brain surgery last August but he says he's recovering.

Quebec Patriots Insist They Seek Independence

By FRED COLEMAN

MONTREAL (AP)—You hear all sorts of threats when you talk with some of the terrorists who would like to see Quebec become a separate nation.

"If Canada does not want people to die by the thousands, it will get rid of Quebec," says one.

Another predicts "there will be violence, you can count on that," if Queen Elizabeth II visits Quebec this fall as planned.

Call them Georges and Robert. They represent only a handful of French-Canadians in Quebec who view Canada's English-speaking majority as a colonial power and believe their French-speaking province must fight for independence.

Most French-Canadians, working for stronger provincial self-rule within Canada, denounce violent tactics.

Only 13 per cent of Quebec's population favor independence, a recent survey showed. Few of those want violence. But in the vast sea of misunderstanding between French and English Canadians the small group of terrorists poses a constant threat of pushing Quebec farther than it wants to go.

Neither Georges nor Robert will start violence by himself. They were suspected last year after a 12-week wave of bombings in an English-speaking suburb of Montreal killed one man and maimed another.

Both were members of the FLQ or Quebec Liberation Front, the band behind the bombings.

They now are marked men. They claim police follow them and tap their telephones. They charge the police beat FLQ members arrested last year.

The FLQ is now dead. Its apparent successor, the Quebec Liberation Army or ALQ, is very much alive. The army raided Quebec armories in February and escaped with enough weapons to outfit a small army.

Georges and Robert deny they are army members. They say they do not know its size but believe it is organized on a cell basis.

Liberation army members are believed to be mostly middle-class youths. Police are mainly concerned with getting to the leaders.

Georges and Robert say they have appealed for financial help in the United States and from student movements in Mexico and elsewhere—but not in Communist countries. "We are not Communists and we do not want the Communists to come in and take over our revolution," Georges said.

The majority of separatists seeking an independent Quebec are nonviolent students influenced by Socialist thinking in France.

More than half Quebec's population is between the ages of 17 and 35. A new law granting the vote to 18-year-olds will allow 500,000 new voters, or 10 per cent of the population, to cast ballots in provincial elections in 1966.

CHEVY II by Chevrolet
How to get away from it all including the high cost of travel!

If you're looking for a way to get the whole family there and back on a small vacation budget, this is the station wagon that can do it.

You see, a Chevy II is one of the most inexpensive wagons you can own. It goes so many miles between gas stops you'll think we built in a spare tank. Garage stops, too, are far, far apart.

And you get 76 cu. ft. of cargo space for less money than you'd expect to pay for most sedans. Big enough to handle fat rowboats and tall fishing poles. Powerful enough to tote fully loaded trailers.

And all Chevy II's come with Chevrolet's money-saving, easy-care features. Like Body by Fisher, rust-resisting flush-and-dry rocker panels, battery-saving Delcotron generator and self-adjusting brakes.

CHEVROLET TRADE 'N' TRAVEL TIME FOR THE GREAT HIGHWAY PERFORMERS

Besides wagons, of course, there are Chevy II sedans and coupes. They come with a wide range of engines, including a thrifty Four. The Super Sport Coupe comes with bucket seats and either an extra-cost floor-mounted Powerglide or 4-speed transmission, along with door-to-door carpeting. So although Chevy II's are economical to buy and own, they certainly don't look it.

And now that it's Trade 'N' Travel Time at your Chevrolet dealer's, you'll never find a better time to look into Chevy II. Look under its hood. Slam its solid doors. Bounce on its thickly padded foam-cushioned seats. But above all else—try it on the highway. It'll give you a good run for your money.

Pentagon Blinds To Be Lowered For Dark Image

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon workers have been told to lower their office window blinds before leaving for the day—apparently so passing citizens won't notice lights that are left burning.

The memo, circulated by the office of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, also is intended to get the Pentagon into line with President Johnson's save-on-lights campaign.

Anybody driving by the Pentagon at night had been able to see light streaming from many of its 7,600 windows.

Some of this light, of course, came from the offices of people on duty. Some came from offices being cleaned by a small army to charwomen and maintenance men.

Some obviously came from lights left burning carelessly—and the memorandum is aimed at trying to cure this.

Early today it was a difefrent story, indicating the new order was being observed. From nearby highways, no lighted windows could be spotted.

Dated March 30, the memoranda says:

"The General Services Administration is making a concerted effort to achieve economies in its bulding management program and to project a favorable image of government buildings.

"To this end, they have requested that defense employees 'turn out lights and lower and tilt the slats of venetian blinds (on exterior windows) before leaving their offices at the end of each day.'

"For those working evenings, weekends and holidays this is particularly important since the char forces are not available to turn off lights which have been overlooked."

Asked about this, a GSA spokesman said the reason for the admonition about lowering and tilting venetian blind slats was to conserve heat and thus save on heating bills.

Why mention only "exterior windows"—the ones facing the highways? What about the thousands of windows which look out on courts from the Pentagon's inner rings, away from public view?

The mention of outside windows wasn't GSA's idea, that agency's spokesman said.

So, questions of public image aside, a campaign to get people to click off the lights is bound to save money.
